Park official: 'foundation favors our offer'

No decision on whether park district or hospital gets Childerly retreat

by LYNN ASINOF

No decision was reached yesterday by the Calvert Foundation on the sale of the Childerly retreat house property, 506 McHenry Rd., to either the Wheeling Park District or the Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital.

Park board members, however, reported a favorable reception by the Calvert Foundation when it considered their offer of $250,000 for the ten-acre site.

According to Park Comm. Lorraine Lark, the Calvert trustees apparently have not decided the legal question of whether the Childerly property can be sold.

The deed establishing Childerly defines its purpose narrowly for the use of University of Chicago students, alumni, and faculty. If the Calvert Foundation ceases to exist or function, Childerly properties revert to the Archbishop of Chicago. There is no provision in the deed for the sale of the property.

THE PARK BOARD members said their seven-minute presentation yesterday to the Calvert Foundation was favorably received, despite a substantially higher offer of $445,000 from the Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital.

The park commissioners said the strong point of their offer was the fact that Childerly would be able to continue as a retreat house under park ownership. The park district has agreed to allow retreats to be scheduled in the buildings on a priority basis.

"The comments made by the trustees were that they would rather sell to the park district which would perpetuate the use of Childerly as set forth by Mrs. Lillie in her will," Mrs. Lark said.

In appealing to the Wheeling village board for a park site designation, Mrs. Lark said the designation was needed in case the hospital bought the property and did not get state approval. She said in this case the property might be used for condominiums or apartments.

As of the Herald's deadline last night, the village trustees had not voted whether to grant the park district's requested official map designation.

THE DESIGNATION, if granted, would give the park district one year from the time development plans are approved to purchase the property.

"Our asking you to give us an official designation is like asking you to give us and the community a one-year option to purchase Childerly," Mrs. Lark said.

She said if the designation is not granted, the park district will have to begin condemnation procedures immediately because of the importance of the time element.

In a lengthy and emotional presentation, Mrs. Lark argued for the preservation of the Childerly property and the historic buildings located on it. "We know the buildings cannot stand and have a hospital there too," she said.

The park district plans to use the land as an outdoor education center, a summer day camp and a place for community meetings.

Trustee William Hein was most active in questioning the need for a designation. He noted that the park district might have to condemn the property even if the designation is approved. Hein further outlined the need for a local hospital by citing the number of times the village ambulance could not be received at area hospitals.

available as soon as the bids for the project are opened.

The new library system center received rapid approval of its grant request after the impounded funds were released, according to McClarren. "We had first priority in the state," he said.

The library system is currently headquartered in leased offices in Morton Grove. McClarren said the library system chose the Dundee Road location because it was in the geographical center of the 31 public library district.

"IT'S THE DEAD center. It is the center of the system area," McClarren said. "If you draw a line from Evanston to Fox Lake, half the libraries lie to the right of that line and half to the left."

He said the same is true if the line is drawn between Park Ridge and Libertyville. According to McClarren, these two lines intersect at Pal-Waukee Airport.

The two-acre Wheeling site was chosen after the library system looked at more than 40 sites in Arlington Heights, Wheeling, Northbrook, Deerfield and Glenview.

McClarren said the Dundee Road location was most desirable because it is on a major road and is located within a municipality that can provide business resources and police and fire protection.

Since the new building will not provide services directly to the public, McClarren said traffic from the headquarters will not be a problem. The system provides each of its 31 member public libraries with access to books, films, periodicals, facilities and services not available from local resources.

McClarren said the new facility will cost about $1 million, with the property costing $150,000.

Grant OK'd for library headquarters

Plans for the North Suburban Library System's (NSLS) new headquarters in Wheeling are moving ahead now that a federal grant for the project has been approved.

Robert McClarren, system director, said the $200,000 grant had been held up when President Nixon impounded funds allocated under the federal library services and construction act program.

"There was a lot of delay because there were some board members who perhaps felt that the building should be of much less size because the funds were not available," McClarren said. "The long, protracted problems of financing did interfere with the dispatch of the construction project."

THE DIRECTOR said the library system is now having bid specifications for its new library printed, with bids to be opened in about 45 days. McClarren said the administration released the impounded funds in December, with the library district receiving approval of its grant request shortly thereafter.

The new headquarters, to be located just east of the Wheeling Post office on Dundee Road, will serve as the administrative center for the system. It will include 20,000 square feet of meeting rooms, office space, storage and work space.

McClarren did not know when construction of the new building would begin. He said these estimates will be

Illinois Bell blamed for alarm delay

by JILL BETTNER

Tempron Inc., which is installing a $85,000 surveillance system in School Dist. 21, cites problems with Illinois Bell Telephone lines as the reason for being four months past the contract deadline.

The Dist. 21 school board last week passed a resolution giving Tempron Inc. until Feb. 15 to install the system. If it is not operational by that date, the board warned it would terminate the contract and take other steps to complete the work.

If the surveillance system is not working by the new deadline, the board also will invoke the performance bond posted by Tempron. The bonding company would then seek another company to finish the job.

The Herald yesterday incorrectly reported that the Tempron firm must complete the work by Feb. 1.

J. C. LEE, president of Tempron, yesterday said that malfunctioning telephone lines have caused the delay in installing the system. He said the lines, installed in August, stopped working in November. They were repaired two weeks ago, he said, but began malfunctioning again last Friday.

According to Lee, Tempron did not have enough time to check out the system before it began malfunctioning again. He said it takes approximately (Continued on page 5)

Gas pumps near 'empty'

Northwest suburban service stations shutting at mid-day

by KURT BAER

Gasoline dealers throughout the Northwest suburbs are running on empty.

Sales at the pump are being limited to the early morning hours as dealers find they must shut down by mid-day to stretch their end of the month reserves.

In Washington, federal energy czar William E. Simon said Monday he hopes gasoline production can be stepped up soon to stave off rationing this spring.

And in Chicago, U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., called for a rollback in crude oil prices and new price controls on the U.S. oil industry.

Meanwhile, hundreds of service station

operators stiffened their own rationing controls to avert a total area-wide shutdown.

SEVERAL MOTORISTS told The Herald they could not find any stations in Arlington Heights selling gas Monday afternoon. Some station managers say they already have received part of their February allocation but would continue to limit sales to prevent a run on their pumps.

Most dealers said they hope their self-imposed rationing will head off earlier predictions of massive station closings by the end of the week.

A spot check of stations Monday turned up a recurrent refrain of long lines, short hours and near non-existent supplies.

"People are lined up here like it's going out of style, or like I'm giving it away," said an attendant at Carl's Mobil Service, Mount Prospect.

And at the Shell station at River Road and Euclid Avenue, manager Clair Ruggles said he was saving gas for his regular customers, "people who have been with us for years. We have to take care of our own."

RUGGLES SAID Shell has given him 90 days notice after which the company plans to terminate his lease — unless he buys the station for $150,000. He added that he could make the purchase if he could buy gas. "But they (Shell) won't sell you any," he said.

A survey of seven stations in Rolling Meadows showed that all pumps were locked after morning rush hours, in a few cases, for the evening rush hours.

Bill Hunter, owner of Southland Shell, said there were 12 to 15 cars waiting at his pumps when he opened for business Monday morning.

"Everyone's going to be riding their bikes this weekend," said Bill Miska, owner of Rolling Meadows Shell. "I don't think anyone has gas." His station is already out of gasoline and will receive only 8,000 gallons of its February allocation on Thursday.

State police had to break up lines at the Standard station, Wilke and Algonquin roads, early Monday. "It was unreal," reported an attendant.

Four service stations in Palatine pumped their day's quota in two or three hours yesterday morning.

Robert Franz, owner of Bob's Union 76 at 5 W. Palatine Rd., said his daily quota of 12,000 gallons usually lasts for five or six hours. It was gone in just over two hours Monday.

IN ELK GROVE VILLAGE, a line of cars a half-mile long went away empty from Grove Cito when the station shut its pumps at 3:45 p.m. The manager said his station will remain closed until delivery of his February allocation, and he had no idea when that might be.

TORCH helps rekindle fire in cold heart

by JILL BETTNER

Communication sometimes breaks down between a married couple. Conversations are replaced with charges and counter-charges and life becomes a strained contest between two persons, full of bickering, frustration and unhappiness.

This kind of situation calls for the professional help of a marriage counselor, but getting in to see one isn't always easy. Marriage problems are all too common, and many clinics are overburdened with cases, forcing them to place clients on a waiting list.

Unable to get the help they need immediately, some couples may give up hope of reconciliation and go their separate ways. Others may not be able to afford the rates charged by area clinics and make the same decision.

The TORCH Community Mental Health Clinic, operated by a volunteer staff of professional counselors, social workers and psychologists, offers an alternative to such couples.

Manned by a volunteer staff of 13 professional counselors, social workers and psychologists, the TORCH clinic has no waiting list and fees are determined by ability to pay.

"WE DON'T believe in having a waiting list," said Robert Sorensen, one of the co-directors of the clinic. "That was one of the reasons why we established the clinic. Also, we never turn anyone down for financial reasons."

Fees charged by the clinic average about $10 per hour, Sorensen said, but the staff sees some clients for as little as $2 or $3 per hour.

Besides marriage counseling, the clinic offers a wide variety of other counseling services including therapy for children and adults, diagnostic testing for school problems and personnel evaluations, aid for school drop-outs, family counseling, vocational testing and guidance and community mental health education.

The TORCH clinic was established in 1967 with the aid of a three-year federal grant administered by School Dist. 21. Since the federal funds ran out, the clinic has operated on client fees, and support from local community organizations.

About half the referrals to the clinic are made by the staff of Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau in Wheeling. The other 50 per cent come from former clients.

"I'D SAY 95 per cent of the people we see are perfectly normal, not mentally ill, but who just need clarification of situations they're in or of issues within themselves," said Barry Brown, the other co-director of the clinic. Brown is also a counselor at Wheeling High School.

Instead of one central office, the clinic operates in rooms at the high school and Omni-House from 6 to 10 Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

Sorensen said there are no plans to establish a permanent TORCH clinic facility.

"If we set up a permanent facility, we just couldn't perform the same services for the fees we're charging now," he said. "We believe in spending money on services instead of facilities."

Appointments at the clinic may be arranged by calling Sorensen, principal of Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove, during the day at 841-1280, or at Wheeling High School Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 537-6500.

Straw clogs road's sewers

The new Wheeling Road extension was under water for a short time last weekend when straw laid along the roadside washed into the sewer grates.

"That was a minor problem," said Village Mgr. George Passolt. "What happened was the straw they laid along the roadside came off and plugged up the grates. It really was not a flooding problem."

Passolt said that as soon as the straw was removed from the sewer grates, the water on the roadway disappeared.

Two other intersections were under water for a brief time, Passolt said. At Merle Lane and Audry Court, and at Highland Avenue and Wolf Road, the water caused some problems for motorists after heavy rains Saturday morning. "Neither were enough to put up barricades," Passolt said. "It was so minor."

ACCORDING TO the manager, the biggest problem came from residents who were worried that the Buffalo Creek-Wheeling Drainage Ditch would overflow its banks. "The creek went up quite high, but we were able to keep it from causing any problems," Passolt said.

The manager credited recent flood control programs with helping to prevent flooding problems in the village. "On Wolf Road without them there definitely would have been (some flooding)," he said.

Meadows family waiting for MIA

The war is over for Americans, but in some homes the wait goes on. One of the more than 1,300 families with relatives missing in action in Southeast Asia is that of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Fryar of Rolling Meadows. Their son, Bruce, a Navy pilot, was shot down over Laos in December 1969. There's been no word for more than four years. The family is still hopeful and a sister, Mrs. Dawn Slice of Hoffman Estates, notes that search parties have not been allowed in Laos. "I'm not bitter," she said, "just very disappointed."

A Wheeling policeman has been suspended for a day, apparently as a result of two alleged drunk driving incidents in Buffalo Grove, Ill. The suspension came after The Herald disclosed Nelson's driving problems.

Mikva joins impeachment move

Impeachment wasn't an issue in the 10th District rematch this fall between U.S. Rep. Samuel Young and former congressman Abner Mikva. It wasn't an issue, that is, until Mikva jumped off the fence last weekend and declared that President Nixon must go. "This was too much," he said of the disclosure that the 18½-minute White House tape gap apparently was not an accidental erasure. "It appears the explanation the administration has to offer is some type of mysterious force. It appears there was some destruction of evidence, which is a very serious charge." Said Democrat Mikva: "The Presidency has to be salvaged and this appears to be the only way to do it." Young, a Republican who has supported Nixon, is reserving comment until an impeachment measure comes to the House floor.

School district officials are hopeful that the new data will encourage the state board to reverse its earlier decision.

Pols, pals keep low license plates

SPRINGFIELD, ILL. (UPI) — A low-numbered license plate? Well, in theory, anyone can get one. In practice, it's difficult — especially for the numbers "1" through "10."

According to a list released yesterday by Secretary of State Michael Howlett, none of the top 10 Illinois license plates changed hands between 1973 and 1974 license years.

That means, basically, that politicians and former politicians kept a firm grip on their prestigious plates.

No. 1, for instance, stayed with Dorothy Ogilvie, wife of former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie. At last report, the state's top nonofficial plate was affixed to a Chevrolet Vega.

MRS. OGILVIE first got the plate in 1972, several years after the Chicago Roman Catholic Archdiocese surrendered it on grounds it was too ostentatious. Then Secretary of State John W. Lewis kept the plate out of circulation until Ogilvie bought a car late in 1971.

No. 2 also belongs to a former governor — Otto Kerner. And yet another former governor's family — that of William Stratton — holds No. 6.

Past secretaries of state also show again on the top 10 list. Mrs. Alta Carpentier, wife of former Secretary Donald Carpentier, holds No. 3 and Margaret Hensey, secretary to former Secretary Paul Powell, has retained her No. 7 plate for another year.

Those assignments place six of the top seven plates in the hands of past officeholders, their families or friends. The other — No. 4 — is held by G. W. Cavanaugh of the Chicago Motor Club.

No. 8 was retained this year by Mary M. Ellis, widow of Oscar Ellis of East Moline. No. 9 was kept by Dr. Preston Bradley, a Chicago minister. And No. 10 went for another year to W. Ogden Vredenburg, a Springfield lumber magnate.

THE STUDY of low-numbered plates, as usual, produced some new connections this year. For example, a formerly obscure Chicago financier renewed his lease on No. 67. He is Anthony G. Angelos, the man Gov. Daniel Walker appointed state insurance director but who withdrew under heavy criticism.

For those well enough connected to get them in the first place, it's easy to hold onto the prestigious plates. State law provides that a person can renew his number indefinitely, provided he applies for it each year before a given deadline.

That provision, however, doesn't stop others from trying. "When someone with a two-digit plate dies, we have calls, letters and telegrams asking for the number before the body is cold," a secretary of state's employee said a few years ago.

And Mrs. Ruth C. Montgomery of Springfield, who has had No. 13 in her family since 1916, says she has been offered "fabulous sums of money for it. How much? Oh, I'd rather not say."

But, asked if the offers ranged to as much as $1,000, she replied, "Oh yes, much more than that."

1974 cars easily damaged, tests reveal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Crash tests show that 1974 model cars overall are no more damage-resistant than last year's models, and in some cases are worse, the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety said yesterday.

The institute since 1969 has tested seven U.S. auto models for damage in front, rear and side crashes at various low speeds.

"I regret to have to report today that overall, the progress (of previous years) has been greatly slowed, and for some models, stopped," institute president William Haddon Jr. testified before a House commerce subcommittee.

"Even worse, for others the progress has actually been reversed," he said.

THE POOREST performer in the tests this year was the Plymouth Fury, which sustained $119.75 in damage in the 5 m.p.h. front-into-barrier crash test. The Fury also sustained the greatest damage in the other barrier crash tests.

Cars sustaining the least damage were the AMC Gremlin and the Chevrolet Impala, with no damage at all in either the front or rear crashes at 5 m.p.h.

The other four models tested were the Ford Galaxie, the AMC Ambassador, the Chevrolet Vega, and the Ford Pinto. The Pinto also did relatively well in the barrier crashes.

Haddon said all models except the Fury showed encouraging results in the rear-end barrier crash, perhaps because of "slightly toughened" federal standards.

"But in 10 and 5 m.p.h. front-into-barrier tests, the designs of the 1974 models encouraged damage costing as much to repair, on average, as the comparable 1973 models," he said.

HADDON ALSO said that despite federal standards designed to prevent bumper mismatch in crashes between various makes of autos, "some 1974 model cars are so designed that in our tests their bumpers actually promoted under-ride and over-ride" in the 10 m.p.h. front-into-corner crashes.

The sides of 1974 models are so designed that repair costs in low-speed side crashes reached a "remarkable high" of an average $452.66 for the seven models tested, he said.

The institute was critical of the Transportation Department for its failure to set bumper crash standards for crashes below 20 m.p.h. So far, the institute said, the government has issued only "proposed" standards for 5 m.p.h. crashes.

Haddon said some manufacturers had proved they could produce cars that would resist damage in low-speed crashes, "but others are proving, by their expensive repair bills in the same impact tests, that in all too many cases manufacturers have decided to withhold that protection from their new car buyers."

Crash costs on '74 autos are listed

WASHINGTON — Following are test results on barrier crashes of 1974 model cars by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety:

The four figures following each car represent the respective dollar damage in 5 m.p.h. front-end, 5 m.p.h. rear-end, 10 m.p.h. front and 15 m.p.h. front barrier crashes.

Chevrolet Impala — 0, 0, 289.02, 709.23.
Ford Galaxie — 69.10, 0, 450.45, 982.06
Plymouth Fury — 119.75, 95.12, 1,061.99, 1,783.96.
AMC Ambassador — 19, 81.45, 255.93, 1,170.33.
Chevrolet Vega — 70.40, 67.80, 441.20, 1,071.33.
Ford Pinto — 4, 11, 268.60, 792.30.
AMC Gremlin — 0, 0, 205.79, 675.90.
Average — 43.18, 36.48, 424.72, 1,027.86.

Speed limit, lottery top agenda today

A reduction in the state speed limit and a speedup of the state lottery will be at the top of the agenda today as the General Assembly returns to work for a projected one-day session. The lawmakers will also handle two minor house-keeping issues to straighten out conflicts and oversights in laws passed earlier. Today's session was added to the calendar as a result of federal insistence on a 55 m.p.h. limit.

Tuition hike opposition vowed

Senate President William Harris said yesterday his party will oppose tuition increases proposed by the Illinois Board of Higher Education. Harris said the board recommended an increase of $30 per student at each senior public institution. The University of Illinois Board of Trustees, he said, already approved a $60 hike.

National health plan linked to tax

The administration's national health insurance proposal, scheduled to go to Congress soon, would require workers to pay income tax on health insurance premiums contributed by their employers, administration officials disclosed. The plan would retain Medicare, require employers to provide health insurance for workers, and offer government insurance subsidies for non-workers and the poor.

Study suggests beef-cancer link

A preliminary study in Hawaii suggests that beef may be a factor in cancer of the colon, one of the most common and fatal of all cancers, the National Cancer Institute said yesterday. The study stressed present findings are not sufficient to label beef consumption cancer-causing, but it may narrow the search area.

Nader: nuclear plant study suppressed

Ralph Nader said yesterday the Atomic Energy Commission has suppressed a secret study which concluded there were serious safety problems among the nation's nuclear power plants. The report found: five nuclear plants had deficiencies in emergency core cooling; seventy per cent of the plants had safety systems with defective switches; steam pressure reduction systems were improperly designed; an extensive safety-related problems have resulted from unsuspected problems with nuclear fuel for present reactors.

Foreign trade balance in the black

Spurred by a record trade surplus in December, the U.S. foreign trade balance moved into the black in 1973 after two deficit years, the Commerce Department said. If the Arab oil embargo is lifted, expanded U.S. purchases of petroleum is expected to cause another U.S. foreign trade deficit in 1974.

Astronauts scan earth and sun

The Skylab 3 astronauts, running so short of time they packed 28 working hours into one day, yesterday scanned the earth and sun with cameras and watched for cosmic light flashes in a surprise experiment. The pilots were on their 74th day in orbit and had only three days left for research in the final 11 of their mission.

Brezhnev in Havana for talks

Soviet Communist Party leader Leonid Brezhnev flew to Havana yesterday for talks with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro and what could be a high-level review of Communist strategy in Latin America. Communist leaders from all Latin American countries may be present for some of Brezhnev's talks. In addition, many diplomats from North Korea, Laos, Vietnam and other Asian countries are reported in Cuba.

Strikes throw London rails into chaos

Railroad workers, angry because they were not paid overtime Sunday even though trains were not running, staged wildcat strikes yesterday, throwing London commuter lines into chaos. Meanwhile, leaders of the nation's coal miners threatened to wreck coal mines by flooding them if miners approve a strike call. The bad news made the London stock exchange fall 14.5 points to 301.8, the lowest in seven years.

Watergate: Porter pleads guilty

From Herald news services
Herbert L. "Bart" Porter Jr., who clamy confessed to perjury before a nationwide television audience last spring, Monday formally pleaded guilty to lying to the FBI about the Watergate scandal.
Porter, the former scheduling director for President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign, waived indictment and pleaded guilty to a one-count criminal information filed last week by special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski.
U.S. District Judge William B. Bryant in Washington freed Porter without bond and postponed sentencing pending receipt of a probation report, expected to take several weeks. The crime carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison, a $10,000 fine, or both.

Porter's plea brought to 13 the number of men who have been convicted or pleaded guilty in the bugging scandal within the past year — not counting eight corporate executives who have admitted illegal donations to President Nixon's re-election campaign.
Three other men are awaiting trial on related federal charges and further majoir indictments are expected within the next month.

Meanwhile, officials of the Dade County, Fla., Miami prosecutor's office who came to Washington, bowed to a request by Jaworski to postpone their conspiracy investigation of three key Watergate figures until after March 1.
The Florida State's Attorney is investigating whether state conspiracy laws were violated when the Watergate bugging plot allegedly was approved at a meeting in Key Biscayne, Fla., March 30, 1972.

In other developments:
• The U.S. Bureau of Prisons said Monday that Egil "Bud" Krogh, former head of the White House "plumbers" who was sentenced last week for his part in the 1971 burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, will serve his six-month prison sentence at the Allenwood, Pa., federal prison farm.
• Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., said Monday there will be a vote in the House on whether to impeach President Nixon regardless of what the Judiciary Committee reports on the issue.

GAS-HUNGRY cars lined up outside the North States Oil Co., in Palatine, yesterday to get at a day morning as dealers tried to stretch their January allocations. Tighter conditions are seen.

Lines are long at area gas stations

Citgo Service, 10 E. Dundee Rd., probably will shrink to $2 today, according to manager Tom Klein. And in Buffalo Grove, Dan Rutkowski of Dan's Ranch Mart Mobil, Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads, said his station will be closed all day Wednesday and he expects to still be out of gas after Thursday.

In Washington, meanwhile, energy chief Simon appeared before a Senate subcommittee on intergovernmental relations and said his federal energy office will move this week to stabilize home heating oil prices. Price differences between domestic and imported oil have created sharp disparities in heating oil charges to consumers.

Simon warned that the nation was not over the winter heating oil crisis "or we would have already started shifting production back from middle distillates to gasoline."
Sen. Stevenson, in Chicago to urge support for Senate bills designed to roll back prices of domestic crude oil to December 1 levels, predicted that U.S. oil companies may become nationalized if price controls are not applied soon.

rahmane Khene, adding: "But they have not yet completely done so."
IN OTHER ENERGY developments, Saudi Arabian oil minister Ahmed Saki Yamani warned the U.S., Europe and Japan against uniting in an anti-Arab confrontation over oil.

Siege of Suez City lifted; Egypt controls road areas

From United Press International
Israel lifted its siege of Suez City and the Egyptian 3rd Army Monday, completing the first stage of its withdrawal from the West Bank of the Suez Canal. Egypt said its forces regained control of the Cairo-Suez road.

but no casualties were reported. Israel and Syria, which have not yet negotiated a troop disengagement agreement, also clashed Saturday and Sunday in the area.

Egyptian troops took over "the areas around" the road at 6 p.m. from United Nations troops who had moved in earlier in the day when the Israelis pulled out, a military spokesman in Cairo said.

The Israeli newspaper Ha'aretz said, meanwhile, that U.S. and Soviet intelligence uncovered a plot to overthrow Egyptian President Anwar Sadat engineered in recent weeks by Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy.

Contact was established with the formerly besieged Suez City and "our forces are now patrolling the area and clearing it from mines," the spokesman reported.

Under the Israeli-Egyptian disengagement agreement engineered by U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, all Israeli forces are to be withdrawn from the Suez Canal's West Bank by Feb. 21. By March 5, Egyptian forces are to be in control of both banks of the waterway, which has been closed since the 1967 war. Egypt is to thin its forces along the east bank and pull all surface-to-air missiles out of the desert.

The Israeli command said Syrian gunners fired several mortar shells at Israeli positions in the Golan Heights Monday.

A large government force tried to destroy rebel strongholds at Anloung Korng Ha and Porolum six miles south of Phnom Penh where the rebels are thought to have batteries of 105-mm howitzers used in attacks against the capital.

There were no reports of fighting from the islands, located about 200 miles east of South Vietnam and 200 miles south of China's Hainan island. Both sides have claimed the islands for decades and eight days ago fought a fierce land and sea battle for possession. The Chinese won and the South Vietnamese withdrew.

South Vietnam entered the second year of the official cease-fire Monday with fighting as fierce as ever. The Saigon military command said 143 Communists were killed in skirmishes during the 24-hour period ended at 6 a.m. The command said 16 government soldiers were killed and 24 wounded.

In neighboring Cambodia, Khmer Rouge guerrillas fired rockets, artillery shells and recoilless rifle fire into portions of the capital, a refugee camp and the area around Pochentong airport at dawn Monday, killing five persons and wounding 28. The casualty toll in four consecutive days of heavy guerrilla fire stood at 89 killed and 220 wounded.

Veteran benefit increases asked

From Herald news services
President Nixon asked Congress Monday for $13.6 billion in veterans benefits during the next fiscal year.

He asked for an 8 per cent increase in schooling benefits and for cost of living adjustments to VA pension payments which now go to 1 million veterans and 1.3 million survivors of veterans.

Nixon also recommended that Congress return the observance of Veterans Day to Nov. 11, date of the signing of the World War I armistice. The holiday was changed to the fourth Monday in October by a 1968 law.

Political briefs

2 incumbent Dems suffer in 'lottery'

Two incumbent Democratic representatives from the Northwest suburbs came out on the short end of the lottery for the top ballot position in the March 19 primary election.

However, a new law signed by Gov. Daniel Walker in September may lessen the advantage usually considered to be enjoyed by the candidate at the top of the listing.

Representatives Richard A. Mugalian, D-Palatine, and Jack B. Williams, D-Franklin Park, involved in three-way races for two nominations, wound up third on the ballot. Both Mugalian's 2nd District and Williams' 5th District normally elect only one Democrat in the general elections.

Ballot position is considered more important to Mugalian, a freshman legislator from the far northeastern corner of a district which stretches to the city of Elgin. Both newcomers in his race are from the Elgin area.

In the past, under the cumulative voting system, House candidates have been listed three times on voting machines, under headings: Vote for 1; Vote for 2; Vote for 3. Voting in the first category gave three votes to one candidate; in the second, 1½ votes to two candidates; and in the third, one vote to each of three candidates.

Therefore voters who might have intended to vote for two or more candidates, but who threw the first switch in the top category, would find the other switches locked.

Under the new law, the voting categories will be reversed on the ballot. So voters who throw the first lever will be able to cast two other votes, or change their vote without assistance.

Political observers believe this will reduce the advantage of the top ballot position, formerly considered to be worth 5 to 20 per cent of the total vote.

Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glenview, the only other Northwest suburban legislator involved in a primary contest, drew the top position on the ballot. There are no primary contests on the Republican side.

Board aspirants to speak

Four candidates for Cook County office will address the Schaumburg Township Republican Organization at a meeting at 8:30 p.m. Friday at GOP headquarters in the Churchill Square Shopping Plaza, Schaumburg.

Speaking will be Mary McDonald of Lincolnwood; Hal Tyrrell of LaGrange Park; and Ronald Larson of Merrionette Park, candidates for the Cook County Board of Commissioners; and Arthur Waddy of Chicago, candidate for the Cook County Board of (tax) Appeals.

Four legislators honored

Four suburban Democratic legislators were honored by the United Auto Workers recently for their role in passing more liberal rules for procedures of the Illinois House of Representatives.

Among those receiving special awards from Robert Johnson, UAW regional director, were representatives Eugenia Chapman of Arlington Heights, Richard Mugalian of Palatine, Aaron Jaffe of Skokie and Harold Katz of Glenview.

Rep. Michel slates talk

U.S. Rep. Robert H. Michel, R-10th (Peoria), will address the Women's Republican Club of the 10th Congressional District Friday, Feb. 18.

Michel, chairman of the National Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, will appear at a meeting at the West Park Community Center, 100 S. Western Ave., Park Ridge, at 1 p.m.

Carey to reveal donors

David E. Carey, candidate for Democratic nomination for state representative, has announced he will disclose sources of campaign contributions of more than $100.

Carey, Elgin, said he also would refuse to accept any contributions of more than $1,000.

An assistant superintendent for state governmental relations in the office of the state superintendent of public instruction, Carey is a candidate in the 2nd Legislative District, which includes the northern and western halves of Palatine Township.

MONEY TALKS

Let's get it straight about insurance of accounts

By Donald F. Merton, President
Arlington Heights Federal Savings & Loan Assn.

Every now and then it becomes necessary to call attention to the big lie that keeps repeating itself about insurance of accounts in savings and loan associations.

The big lie usually states 1) that insurance of savings in S&Ls is not as good as in banks or 2) that in the event of an S&L's default it may take as long as 10 years to get your money back.

Some bankers like to encourage the big lie. Newspaper columnist Martha Patton reported that she even heard it from a Federal Reserve System banker. We were once asked by a bank officer how we could conscientiously advise a widow to deposit her life savings with us when it could take her as long as 10 years, etc.

Let's take up the first part of the big lie, that banks' insurance is better than S&L's. The two Federal agencies which provide insurance of accounts to qualified institutions were established by Act of Congress in 1934. One is the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (for S&Ls); the other is the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (for banks).

The wording in the United States code providing for insurance settlement under the FSLIC and FDIC is practically identical. The amount of protection is the same (up to $20,000). So much for the first part of the big lie.

Now, for the second part: In both agencies, payment of each insured account in a defaulted institution is directed to be made "as soon as possible." In both agencies, payment is to be made either in cash or by a transferred account into another institution of the same kind in the same community.

According to Frank Evans, FSLIC chief of insurance settlement in Washington, D.C., in the entire 39-year-history of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation there have been 19 cases of default among more than 4,000 member institutions.

In each one of these 19 cases, every single savings depositor who submitted his application as requested received all of his insured savings in cash (by check) within ten days to three weeks of the default.

The option of transferring the insured account to another association instead of making outright payment has never been applied, Evans reports.

No saver protected by Federal insurance of accounts, whether in the FSLIC or FDIC, has ever lost a penny.

We suggest you clip this column and save it, because one of these days someone is going to approach you and ask if you know that it might take as long as ten years...

Bill asks for disclosure of RTA publicity money

by STEVE FORSYTH

A bill to force campaign financial disclosure by backers and opponents of referendums such as next month's Regional Transit Authority vote will be introduced today in the Illinois House of Representatives.

Rep. Cal Skinner, R-Crystal Lake, said he will propose the measure in today's one-day session of the General Assembly to find out who is providing the estimated $400,000 to $500,000 expected to be spent by RTA backers before the March 19 referendum.

"After I thought about the proponents' claims of the obvious merit of the RTA bill we passed in December, I became more incredulous that $5 million would be necessary to sell the voters of the six-county area," Skinner said in a statement.

"If RTA is so good, shouldn't the unqualified support of all four Chicago newspapers and the four major Chicago television stations and the major radio stations be enough?"

Skinner is a leader of the Citizens Committee on RTA, a group of legislators who voted "no" on the RTA bill and have promised to work for its defeat. The committee operates with the slogan, "Know RTA."

REP. DONALD TOTEN, R-Hoffman Estates, also a member of the committee, said they are working on a $10,000 budget to inform voters about the objectionable points of the bill. He said they don't have that much yet, but contributions are coming in, $5 and $10 at a time.

Totten said they are willing to disclose contributors.

Skinner said he has some questions about the financial backing of the RTA Citizens Committee for Better Transportation, which announced it might raise up to $500,000. They include:

- Are CTA bondholders, whose bonds rose 33 per cent in value during the RTA debate, the prime financiers of the proponents' campaign?

- Are railroad stockholders supporting the campaign so they can unload unprofitable commuter operations?

- How much money are the Loop real estate operators willing to put up to keep their offices full and their mercantile establishments booming?

- Are manufacturers of buses and commuter cars going to be major contributors?

- Will contributions come from those who are now buying old, but still serviceable CTA equipment?

GEORGE RANNEY JR., chairman of the RTA Citizens Committee for Better Transportation, said in a recent press conference that his group would have a full financial accounting. When asked if that included names of contributors, Ranney didn't answer directly, but said it would if that was considered part of a full financial accounting.

Totten said yesterday that the new bill proposed by Skinner would not make it past the speaker's table today, and likely would not get to committee until well after the RTA referendum date.

Coroner's jury rules fatal shot self-inflicted

A Cook County Coroner's Jury ruled yesterday that the Jan. 16 shooting death of a 30-year-old Buffalo Grove man was by a self-inflicted gunshot wound. The jury, however, did not say whether the shooting was accidental or suicide.

The man, Charles C. Bashford, of 849 W. Miller Ln., Buffalo Grove, was found slumped over the steering wheel of his snow-covered car in the village hall parking lot, 50 Raupp Blvd. He had been shot once in the right temple.

Police found a .22-caliber automatic pistol in his right hand. Authorities said Bashford apparently had been despondent because of a recent divorce.

Police said Bashford may have been dead for almost a day before his body was discovered by a public works employee. The coroner's office, however, was unable to pinpoint the exact time of death because the body had been in the cold auto for too long.

Bashford was employed in the personnel department at Baxter Laboratories.

one week per school to check out the system and there are 17 schools plus the Dist. 21 administration building included in it.

Eugene Wagner, Illinois Bell communications consultant, said he knew of difficulties with equipment supplied by both the telephone company and Temptron. However, he said, to his knowledge the telephone lines had been working since Dec. 6. Wagner admitted that there could be a new malfunction of which he was not aware.

LEE IS ASKING the school board to extend the new Feb. 15 completion deadline by three days to make up for the time he said has been lost due to the malfunctioning telephone lines.

Supt. Kenneth Gill said he would turn the request over to the school board for consideration at its Feb. 14 meeting.

Expressing his feeling about the situation, Gill said, "We're very conscious of trouble with the phone lines, but we were under contract for the system to be completed in September and we're way past that deadline. We recognize there were difficulties, but we also recognize Temptron's obligation to being this thing to a conclusion according to the terms of the contract."

General Caucus meets tonight

There will be a meeting of the School Dist. 21 General Caucus at 8 p.m. today at the district administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The caucus interviews and endorses candidates in local school elections.

Representatives of all nonpolitical groups in the district are invited to participate. For more information, call Ralph Camp at 394-5487 or Mrs. Frank Sacco at 537-8433.

The meeting was incorrectly reported as being scheduled for last night by The Herald.

Restaurant reports its safe stolen

Burglars took a safe early Saturday from Don Roth's Restaurant, 61 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling. Police said it contained employee tips.

The exact amount of the loss was undetermined, as is the means used to enter the restaurant. However, police believe the burglars might have broke in through a second floor window which had been held open with a hair spray can.

Youth charged in drug case

An 18-year-old Buffalo Grove youth was arrested Friday by Wheeling police and charged with possession of marijuana.

Arrested was Richard A. Manderscheid, 10 Oak Creek Dr. Police said an informant told them when and where they could find Manderscheid and that a quantity of marijuana was kept under the dashboard of his car. The marijuana allegedly was there and Manderscheid was arrested at 4:17 p.m. after police stopped his car at the Dunhurst Shopping Center.

Manderscheid is to appear Feb. 8 in Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Fight settled by police

Police quelled another fight Saturday night at the MacArthur Park Pub in the Lynn Plaza Shopping Center on Dundee Road in Wheeling.

The fight was settled in the parking lot by police shortly after they arrived about midnight. Nine days earlier, on Jan. 17, police also were called in to stop a disturbance.

Last year Wheeling Village Pres. Ted Scanlon warned the tavern owners that they would lose their liquor license if fighting continued at the tavern. No action has yet been taken by the village.

inches of rain fell Saturday morning. Passolt said he could not predict whether flooding would result if additional heavy rains fall in the area.

"It depends on how much precipitation and how fast it comes down," the manager said. He noted that the water in the creek dropped 15 to 18 inches yesterday morning.

Passolt said the village did not receive any calls about water in residents' basements, although one or two residents had problems with sanitary sewer back-ups.

Prospect Heights picks new library trustee

Mrs. George Kusch, 303 E. Olive St., Prospect Heights, is the newest trustee appointed to the Prospect Heights Public Library.

Mrs. Kusch's appointment fills the vacancy created by the December resignation of Quentin Robinson, who himself had been appointed in August after James Hansen resigned. Mrs. Kusch was elected treasurer of the library board soon after her appointment.

This April, Mrs. Kusch will be on the ballot, as will Mrs. C. E. Hardebeck and Anthony Gaddini. Gaddini was appointed to the board after Donald McGowan resigned last year.

500 used golf balls part of burglary loot

Five hundred used golf balls, a fishing rod and reel and an Army duffel bag were stolen recently from a storage locker in a Buffalo Grove home, police said.

Police added that the stolen items, owned by Douglas W. Hill, 655 Grove Dr., were worth about $100. They were stolen sometime between Jan. 13 and Sunday.

Wheeling police lieutenant gets 1-day suspension day by Vern Nystrom, chairman of the Wheeling Police and Fire Commission. He said that Guttilla called for the suspension, apparently after disclosure of the two December incidents.

Meanwhile, The Herald has been unable to learn what action, if any, has been taken against Wheeling Police Detective Joseph Earl Suel. Suel was involved in several unusual incidents including a tavern brawl in Rockton, Ill., for which he was found guilty of disorderly conduct.

Police said Nelson was stopped once while driving through Buffalo Grove and was found a second time with his car partially off the road just beyond the village limits. Both times Nelson apparently "had been drinking," Buffalo Grove police said.

NELSON ACKNOWLEDGED both contacts with the Buffalo Grove police, but denied he had been intoxicated on either occasion. Because of the two incidents, Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harry Walsh sent a letter to Nelson, warning that a third incident should never take place.

Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt yesterday refused to confirm or deny the report of Nelson's suspension on the record. He said any disciplinary action taken by the police chief is an "internal matter" and should not be aired publicly. "I don't have the time today," Passolt said when asked about the suspension. "And I don't know of anyone else who does. There's very little I will do to help you on this."

The Herald's disclosures of the two Nelson incidents is part of a continuing investigation of the policies and actions of the Wheeling Police Department.

Some are still waiting for men who went off to war

by TONI GINETTI

Mrs. Dawn Slice didn't need a special day Sunday to remember the men still listed as missing in action from a war in Southeast Asia which for most Americans ended last year.

Mrs. Slice is the sister of a MIA, Navy Lt. Bruce Fryar. Since December, 1969, when she learned that her brother had been lost in a bombing mission over Laos, Mrs. Slice and her family have been awaiting word on the fate of her brother.

Young Lt. Fryar, then 25, was a Navy pilot on his last mission before a rest and recreation layoff in Japan. He and his navigator, Lt. Nick Brooks, were last seen ejecting from their plane which had been shot down over Laos.

Fryar and Brooks are only two of more than 1,300 Vietnam War veterans still unaccounted for by the United States government. Sunday they were to be remembered on what had been proclaimed Missing In Action Awareness Day by President Nixon.

FAMILIES OF AREA MIAs met in Chicago Sunday for the observance. Mrs. Slice and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll E. Fryar of Rolling Meadows did not attend — but not because they are not concerned.

The family last year undertook a letter-writing campaign urging more than 300 individuals and organizations to write to congressmen and the White House to demand an accounting of the MIAs.

"As far as the senators and congressmen, the most we have ever gotten back is a form letter," Mrs. Slice said. "I feel now that they (the government) could be doing a lot more."

Mrs. Slice, who resides in Hoffman Estates, said the family has heard nothing from the government during the past year on Bruce's fate. His wife Diane, who lives in Virginia with the couple's young daughter, has apparently received no further information either.

"There is a Navy officer who contacts my parents very regularly, but he doesn't know anything more," Mrs. Slice said.

MUCH OF the information on the MIA situation the Fryars receive still comes from Voices in Vital America (VIVA), the organization which produced prisoner of war and MIA bracelets.

Mrs. Slice said, however, the organization is having its problems. "One of the women on the board has decided that there is no hope and is apparently trying to dissolve the group," she said. "But Mr. Brooks (the father of the navigator shot down with Fryar) says it should continue until all the families are answered."

The Fryar family is still hopeful they may yet learn that Bruce is alive. "Bruce was shot down over Laos and so far they have not allowed search teams to go into Laos," said Mrs. Slice, whose son, born with a twin sister six weeks after Fryar was shot down, is named for his uncle.

"My sister Marijean said yesterday she heard that ten newsmen who were listed as missing in action have apparently been found alive. They had not been accounted for, but apparently they recorded their voices," she said.

"I'm not bitter," she added of her family's continuing ordeal, "just very disappointed."

Budget warning deserves attention

State Comptroller George W. Lindberg has raised what he calls a "warning flag" concerning the fiscal condition of the state.

At the same time, Gov. Daniel Walker is indicating that he will come up with a new proposal for tax relief when he delivers his annual budget message to the legislature this spring.

Lindberg reported that state spending in the first six months of fiscal 1974 outran revenues by $160 million. Due to an unprecedented surplus of $387 million in the state treasury at the close of fiscal 1973, the state still showed a balance of $227 million.

The comptroller therefore concluded that the financial condition of the state remains sound. But he warned that an uncertain economic picture for the remaining six months of the year could quickly drain the state's resources.

The unexpected economic slowdown feared by Lindberg would result in decreased revenue for the state, and added expenditures, most in welfare costs.

With normal operating expenses of the state government running at more than $25 million per day, the $227 million treasury balance represents less than a 10-day cushion.

It seems obvious, then, that any tax-relief proposal must be approached with caution, however welcome it might appear to the governor or the taxpayers.

According to Lindberg's figures, the governor's estimate of spending from the general fund missed the mark by about $100 million for the first six months of this fiscal year.

It is also remembered that in his first budget message, Walker estimated that the state would spend $638 million less than the previous year, while actual figures indicated that spending would be up by $113 million.

Such discrepancies do not generate a lot of confidence in financial forecasts aimed at justifying tax reductions.

Of course, a misforecast of $10 million in a budget in excess of $7 billion is not crippling. But it does argue for caution before attempts are made to further reduce already declining revenue.

We share with all taxpayers the hope that the governor can find a means to achieve meaningful tax relief, and if he can he will have our hearty support.

But for the moment, we are concerned that all elected officials concentrate first on keeping the state on an even keel in a time of economic uncertainty.

Lindberg is well within his duties as the elected comptroller in offering advice to the governor in fiscal matters. The fact that the governor and the comptroller are of different political parties should be no impediment to their cooperative efforts to keep the public finances in order.

Lindberg's warning seems well-founded to us. We hope the governor will take it seriously. And we believe the people will forgive him for postponing tax relief if that is necessary to keep the state within its budget.

Dorothy Meyer's column

Dorothy Meyer

I once read a doctor's statement that modesty ruins more kidneys than alcohol, but one night last week I discovered something that's going to do more kidney damage than modesty and alcohol combined — the early closing of gas stations. And that emergency number you can call isn't going to help because that isn't the kind of emergency the emergency boys have in mind.

Since that night last week when I was driving with a full tank of gas but needed a gas station anyway, I've discovered that I'm not the only motorist who's been hurting lately.

One guy I know said that the only place open in his hour of need was a tavern and of course he felt obliged to buy a couple of beers after using the facilities. Which caused him to need another gas station an hour later at which time he luckily found another tavern. He didn't get home until dawn but his wife understood — she'd been through the same thing the night before, coffeeshop hopping all the way home.

It may well be that an early solution to the energy crisis will be brought about not so much through negotiations with the Arabs or Congressional hearings with the oil companies, but by a public outcry of the most basic of basic truths — when you gotta go, you gotta go. And stopping for a beer or a cup of coffee is obviously a poor solution.

Unless something is done soon, the kidney crunch could become an issue in upcoming elections.

Democrats will no doubt go for the labor vote and propose a national rest room force to man the gas stations around the clock, thereby creating employment as well as comfort for the masses.

Republicans will probably suggest that the manufacturers of pleasure boats and mobile homes retread to build Andy Gump booths and instead of a chicken in every pot they'll promise an Andy Gump on every road.

Then the Democrats will point out that unless the GOP does something about its promise to control crime on the streets the people will be in danger of getting mugged on their way to the Andy Gump. And the Republicans will retort with the prediction that as soon as there's a national rest room force there'll be a union and as soon as they unionize they'll strike and we'll be right back where we started — no rest rooms when the people need to rest.

In the meantime it's the public who suffers, especially families with small children. Even though long motor trips are not likely during the gas shortage, everyone knows that it doesn't take more than a run to the dime store to cause little kids to wait, "I hafta go," two minutes after you pull away from the house.

Maybe the answer is to have Kissinger travel by car and take the littlest of the Kennedy kids with him.

Washington window

Off-year vote 'critical'

by ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON — Before the pot really begins to boil for the 1974 congressional elections, there will be five special elections for vacant House seats in four states. Whoever wins them will be treated like conquering heroes when they get to Washington.

The first of the elections is Feb. 5 in Pennsylvania to fill the seat of the late Republican Rep. John Saylor. On Feb. 18, the seat vacated by Gerald R. Ford to take the Vice Presidency will be filled in Michigan. Then, in March, April and probably May, there will be special elections to fill three more vacant Republican seats in Ohio, Michigan and California.

Under ordinary circumstances, the five special elections would be of only passing interest because each of the seats has been regarded as safely Republican for some time. Even if the Democrats did snatch one or two of the vacant seats, the results would be put down as "local issues," and given little attention by politicians and commentators elsewhere.

But this is Year 2 of Watergate, and despite all the speculation about what that will mean in November, the political experts really don't have the foggiest idea what is coming. They do have the public opinion polls, but despite the sophistication of scientific sampling, politicians at heart don't trust anything but elections.

So they will seize on the results of the 1974 special elections as the revealed truth — especially if their party wins.

If, for example, Democrats should capture both the Saylor and Ford seats, there probably will be a burst of claims that Watergate did it, and that the GOP is in for a real disaster in the fall. And if the Republicans keep those two seats, the word will go out that whoever the voters might be blaming for the scandals in Washington, they are not taking it out on innocent Republicans who never got near the Democratic National Committee headquarters with rubber gloves.

There is a theory going about Washington that there are a large number of extremely nervous Republican members of the House who might find it expedient to vote in favor of impeachment this spring if it appears Nixon and/or Watergate is going to drag them down next fall.

So we should not be surprised, should the Republican candidates win in the first special elections, to find President Nixon standing at the bottom of the ramp at National Airport to personally welcome the members-elect and give them a neighborly lift into town.

This is not far-fetched whimsy. Back in 1957, when Sen. William Proxmire won a special election to fill the seat vacated by the death of Joseph R. McCarthy, the Democrats were so overcome with joy that no less a personage than the Majority Leader of the Senate, the Senior Senator from Texas, Lyndon Baines Johnson, rushed to the airport to greet the Wisconsin senator-elect on the day after the results were announced.

The presidency, of course, has become somewhat more regal since those days, but all things considered it probably can be said that Johnson in his Senate heyday was a figure commanding considerably more authority and awe in Washington than Nixon does today. (UPI)

She finds genealogy a fascinating study

How much do you know about about your background, have you ever been curious?

My hobby used to be collecting antiques, but for the past seven years I have been collecting historical and genealogical data. For the past seven years I have been collecting ancestors.

My father died when I was nine years of age. The only thing we knew about his family were the first names of his mother and sisters, all deceased, location unknown. No living relatives that we knew of. No Bible records, nothing to go on.

My interest in genealogy grew out of an insatiable curiosity about my lineage and I decided to do something about it. I started with a copy of "Know Your Ancestors" by Ethel Williams I borrowed from the Wheeling Public Library. This publication gave me a good idea of the type of records to research for genealogical data, such as birth and death records, marriage applications, obituaries from old newspaper issues, deeds, census records, etc. Once you familiarize yourself with the sources, a whole new world of information comes to light.

A search for records took me to our beautiful state capital at Springfield, where I was born. Although the magnificent state buildings left a lasting impression on my childhood memories, it was an exciting new experience to learn about the vast amount of historical and genealogical records hidden away in their archives.

I became a chartered member of the Illinois State Genealogical Society in 1968, this year of our state sesquicentennial celebration. Each Spring and Fall, the society holds a conference. Members get together for a luncheon and dinner, to hear prominent guest speakers and teachers, attend workshops and spend a lovely weekend with warm friends and neighbors.

It is a rewarding, informative encounter and we are always seeking new members. Various county and other societies are there to sell publications, offer assistance and make new friends.

My family surname is Glover. When I undertook this endeavor, I expected to trace back two or three generations to their place of origin in England. Little did I realize what a misconception this was to be. Tracking the Glovers has taken me to cluttered vaults and backrooms of old courthouses, down country roads to deserted overgrown cemeteries, to microfilm libraries and knocking on doors of total strangers. More important, it has taken me back through time and history to the settlement of Illinois. Back through an era of a young Abe Lincoln and the little settlements in the groves near New Salem, down to Madison County, then "The Land of Goshen" and finally south to "The Land Between The Rivers," "The American Bottom" where migration was rapidly taking place after the War of 1812.

I learned of the hardships of early pioneer life and the strengths and sacrifices of the people who settled here. I soon acquired a deep and abiding love and appreciation for this state of Illinois, my home. I have rubbed elbows with President Abraham Lincoln, Reverend Peter Cartwright, Governor John Reynolds, General George Rogers Clark and many others who have made it all possible.

My father was an interior decorator in Springfield, particularly gifted in gold leafing, frescoing and stenciling, popular at the turn of the century in churches and ornate public buildings. To my delight, an old city directory revealed

Fire protection 'vital'

Over the past 22 years we have owned two homes in Arlington Heights and for the past five years have lived in Elk Grove Village. In all three instances when shopping for our homes, of utmost importance to us was whether or not we would have local police and fire protection.

When we first came into this area there were many unincorporated areas which offered lower taxes and less expensive homes, and to a young couple purchasing their first home this was quite a temptation to buy in these areas. However, they offered NO local police or fire protection so we purchased in incorporated areas and paid the higher taxes. We are still more than willing to pay for this protection but we strongly object to the "pay for it after you get it" policy being offered unincorporated areas. Who do the people in unincorporated areas think buys and maintains equipment (which is very very expensive) and trains and supports the personnel to go with it? The people who live in incorporated areas and pay the municipal tax which is a part of our real estate tax, that's who.

We sincerely pray that we may never need either of these services, but if we do we guarantee you that we better not find out we were unable to obtain it because the equipment and men were out on a call in the "pay as you need it" territory.

A. A. Stedry
Elk Grove Village

from Bayou, Kentucky, to Bay City, Illinois Territory, and maintain the Glover Ferry Road. Early ferries were important gathering places, serving as mail stops, trading posts, sources of news, refreshment for the weary traveler and meeting places for lonely people.

Alas, my sojourn in Illinois has come to an end, for Reuben was sitting across the Ohio River in Livingston County, Kentucky, in 1810, waiting to take his place among honored names of early Illinois pioneers.

A most recent discovery takes me back through the "Dark and Bloody Ground" of Kentucky, through the Cumberland Gap, to Abbeville, South Carolina, during the Revolution. There is always much left to do. I wonder if this researcher will ever be contented to call it quits for there is always another branch of the family to delve into.

Much of my research has only been possible through the help of the fine staff at the Wheeling Public Library. The Inter-Library Loan System makes it possible for the researcher to bring most publications to his fingertips.

The Wheeling Public Library has scheduled a beginners' course in genealogy January 31 through March 7 at 7 p.m. with the cooperation of Harper College. A minimum enrollment is required, so hurry and sign up as soon as possible and join the others in searching for your ancestors.

Genealogy is a fascinating and rewarding hobby. It has helped me to understand more about myself and get acquainted with a family I could have known no other way.

Word a day

Communication

It's harder when deaf, but you can get a college degree

For a deaf person, attending college can be, at best a challenge — at worst an impossibility.

For 15 students at Harper College this year, it is a challenge. Harper has just completed its first semester as the only state supported college in Illinois which offers deaf students a chance to attend all its classes.

During the first semester of the program, Harper had an Iranian deaf student majoring in architectural technology, and had other students in medical technology, dental hygiene, fashion design, data processing and other areas, according to Elizabeth McKay, director of the program.

The students in the Harper program are supplied with a signing interpreter for each class and a fellow student in the class takes a double set of notes, Mrs. McKay says.

"We hope the student will sit in the front of the class where he can see the lecturer as well as the interpreter," Mrs. McKay says. The interpreter uses sign language to translate the lecture and also can translate for the student in class discussions if the student's speech is not good.

"At first the instructors are very wary of the interpreter because they think it will be a distraction," Mrs. McKay says. "But after the first week they're just part of the scenery."

THE STUDENTS also can work with a special teacher for tutoring and many of them do need extra help, Mrs. McKay says. "Some of our students do have low reading levels," she says. "This is not because of their deafness. I think it's due to the conflict in deaf education."

Two conflicting philosophies have developed over the years on the best way to educate deaf students, she explains. "Oralists" believe deaf children should learn to talk and read lips and should not be taught to sign. Other teachers have taught students to sign exclusively, without trying to teach them to talk.

The recent trend has been toward "total communication," a system of educating deaf students using both speech and sign. The total communication philosophy is used in the Harper program and in the high school program at Hersey in Arlington Heights. Hersey serves deaf students from throughout the area.

"Research shows that only 20 to 30 per cent of a conversation is picked up if you lip read, but there are still avowed oralists," Mrs. McKay says. "One of our secretaries met a woman who said she wouldn't send her daughter to Hersey because they use sign."

The students enrolled in the Harper program, however, are enthusiastic. "It's wonderful to watch the students change," Mrs. McKay says. "They come here very quiet and withdrawn and they are becoming more and more animated." One girl told her, "It's the first time I ever learned anything."

HEARING STUDENTS at Harper have easily accepted the deaf students as classmates, Mrs.

McKay says. The student senate sponsored a workshop this fall to introduce students to sign language and the college offers regular classes in signing.

The Harper program is patterned after a deaf education program at Golden West Community College in Huntington Beach, California. The program there grew from 38 students in 1970 to 124 students last year.

Growth of the Harper program is still uncertain, Mrs. McKay says. Three new students will be added to the original 15 during the second semester and word is starting to spread throughout the Chicago-area deaf community. "I've gotten calls from as far away as South Holland," she says.

Future growth of the program will depend on future funding, Mrs. McKay says. The Harper board last spring authorized $20,000 for this year's program and "it probably isn't going to be enough," she says.

In addition to college support, the deaf program has also attracted the attention of community groups. Last fall, the Northwest Woman's Club contributed $150 to the program.

There is also some possibility of federal funding, Mrs. McKay says, even though deaf education is often neglected. "The department of health, education and welfare have money available for media facilities for the handicapped, but almost everything is for the blind or physically handicapped," she says. "The deaf have a real battle."

"JUST PART OF the scenery," is the way the director of the Harper college hearing impaired program describes the signing interpreters like Linda Andrews (center) who accompany deaf students to classes. Linda interprets for Donna Krenn.

Hersey band will perform in Minnesota

The Hersey High School band will perform with Doc Severinsen in two performances this weekend in Moorhead, Minn.

The band will perform as part of the 25th Annual Northwest Band Clinic at Moorhead State College. It is the second consecutive year the band has performed for the clinic.

Doc Severinsen of the NBC orchestra is the featured soloist for the clinic. He will appear with his own group, "Now Generation Brass and Today's Children," in addition to his appearance with the Hersey band.

Holy Family names Fiore business head

William Fiore of Arlington Heights has been named director of business operations at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

He has worked as internal auditor and controller of two Ohio hospitals and most recently was manager of cost accounting and forecasts at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

Junior Volunteers serve in various departments of the hospital including reception areas, flower and mail room and messenger service.

Spring classes sign up time

Registration is open for spring continuing education classes offered by High School Dist. 214.

More than 100 courses ranging in cost from $10 to $25 are scheduled. Most courses begin this week and run for 10 weeks. Registrations are being taken at the district administration building, 790 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect, or by mail.

Secretaries' pre-exam class

A class to prepare secretaries to take the Certified Professional Secretary examination next spring will be offered at Harper College today through April 29.

The refresher course will be offered from 7 to 10 p.m. on Monday. Fee for the course is $28 for in-district students and $67.44 for out-of-district students, plus a $3 lab fee.

The certification exam will be given May 3 and 4. Registration for the course may be made through the office of continuing education at the college or on the first night of class.

Flannery beams spade contract

We don't really recommend that you, our readers, rush to play the Flannery convention. It does complicate bidding but if you have a partner who will play the convention you can have a lot of fun and some mighty good results with it.

The opening bid of two diamonds shows five hearts, four spades and 12-18 high-card points. Thus a Flannery two-diamond opening is a picture bid and with many hands responder can place the contract.

Today's hand is a good example. South knows that his partner holds nine cards in the major suits. That leaves him with just four cards in the minors so that if all North's high cards are in the majors he must have the ace of spades and ace-king of hearts so four spades will be a good contract. There is no slam and no need to shilly-shally. South bids the spade game.

Since spades break 3-2 and hearts 4-2 this spade contract wheels in. South wins the diamond lead, draws trumps; goes after hearts and makes only four since he must use his last trump to ruff one of dummy's hearts. There is nothing remarkable about getting to this game, but we can assure you that it would not be reached at over a quarter of the tables in a strong duplicate game.

VD usually contracted through sexual activity

I have heard different versions of how venereal diseases are contracted, that gonorrhea is local and contracted only by actual contact and that the germs cannot live outside the body. However, I have read that it may be contracted by heavy kissing if your mother had the disease. Apparently, it could not be contracted in any other way.

I am advised that syphilis is a blood disease and contracted by receiving the germ through any possible break in the skin, whereby the germ could enter the bloodstream; evidently, these can survive outside the body. What tests are necessary to determine if one has either of these diseases?

In this day of widespread-venereal disease, it is important to understand clearly how they are spread. It is usually from sexual activity—but not always.

Gonorrhea is almost always a result of sexual activity. It can be passed by the mother to the baby at birth, particularly affecting the baby's eyes. Rarely infant and pre-adolescent girls have been infected by contact with towels or linens that have been contaminated with gonorrhea.

This has caused rare outbreaks of gonorrhea in an institution. The germ is particularly fond of mucous linings, and that is why it attacks the urinary and genital tract. You will not have a tendency to get gonorrhea later in life from heavy kissing, just because either of your parents had the disease.

Incidentally, having recovered from an attack of gonorrhea does not confer immunity. You can get it again if you are exposed.

Syphilis is caused by the corkscrew-shaped germ called a spirochete. It can be disseminated by the bloodstream in the course of the infection. Infected blood is one way of transmitting it. However, blood is not essential. Moisture is. It is usually transmitted when infected moist droplets are passed from an infected person to an uninfected person. A sore on the lip from syphilis could be a way of transmitting the disease to another person.

RARELY AN innocent is infected, for example, by a moist droplet on a glass from an infected person. This is rare because the germ cannot survive long outside the body and not at all without moisture.

In most cases, it is transmitted by sexual activity. I should mention that even untreated syphilis cases are not always able to transmit the disease. It is most contagious only during a limited time that the person has it, even though the disease may progress to cause a great damage to the infected person.

Gonorrhea is usually diagnosed by a smear of secretions on a glass slide. By special staining techniques, the organism can be identified. There are some new collection methods that have made it easier to do this as an office procedure.

Syphilis is diagnosed by blood tests. A chemical reaction (serology) test is used to find most cases. You can identify the germs from an early sore caused by the infection.

Pupils see teachers wed

St. Joseph the Worker Church in Wheeling was filled with children of all ages for the holiday wedding of Karen Mangan of Wheeling and Michael Zivic of Chicago. Some were first graders from Robert Frost School, Mount Prospect, and some sixth graders at Dempster Junior High, also in Mount Prospect. They were there to see the wedding of their teachers.

The bride, daughter of the Joseph Mangans of 179 Cindy Lane, teaches first grade at Frost School and met her bridegroom while he was also teaching there. He is now a sixth grade teacher at Dempster Junior High.

KAREN AND MICHAEL were married on Dec. 22, just one year after their first date. The afternoon ceremony was followed by a reception for 150 at the Camelot Restaurant, Des Plaines. Then the newlyweds honeymooned in Florida and are making their home in Elk Grove Village.

Sue Hopkins of Champaign, Ill., was Karen's matron of honor. Barb Bergslien, Arlington Heights; Darlene Zaczek, Chicago; and Marilyn Stapleton, Wheeling, were bridesmaids.

Sue is the bride's cousin, and Darlene was her roommate at Northern Illinois University. Karen graduated from Northern in 1972 after attending Wheeling High School.

Michael, son of the Joseph Zivics of Chicago, chose Tom Stengren, Arlington Heights, as best man. The couple's brothers, Tom and Ken Mangan and Steve Zivic, along with Tony Turek, Hanover Park, were ushers. Tony was the groom's roommate at Southern Illinois University.

Married during the holidays

Following their Dec. 22 wedding Robert Allan Schmidt of Schaumburg and his bride, the former Freda Edwards, are back at their teaching jobs. He at Collins School in Schaumburg where he also serves as assistant principal, and she at Murphy School in Round Lake where she teaches third grade.

Freda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Van Buren, Ingleside, Ill., and Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Schmidt, South Hadley, Mass., honeymooned on a tour of the New England states and are now residing in Schaumburg.

Their wedding took place in Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Lake Villa, at 6:30 p.m. with Shirley Welnick, Palatine, as maid of honor, and the groom's brother, Dennis, Whittier, Calif., as best man. Barbara Lykkesbek, Ingleside, and Mrs. Richard Stueber, Round Lake, were bridesmaids. Laura Johnson, Ingleside, was junior bridesmaid and Amy Stueber, Round Lake, was flower girl.

Groomsmen were Dennis Sampolinski, Schaumburg; Richard Stueber, Round Lake; and Richard Schiemann, Skokie.

The bride is a graduate of Eastern Illinois University and the groom a graduate of Concordia Teachers College, River Forest.

Forest View graduates marry in Mount Prospect on Jan. 25

In a five o'clock ceremony Jan. 5 in Trinity United Methodist Church, Mount Prospect, Nancy Nelson became the bride of Charles Robert Green Jr. Both Nancy and Bob are '71 graduates of Forest View High School and since graduation Nancy has been employed as a secretary at Little City in Palatine and Bob at United States Dynamic Plastics in Wheeling.

Nancy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maryn Nelson, 1302 Robert Drive, Mount Prospect, and Bob is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Green, former residents of Sunset Drive in Mount Prospect who now make their home in Rochester, Ind.

For her double ring wedding Nancy wore a white velvet Empire gown trimmed with hand-made satin appliques and pearls. Her long train was lined in the satin and her veil was held by a headpiece covered in velvet with satin appliques.

A PINK CAMEO pendant that originally belonged to her great-grandmother was Nancy's "something old." A colonial bouquet of white roses, Fuji mums, stephanotis and baby's breath completed her bridal ensemble.

Nancy's sister, Jayme Lullo of Jacksonville, N. C., was matron of honor, and Pat Green, a sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. Both wore dark blue velvet gowns trimmed with white lace in the same pattern as the bride's gown. Dutch caps covered in matching velvet and colonial bouquets of mixed white flowers with dark blue straw flowers completed their ensembles. The groom's sister, Susan, was soloist.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Green

Joe Knack, Wheeling, was best man, and ushers were the bride's brother, Chris, and John Traskus, both of Mount Prospect.

A reception was held at the Camelot Restaurant in Des Plaines. After a short honeymoon the newlyweds are residing in a Wheeling apartment.

Baking takes time, patience

Dear Dorothy: I love to bake, but the fun has been spoiled a few times lately by loaf cakes splitting down the middle — and some other cakes rising right in the center. It's obvious you're a good baker and you may know what might be going wrong. — Beverly Garcia.

Flattery will get you everywhere with me, Beverly. Are you remembering to make an indentation in the center of the batter? This is a key step in getting the mixture to rise evenly. Only other thing I can think of in your case is that your oven might be too hot. Had it checked lately? For those new to baking, a few other tips may be in order. Precise measuring of ingredients is vital. Proper beating is also highly important. All-purpose flour should not be substituted for cake flour without making a proper adjustment. Pick the right size pan. Don't jar the cake in the baking. Baking pans vary in heat absorbency and if one is using dark (or glass) pans, the oven temperature can be lowered 25 degrees. Beverly and I will concede that baking takes time, patience and devotion — but the results often are worth every minute of the "hope-it-will-make-it" willies.

Before I joined the
Savings Plan all I could save was string.

When it comes to saving money, most of us can use all the help we can get.

Joining the Payroll Savings Plan is one easy way to force yourself to save. When you sign up, an amount you specify is set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. It's automatic. Everything is done for you.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—five bonds, 5 1/2% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra 1/2%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Stick with the plan and before you know it you'll have a bankroll waiting. That's when you'll find you can do a lot more with money than you can with string.

Take stock in America.

New Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

Rev. Paul Grimes

The Rev. Dr. Paul Walter Grimes, 70, of Des Plaines, died suddenly Saturday morning in Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines. He was born in Utica, Ind., May 26, 1903.

Visitation is today from 6 to 10 p.m. in Lain and Son Funeral Home, 5501 N. Ashland Ave., Chicago.

The body will lie in state tomorrow in West Ridge United Methodist Church, 2301 W. Lunt, Chicago, from 11 a.m. until time of services at 1 p.m. Officiating will be the Rev. Edgar Hiestand Jr., the Rev. Robert Matthews, the Rev. Howard Benson, the Rev. James Ewing, the Rev. Theoburn Anderson and the Rev. Robert Bruhl. Burial will be in Acacia Park Cemetery, Chicago.

Surviving are his widow, Helen L., nee Andersen; two sons, Paul W. Jr. and Mark W., both of Des Plaines; two sisters, Mrs. Ruth (Raymond) Ewing and Mariam Grimes, and a brother, John W. He was preceded in death by a brother, Edward L.

Since 1970, the Rev. Grimes has been minister of visitation of Trinity United Methodist Church, 605 W. Golf Rd., Mount Prospect, and prior to that he was the pastor of West Ridge United Methodist Church, Chicago, for 34 years. In 1939 he became the youngest president of the Chicago Methodist Ministers Association.

He was nationally known as an evangelical preacher and delivered sermons in every major city in the United States and Hawaii. After his graduation from North Central College in 1925, he graduated from Garrett Theological Seminary in 1928, and received his doctor of divinity in 1957 from Philander Smith College, Little Rock, Ark.

The Rev. Grimes was a chaplain of Goodwill Industries of Chicago, and he also started the telephone "Dial-a-Prayer" program in Chicago in the 1930s. He was a 32nd Degree Mason.

Family requests, memorial donations may be made to the West Ridge United Methodist Church; Trinity United Methodist Church; Goodwill Industries or Philander Smith College, Little Rock, Ark.

Lee J. Howard, 73, of Arlington Heights, a retired Cook County Auditor with 40 years of service, died yesterday in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

Visitation is today from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, and tomorrow from 2 to 9:30 p.m.

Funeral Mass will be said at 10 a.m. Thursday in Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Church, 432 S. Mitchell Ave., Arlington Heights. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery, Evanston.

Elk Grove bounces Hinsdale Central

by JIM COOK
Gymnastics Editor

Scott Harriett is only a pint-sized trampolinist on Elk Grove's gymnastics powerhouse, but his king-sized 7.85 routine Friday night helped paced the Grenadiers to a scintillating 147.44 to 144.99 victory over four-time defending state champion Hinsdale Central.

"As soon as Scotty hit, I knew we had a good chance to beat them," elated Elk Grove head coach Fred Gaines said. "Of course, Dave Hadley followed with an exceptional set on tramp and our parallel bar and ring came through real strong."

In bouncing to his best score of the season, Harriett maintained control and position on the bed and "stuck" his double-full, double-back Randolph landing.

While Harriett did have a hand in getting the adrenalin flowing for Elk Grove toward a new school scoring record, he certainly wasn't alone.

The entire Grenadier tramp quartet shrugged off the pressure of the monumental meet and all achieved new personal highs. Hadley led the parade with a booming 8.6 while sophomores Matt Damore (6.65) and Gene Christensen (5.05) added key support.

Hinsdale didn't appear headed for only its fourth loss in nine years before a home crowd. Red Devil Pat Gunning clicked for an 8.5 to spearhead a 23.75 to 21.45 Hinsdale lead after free exercise and Jim Black's 8.45 padded the margin as Hinsdale opened a 46.55 to 42.85 cushion after side horse.

Only Bill Bosslet's 8.05 on the floor and Tom Chen's big 8.15 on horse for Elk Grove matched Hinsdale's blistering pace.

Bosslet's picture-perfect 8.9, Steve Phillips' 7.8 and Mike Broderick's 7.65 put horizontal bar into the Grenadier win column, 24.35 to 23.70, but still left Hinsdale protecting a 76.25 to 67.20 advantage.

Elk Grove literally bounced back on the heroics of its tramp team which outscored the Red Devils, 23.10 to 18.50 and afforded the visitors their first and decisive lead of the night, 90.30 to 88.75.

Although Hinsdale barely won parallel bars, 24.85, to 24.50, Elk Grove tensely maintained the overall advantage, 114.80 to 113.60, off new personal peaks by Bosslet (8.6) and Damore (7.5) while Dave Neimeyer contributed a steady 8.4.

With the balance of the meet hinging on the concluding rings competition, Elk Grove proved superior, 24.85 to 23.50 as Jack Henry registered a booming 8.75, Bosslet a key 8.45 and George Behan a clinching 7.65.

Hinsdale's Gunning edged Bosslet in all-around honors, 7.89 to 7.79, but it wasn't enough to sway the final score.

"We've still got a lot of work to do, but this should put us in a positive frame of mind," Gaines said. "We had some misses on the floor and on horse that we'll have to polish, but anytime you beat a team like Hinsdale, you have to be pleased."

A GIANT STEP in Elk Grove's stunning 147.44 to 144.99 victory over Hinsdale Central came when all-around ace Bill Bosslet clicked for an 8.9 on high bar.

Injuries riddle challengers

Hersey shatters 150 mark

by JIM COOK
Gymnastics Editor

Peaks and valleys highlighted a full slate of Mid-Suburban League gymnastics dual meets Thursday night.

Topographically speaking, unbeaten Hersey was a mountain range in itself as the Huskies soared to an incredible 150.81.

The booming tally is the best in the state this year and ranks right beside Hersey's stunning 151.56 achieved against four-time defending state champion Hinsdale Central last year.

Others joining the mountain range with their season highs were Arlington's 135.80, Wheeling's 124.31, Schaumburg's 112.29, Forest View's 98.85 and Buffalo Grove's 96.48.

But in between the mountain crests were valleys in the form of injuries. Hardest hit was Rolling Meadows which was staggered by the news that defending state all-around champion Mike Godawa has contacted either a severe case of strep throat or infectious mononucleosis.

"The doctor took a blood test over the weekend, so we'll know for sure later in the week," a disbelieving Mustang head coach Vic Avigliano said.

"He's been running a 103-degree temperature and he didn't sleep at all last week from Sunday to Thursday. We also missed Alex Gimbut (stitches in his hand) and Dave Gauger (band commitment)."

At Arlington, Tom Chapman sadly reported that his parallel bar and ring ace Gary Glader broke his hand in warmups and will be sidelined for about three weeks. And Wheeling's state meet parallel bar finalist Bill Harvel suffered a pulled shoulder muscle.

HERSEY 150.81
CONANT 125.19

Hersey head coach Don Von Ebers juggled his lineup slightly, employing Colin Treacy in free ex and Brian Covelli as his second all-arounder. The Huskies rode floor ex scores of 8.8 by Ron Mkos, 8.4 by Keith Oehlsen and 8.05 by Kevin Muenz to a whopping 25.25 total.

Bruce Freedman paced horse with an 8.8, John Ludwigen hit on high bar for an 8.85, Mike Kropp bounced on tramp for an 8.45, Mike Murphy (8.7), Jeff Meessmann (8.2) and Muenz (8.0) combined for 24.90 on p-bars and Dave Sommerfeld headed rings with a 7.95.

Conant countered with Tim Dern's 6.5 in free ex, 7.7 on high bar, 7.65 on p-bars and 6.75 on rings, Jerry Hawkenson's 7.1 on horse, Tom Hall's 7.55 tramp performance and Mark Mueller's 7.15 on rings.

ELK GROVE 142.17
BUFFALO GROVE 90.48

"It wasn't exactly what we were looking for," Elk Grove coach Fred Gaines laughed as his Grenadiers tuned up for the decisive Hinsdale victory. "We were shaky and missed quite a bit."

Despite the handicaps, Bill Bosslet turned in a nifty 8.02 all-around average off an 8.4 free ex, 6.25 horse, 8.85 high bar, 8.1 p-bar and 8.5 rings display. Mike Heiberger added an 8.15 on horse, Dave Niemeier an 8.65 on p-bars and Jack Henry an 8.55 on rings.

In ringing up its new school record, Buffalo Grove counted Phil Laier's 6.15 in free ex, Paul Schultz' 5.65 on horse, Wayne Dulin's 5.45 on high bar and 5.4 on p-bars, Mike Rine's 5.3 on tramp, and the 6.55 and 5.2 by Brian Ficzek and Mark Farrington, respectively, on rings.

ARLINGTON 135.80
FOREST VIEW 98.85

In Glader's absence, Arlington was buoyed by Don Marquis' 7.55 and Drew Parlee's 7.5 in free ex, Nick Koehnke's 8.05 and Chris Freas' 8.55 on horse, Parlee's 7.5 on high bar, Bob Flubacher's 8.0 on tramp, Mark Titre's 7.05 on p-bars and Dan White's 7.75 and Jim Nolte's 7.7 on rings.

Forest View rallied to its best off John Scola's 6.7 in free exercise, Kevin Harvey's 7.75 on horse, John Buyers' 6.65 on high bar, Rich Valentine's 7.15 on tramp, Kevin Gawne's 7.05 on p-bars and Valentine's return performance which netted a 7.05 on rings.

WHEELING 124.31
PALATINE 81.34

Wheeling overcame a very low tramp event score with Dennis Reiter's 7.9 in free ex, Jim Styles' 7.65 and 7.55 on high bar and parallel bars, respectively, Tom Antoni's 7.55 on both p-bars and rings and anchorman Jim Scott's meet-high 8.35 on rings.

Palatine welcomed the return of injured Larry Evensen who registered a 7.35 on parallel bars and got a supporting 7.4 by Paul Sunseri and 6.85 by Dan Flick on rings, a 5.8 by Bob Garland in free ex and a 6.35 by Bob Gran on high bar.

ROLLING MEADOWS 121.00
SCHAUMBURG 112.29

The Mustangs couldn't hide Godawa's absence, but still got steady performances from a supporting cast. Blaine Dahl nearly reached perfection with an 8.95 on horse while teammate Dave Gurka contributed 7.85. Greg Sharon hit 7.15 in free ex, Keith Liszewski 7.0 on high bar, Jim Losito 8.4 on tramp, Terry Conroy 7.65 on p-bars and Steve Gallis 7.5 on rings.

Schaumburg's new school record was achieved by Rich Ninow's 8.05 in free ex and 7.2 on tramp, and Asle Klemma's 7.9 on high bar, 8.05 on p-bars and 7.7 on rings. Klemma averaged 7.09 in all-around for coach Gary LaRocco.

PROSPECT 117.57
FREMONT 82.42

Prospect's success was derived from Doug Zahour's 8.05 on the floor, Steve Scheibel's 7.85 on horse, John McBride's 7.55 on high bar, Bob McKee's 7.75 on tramp, Curt Cederberg's 7.7 and John Jackson's 7.1 on p-bars and Paul Shively's 8.15 on rings.

Fremont fought back behind Dale Burrow's 7.95 and Dick Morris' 7.3 in free ex, Mike Baldocchi's 7.4 on p-bars and 6.65 on rings and Morris' 7.2 on tramp.

Weekend warriors capture 8 of 11

Mid-Suburban League gymnastics teams ventured outside the conference for eight victories against only three defeats in a heavy weekend of competition.

Injuries couldn't prevent Arlington from scoring a 136.93 to 116.31 triumph over Homewood-Flossmoor. The althng Cardinals were paced by the side horse team of Greg Burmeister (8.55), Nick Koehnke (8.05) and Chris Freas (8.2) while Bob Flubacher contributed 8.55 on tramp, Dan White 8.15 on rings, Don Marquis 7.9 on the floor and Drew Parlee a 7.6 on high bar and 7.35 on parallel bars.

Without all-around ace Mike Godawa, Rolling Meadows generated enough support to defeat Waukegan, 133.01 to 109.81. Blaine Dahl and Dave Gurka connected for 8.9 and 8.0 on side horse, respectively, while Jim Losito hit 8.3 on tramp, Terry Conroy 7.95 on p-bars and Steve Gallis 7.45 on rings.

Wheeling enjoyed a laughter as it shattered Lake Forest's one-man team, 117.99 to 9.12. Dennis Reiter clicked on the floor for an 8.15, Jim Styles notched 8.2 on high bar and 8.0 on p-bars and George Scott scored a 7.8 and Mike Reblin a 7.6 on rings.

Schaumburg earned a tense 108.28 to 101.41 triumph over Glenbard North as Rich Ninow's 8.55 and Jim Buckley's 8.4 spiced floor exercise before Asle Klemma took over with an 8.6 on high bar, 7.8 on p-bars and 7.0 on rings for a 6.76 all-around average.

Forest View talked 96.52, but was stunned by Addison Trall's whopping 132.77. Kevin Harvey soared to 8.25 on horse, John Scola 6.85 in free ex, John Buyers 6.5 on high bar, Bob Walsh 7.1 on tramp and Kevin Gawne 6.9 on p-bars in defeat.

Fremont approached the century mark with 89.73, but yielded to Mundelein's 111.83 despite Dale Burrow's 8.0 and Dick Morris' 7.35 in free ex, Mike Baldocchi's 7.0 on high bar and 7.35 on p-bars and Morris' 7.25 on tramp.

Palatine tallied 86.88 and earned a split for the afternoon — beating Wheaton-Warrenville's 41.19, but losing to Lake Park's 104.58. Pirates Dan Flick and Paul Sunseri paced rings with 7.65 and 7.05, respectively, Larry Evensen hit 6.75 on p-bars and Bob Garland 6.15 on the floor.

Prospect's 112.40 insured a double triumph over Barrington's 107.66 and Wheaton North's 68.20 as Doug Zahour and Steve Scheibel hit 7.4's on floor and horse, respectively, Jim McBride spun 8.1 and Bob McKee 7.6 on high bar, Curt Cederberg, 7.05 on p-bars and Paul Shively 7.9 on rings.

HARPER SPARKLER Jenny McCurdy paced a triangular sweep over Oakton and DuPage with a winning 71.95.

Harper girls land 1st win

The Harper Junior College Women's Gymnastics team didn't waste much time landing its first triangular victory of the season.

Having finished second against Triton and Kiskadee in December, coach Martha Lynn Bolt's youthful squad captured honors over Oakton and the College of DuPage in only its second outing.

Harper tallied 71.95 to Oakton's 70.45 and DuPage's 45.10 in a "vastly-improved performance," according to Miss Bolt. Harper started strong with Jenny McCurdy tumbling to a blue ribbon in floor exercise with a 7.15, her best score ever. Nancy Brooks contributed 6.65, Carrie Hubbard 6.6, Sandy Paster 6.4 and Mary Jo Koertges 4.9.

The momentum carried over to vaulting where Carrie notched first with an impressive 7.45. Sandy added a 6.1 and Nancy a 3.95. On uneven parallel bars, Sandy notched 6.3, Mary Jo 5.0, Carrie 4.95, Jenny 4.45 and Anne Thomas 3.85.

Carrie also headed balance beam with a 6.3 while Anne offered support with a 5.95, Jenny a 5.55 and Nancy a 5.1. Carrie emerged on top in the all-around competition with a 25.30 total.

But there was sad news on the intermediate level. Martha Seitz, competing in her final meet for Harper before her scheduled move to Colorado, soared to a 6.45 on balance beam before suffering a severe sprain in her final run in free ex. She was unable to complete the routine as well as vault.

Harper will get a quick acid test Friday when it challenges highly-regarded Triton and Oakton at Triton.

SWINGING COWBOY Greg Burmeister proves why Arlington might house the best side horse team in the state after scissoring to an 8.55 average in the Cards' triumph over Homewood-Flossmoor.

Birchwood Ladies entry rolls 2902 for big prize

Record-setting show tops women's tourney

Records are made to be broken, but the Birchwood Ladies entry really did it up in style Sunday.

The girls who bowl out of Striking Lanes and call themselves the Tom Collins smashed the tourney scoring mark and became the first team in history to top 2900 in the Paddock Publications women's feature.

Fashioning a 2320 scratch and adding 582 pins in handicap, the Birchwood team finished with a cushion of 23 pins in the competition at Rolling Meadows Fair-lanes Bowl.

It had to be a very discouraging day for the Super Chickens, who bowled a strong 2879, also over the former tourney record of 2868 set in 1967, but still had to settle for runnerup honors.

The top four teams equalled the winning performance of 1973 as the women showed some impressive bowling over the three sessions.

But it was that amazing performance by the Tom Collins team that had everyone buzzing at Fairlanes.

Phyllis Parsons came into the match with a 111 average, but she wound up 131 pins over for a steady and spectacular 464 series. She kept getting better with a 144-151-169.

Betty Peterson, a 136-average performer, contributed a big 85-over-average effort with a 493, and Karen Short opened at 220 en route to a 509, 68 over.

Rounding out the record-smashing show were Emiko Haag with a 445 series that was 52 pins over her average and Jane Ziehm with a 409, 13 pins over.

The champs exhibited exceptional consistency with a 775 opener and third game and a 770 in the middle.

Runnerup honors went to the Early Birds entry from Hoffman Lanes, and in a normal year they would have waited to the title.

The second place team boasted two women who went more than 100 pins over average. Sharon Krasowski, who is a 129-average keeper, hit a 497 with a 188 finish. Sig

Benson, who averages 141, rolled a 525 with two games at 180 or better.

Bernice Pape took a 147 average into the meet and finished at 537, 96 over, and Nancy Bengtson rolled a 398, 14 pins over her average. Joyce Vanderwest was just about on average with a 499 series.

The Moderates of the Crewe Club League, rolling out of host Fair-lanes, cashed in third place with a 2798 that received its biggest boost from Pat Moore.

Pat is a 155-average bowler, but she finished an amazing 159 pins over average Sunday with a 504, closing with an incredible 254.

Also scoring for the third place team were Leota Sprague with a 434 (59 over), Lorraine Clark with a 510 (45 over), Cindy Whittles with a 402 (12 over), and Dorothy Rosen with a 330.

The prize list for the 1974 women's event is unofficial, pending verification of averages, and prize money will not be distributed for about two weeks.

ALL-AROUND PERFORMER Steve Taylor of Maine Saturday's 102.30 to 79.69 win over Maine North. marks that counted in free exercise (6.1), high bar (6.35) and still rings (5.40).

Full Tuesday league schedule; Wheeling, Conant in road tests

by ART MUGALIAN

With the Mid-Suburban League's first full slate of Tuesday games coming up tonight, two facts have been established on the basketball court.

First, nobody is going to stop Conant from taking the South Division title. The Cougars buried Rolling Meadows, 101-47, Friday, and even though Forest View won to stay three games behind, the Falcons are in no position to catch Conant now.

Kelly, Frisk to visit Schaumburg for radio game

WWMM-FM will visit Schaumburg Tuesday evening for a special added game in the radio coverage of Mid-Suburban League basketball.

WM Director of Sports Bud Kelly will give the play-by-play and Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk will offer the color commentary as the Saxons entertain powerful, state-ranked Conant.

Air time is 8 p.m. at 92.7 on the FM dial with the tipoff for the varsity game dictated by the length of the preliminary.

"This extra game not only gives us a chance to see Schaumburg for the first time," said Kelly, "but it also gives us a chance to get another look at the fine Conant team. And we now will have seen every team in the league at least once."

Kelly and Frisk also will be at the 92.7 microphones Friday evening when Wheeling visits Arlington in a dramatic showdown of North Division title contenders.

Second, Wheeling, Arlington, and Hersey have settled into a serious argument over which team captures North honors. Each squad won Friday, with the Wheeling Wildcats maintaining their narrow one-game margin over the Cardinals and Huskies.

Tonight's action features Conant at Schaumburg (a late addition to the WWMM-FM radio schedule), Wheeling (7-1) at Palatine (3-5), Arlington (6-2) at Fremd (3-5), Rolling Meadows (1-7) at Hersey (6-2), Buffalo Grove (8-8) at Forest View (5-3), and Prospect (5-3) at Elk Grove (3-5).

Conant takes its 8-0 record to Schaumburg's home court to battle the 1-7 Saxons. Dick Redlinger's Cougars will have to guard against overconfidence, perhaps the only factor that could beat them. Their tall front line will overshadow the Saxons, whose only asset will be their quickness. Joe Breault's top player, 6-foot-4 Ray Kralicek, is a good rebounder, a fine shooter, and the driving force in the Saxons' efforts.

Ron Finfrock's New Years resolution called for six Palatine victories in the month of January, but a loss to Prospect ended any hopes of that lofty goal. Last Friday's slim, four-point win over Buffalo Grove wasn't the game Finfrock was looking for in preparation for the Wheeling game tonight.

The Wildcats will be protecting their North lead when they invade Palatine, and coming off a convincing win at Elk Grove, they should be ready. Wheeling hasn't lost a league game since Arlington beat them in early December. Ted Eckert's boys still have Arlington and Hersey on the schedule, but first they must contend with the Pirates. The contest will match two quick, fast-breaking teams with Wheeling holding a slight height advantage.

Arlington looked sharp in its win over Prospect on Friday, and Fremd was flat losing to Forest View. George Zigman's Cards know that one loss could spell the end of title chances for them, and Leon Kasuboske's Vikings realize that a win tonight would put them in the spoiler's role.

But the Cardinals have the height advantage, they have superior guard play, and they have Dan Donahue. The 6-10 senior was held to 14 points in the Prospect game, but Fremd's front line — Doug Mize, Randy Weber, and Bob Frank — will have a tough time controlling the big Card.

The scrappy Rolling Meadows Mustangs will have an equally rough job trying to corral Hersey's Dave Corzine. The 6-11 giant notched 20 points and 11 rebounds Friday against Schaumburg, and he added 18 points and 12 rebounds Saturday in a non-conference game with Willowbrook. When he's on his game, the big Huskie dominates the action.

Hersey coach Roger Steingraber wants two things tonight: a victory to stay in the thick of the North battle, and the MSL all-time scoring record for Corzine. Dave needs seven points to pass Roger Wood of Wheeling at the top of the list, and Ken Arneson's Mustangs will be hard-pressed to stop him. If Corzine should have an off-night, the Huskies can rely on Tim Conrad, who pumped in 18 points both Friday and Saturday.

Paul Grady's fledgling Bison squad almost brought Buffalo Grove its first MSL basketball victory Friday, but they fell just short. The rapidly developing youngsters will try again at Forest View tonight. For Ted Wissen's Falcons, the rest of the MSL schedule will be a battle with Prospect for second place behind Conant. Wissen hopes that 6-3 standout Kurt Haaland will have recovered from an ankle injury in time to play tonight. Haaland will help the Falcons under the boards against the taller Bison.

Prospect, currently sharing second spot in the South with Forest View, is the most improved team in the league, as its close loss to Arlington demonstrated. But with first place only a dream for Bill Slayton's boys, the game at Elk Grove will be a test of honor as well as skill.

The first time the two teams met this season, the Knights held league-leading scorer Ken Pollitz to six points. A duplicate effort may be necessary tonight. Bill Parmentier's team is quick and agile, but Pollitz provides the punch. The 6-5 senior scored 21 points in his team's Friday loss, but he came back Saturday to break the school record with 37 against Elgin-Larkin. Slayton's Prospect squad is loaded with juniors with an eye on the future.

Sophs down—West loses; sophs up—West triumphs

Tom Gardner's decision to put all his second year men down at their own level resulted in a new Maine East school record last Thursday when the sophomores defeated Niles East, 77-58 to 65.

But it may have cost the Blue Demons a victory at the varsity level where they were beaten, 122-41 to 79-59. With many sophs back on varsity the next evening, Maine East defeated Maine North, 123-42 to 90-69.

Maine East's best event in the defeat to Niles East was parallel bars on which the Blue Demons scored 20.25. Scorers were Scott Miller (7.25), Mark Russ (7.15) and Cary Betti (5.85).

The Demons' other event leaders were Steve Slaw in floor exercise (7.25), Steve Silberman on side horse (7.55), John Gervens on high bar (6.75), Greg Lacina — East's only competitor — on trampoline (3.9) and Mike Nybakken on still rings (7.2).

In the comeback victory over Maine North, East's top event was again parallel bars where the Demons scored 21.10. Point winners were the same with Russ (7.8), Miller (7.55) and Betti (5.75). East also scored 20.60 in free exercise and 20.30 on still rings.

East's other event leaders were Slaw in free exercise (7.9), Silberman on side horse (7.55), Gervens on high bar (7.8), Jon Larsen on trampoline (7.25) and Nybakken on still rings (7.65).

Maine North was best in free exercise with a 19.3 by Joe Lechner (7.9), George Martenia (6.6), and Larry Sachs (5.7). North's other leaders were Bob Rodriguez on side horse (3.95), and Martenia on parallel bars (5.35) plus Kevin Michaels on high bar (5.8), trampoline (3.45) and still rings (6.95).

An 18.25 in free exercise was Maine West's best event total during the Warrior loss to Niles North. Scorers were Mark Schludt (7.25), Pat Dent (5.8) and Kevin Henderson (5.2).

Other best scores by Maine were by Bob Alfini on side horse (3.1), Schludt on trampoline (6.55) and Coburn on still rings (4.7) plus Steve Taylor on high bar (7.65) and parallel bars (5.75).

Free exercise was also West's best event (21.25) during the Saturday win over Maine North. Point winners were Schludt (8.1) and Dent (7.05) with Henderson and Taylor tied at 6.1.

Likewise, North had its best total (17.15) on the floor behind Lechner (6.45), Martenia (6.35) and Jim Zikus (4.35).

Remaining leaders for West included Taylor on high bar (6.35) and still rings (5.40) plus Neal Sossidan on side horse (5.6), Schludt on trampoline (7.2) and Bill Davis on parallel bars (5.6).

North leaders were Rodriguez on side horse (3.45), Dean Toriumi on trampoline (2.6), and Brad Stridde on parallel bars (5.5) plus Michaels on horizontal bar (5.6) and still rings (5.05).

Wonderful Auto World ENERGY CRISIS Part IV

WHERE IS ALL THE EARTH'S OIL? WHAT ABOUT ALTERNATIVE ENERGY SOURCES?

GEOLOGISTS CALCULATE THAT OIL HAS BEEN FORMED BY NATURAL AND UNIVERSAL FORCES OVER A 350 MILLION YEAR SPAN OF TIME. MODERN COMPUTERS CALCULATE ALL THE OIL CREATED, SOME ONE TRILLION BARRELS, WILL LAST ONLY 135 YEARS — HALF THE OIL HAS ALREADY BEEN CONSUMED AND 115 OF THE YEARS GONE BY A LOOK THEN, AT Fossil PETROLEUM ENERGY PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE

THE EARTH'S REMAINING SUPPLY OF OIL AT A GLANCE

	Known Reserves in Billions of Barrels	Number of Years Known Reserves Will Last at Present Rate of Usage 	Total 1972 Production in Billions of Barrels
WESTERN (Europe)	10.3	10	1.0
AFRICA (Central & Southern)	15.3	20	.8
SOUTHEAST ASIA	14.0	27	.5
SOUTH AMERICA	25.5	16	1.6
NORTH AMERICA	47.2	11	4.2
COMMUNIST WORLD	54.9	16	3.3
MIDDLE EAST & NORTH AFRICA	390.9	48	8.0
TOTAL	558.1	148	19.4

* A BARREL CONTAINS 42 GALLONS
 THE EXPOENTIAL (DOUBLING) EFFECT OF THE RATE OF CONSUMPTION REDUCES THE LENGTH OF TIME THE EARTH'S PETROLEUM RESOURCES WILL LAST TO 50 YEARS. CONSIDERING FIVE TIMES KNOWN RESERVES ARE DISCOVERED.

The crux of man's energy problem can be found in the INEXORABLE INCREASE IN POPULATION. I'll not belabor how the earth's population grew to its present 3.6 billion. It did and it will. The problem is that by the year 2000 there will be over seven (7) billion of us — and that calculation is based upon several years of ZPG (zero population growth) prior to the end of this century.

Energy consumption has been growing in America alone 7% a year for a long time. If we kept increasing energy use in America at that rate through the year 1999 we would have almost a 300% increase. Remember please, that energy consumption has been growing at far higher rates in the common market, Japan, Russia and in every other segment of this planet where peoples have been rising out of agrarian (tied to the land) societies to modern industrial economies.

Here's another set of figures on known oil reserves which, while they are geographically arranged a little differently from those above, still give a clear picture of where the oil is.

KNOWN OIL RESERVES *

	Percent of Earth's Known Reserves
Middle East	53%
Africa	16
Communist Nations	15
North America	7
South America	5
Europe	2
Indonesia	2
TOTAL	100%

* Source: Oil and Gas Journal, December 26, 1972

America is presently using 17 million barrels of oil a day or 6.2 billion barrels in a year. According to energy czar William Simon, 85% of our current supply comes from within our own borders, another 7% from Canada and Venezuela and still another 2% from other sources including Indonesia and western Europe. That leaves 5% from the middle-east Arabian states.

The last major oil shipments from the middle-east arrived in American ports in December, 1973 and January, 1974. More than likely partial shipments will resume sometime in 1974. But it is not the 6% shortage of Arabian oil that has caused so many adjustments in the present American economy.

America's problem is refinement capacity — and that problem has developed swiftly since 1970. Up to 1970 the oil industry was able to refine all our needs and still have a surplus (witness the "gas wars" at your local service station in 1970-1971-1972). But along came 1973. No more "gas wars". Suddenly this country needed 17 million barrels of refined petroleum products a day but our own refineries could produce only 13 million barrels.

What is important to realize is that there are plenty of energy resources on this planet sufficient for man's needs until alternative energy technology is developed.

At present hydrogen and or solar fuel seem to be the best hope for the future. The entire universe is composed of 87% hydrogen. Liquefied hydrogen gas may well power transportation in the 21st century, perhaps even before. We are told by Dr. Paul Erlich of Stanford University (the of The Population Bomb) that enough energy would fall on a 30 square mile solar collector (located in perhaps the deserts of New Mexico or Arizona) in one day to provide enough energy for the whole planet for one year.

The technologies to utilize these sources as practical and permanent sources of energy are now developing: by the end of this century they should be in operation — leaving whatever is left of earth's petroleum reserves for the petrochemical industry — for drugs, for plastics, for thousands of other vital human needs.

Littelfuse Nite Owl team hits 2363 for mixed crown

For their regular league play the Littelfuse Nite Owls bowl at 1:30 in the morning.

They obviously didn't mind a change in schedule Saturday.

In fact, they profited by the change.

Rolling in the 6:15 p.m. squad at Rolling Meadows Fairlanes Bowl, the Isaura team of the Littelfuse division out of River-Rand Bowl fashioned a 2363 that took top honors in the Paddock Publications tournament for mixed leagues.

With every bowler finishing above average, the 1974 champs stroked out a comfortable 11-pin advantage over runnerup Winston Park Mixed.

Four teams topped 2300 in the competition, but the solid balance of the River-Rand outfit was too much to overcome. Overall, the champs were 185 over average.

Jim Hopfauf was the major contributor to the title surge with a 545 series that was 80 pins over his average of 155. Jim opened at 192 and then rolled a 208 before finishing at 145.

Isaura Martinez was 36 pins over with a 462, rolling games of 133-148-181. Walt Guy hit a 533, 35 pins over, and Sandy Jernt rolled a 424, 34 over average.

The champs didn't start out fast, rolling a modest 619 first game, but Hopfauf's 208 keyed a 682 charge in the second and they finished at 663.

The runnerup Winston Park Mixed team hit an 1845 actual and 2352 with handicap, featuring a 605 series by P. Lofgren. The leader hit games of 187-224-194 at the team's home base of Fairlanes.

Six teams cashed in the tourney with the winners picking up $137.40 in addition to the team trophy and individual trophies. Winston Park Mixed cashed for $105.35.

Team results are unofficial, pending verification of averages. Prize money will not be distributed for about two weeks.

Europe on a budget?

Many nations are taking action to keep prices down and limit the energy crunch

by CLARE WRIGHT

"What's with Europe this year?" "Are there any bargains?" "What about gas rationing and driving bans in some countries?" "Are group trips the only way to go?" "Can I still rent a car?"

Confusion. That's the cloud spinning around the European travel picture these days. Northwest suburban travelers, wearied with rampant rumors about the energy crisis, but still interested in Americans' favorite overseas destination, want to know how much more a trip to Europe will cost this year — and how the fuel shortage will affect them.

According to a recent survey by "ASTA Travel News," official publication of the American Society of Travel Agents, governments of European countries are making an all-out effort to keep prices down and avoid any energy crunch for tourists. Here, country by country, are some of the findings of their survey:

• AUSTRIA. Bargains still exist. Innsbruck, for example, offers six nights in a first-class hotel, (double occupancy), in a private room with bath, including breakfast and dinner for $80 per person. Inexpensive packages are available in most cities and resorts. Gasoline is available to tourists.

• BELGIUM. The fuel crisis may affect auto travel, especially on Sundays, but the country's rail system offers one-hour connection by train between most destinations making it possible to stay in inexpensive country inns.

"Belgium's Bonus Days" offers as much as $75 worth of benefits to travelers.

• BRITAIN. The British Isles have joined the list of tourist areas offering lowest group prices. Many cost-cutting programs are available — like the new "Welcome to Britain Ticket," "Visitors Menu Program," and "Britrail Pass" (unlimited rail travel — eight days for $40, 21 days for $70.)

• DENMARK. The Danes are cooking with plenty of ideas for lower-cost travel — country inn packages, family farm vacations, bicycle tours and special railway trips. Sunday driving is currently banned but no other travel is affected. The country is currently fixing hotel rates for 1974.

• FINLAND. In Helsinki the tourist can still enjoy a light lunch for $1 or a big Scandinavian smorgasbord for about $3. The Finnair "Holiday Ticket" offers 15 days of unlimited flying within Finland for $92. City tours in Helsinki and other major tourist centers cost as little as 25 cents. Adventurous travelers can ride across the tundra on a reindeer (complete with reindeer driving license) for $3!

• FRANCE. Best buys are in the one and two-star hotels, with rates ranging from $4 to $12 a night for a double room with breakfast.

The Michelin Hotel Guide lists bargain inns and restaurants where $3.50 buys a meal of regional dishes and wine.

Like other countries, France has a fine rail system to beat the fuel crisis — if it gets bad enough to curtail car rentals and bus service.

• GERMANY. Low-cost weekend packages and tours are available — in addition to discount coupons and other budget ideas. The country's federal rail and bus systems reach 99 per cent of Germany's tourist destinations.

• GREECE. A class "A" hotel room in Athens will cost less than $17 double, June to September, and $9 the rest of the year.

The country's fuel supply is said to be "adequate" at present, but if you vacation in the tiny Greek islands you won't need a car anyway!

• HOLLAND. Forty gas stations throughout the country have been pegged as "tourist stations" where foreign visitors can get all the gas they need.

Some hotel prices may decrease slightly this year, and there are many hotels and restaurants offering $3.50 "tourist menus."

• ICELAND. This summer the country will promote a variety of low-cost camping and outdoor tours. There is no fuel shortage because Iceland gets its petroleum from Australia. With Icelandic Airlines' low rates, travel to Iceland is one of Europe's best bargains.

• IRELAND. Like Iceland, the country can offer one-week GIT vacations for under $300. Guesthouse and farmhouse vacations provide bed and breakfast for as little as $3.50.

• ITALY. Certain packages offer tourists better bargains today than the independent traveler could find a few years ago. Fifteen days of unlimited travel on Italian trains costs about $38. Many restaurants offer fixed-price meals for as little as $3.

• PORTUGAL. Travelers can still enjoy luxury hotel accommodations for about $25 a day for two or stay at country inns or government pousadas for about $11 for two. Two-dollar meals can still be found, $5 per person buys dinner with wine at moderate-priced restaurants, and the best continental cuisine can be found for $10 per person.

Gas stations are closed on weekends and holidays but there are no other restrictions to affect visitors.

• SPAIN. This country continues to be a bargain for American tourists. Overall prices are less than in the U.S. There are no restrictions on gasoline. Out-of-the-way destinations are even better buys. Check out Extremadura and Galicia.

• SWEDEN. Package tours of Sweden are about 10 per cent higher than in 1973, but prices are fixed. Manor house vacations with full board run from $88 per week — chalet or log cabin vacations from $77 a week. Gas is rationed but inexpensive rail travel is available.

• SWITZERLAND. Low-cost packages are available. The famous "Swiss Holiday Pass" is still good for unlimited transportation on trains, boats and buses plus reductions on mountain railways and cable cars. A "Half Fare Pass" offers 50 per cent discounts on public transport throughout the country and is $16.10 for a month.

• YUGOSLAVIA. This is still one of the most inexpensive countries in Europe, has no fuel shortage problem and offers the tourist more dinars to the dollar than it did three years ago.

A room in Dubrovnik's finest hotels is $10 to $16 at high season, with all meals, and a class "B" hotel offers the same thing for as little as $7. The country's modern bus system offers low-cost travel — a ride along the entire Adriatic coast costs only about $6.50.

Travel lore

by Clare Wright
TRAVEL EDITOR

Dollar strong in Europe

When we were in France late last spring the U.S. dollar was having a shaky time. I remember spinning along the roads of Brittany as our car radio sputtered dire news of the rapid plunge of the once-almighty buck.

And, things got worse. In July, 1973, the dollar pitched to an all-time low.

Now, however, the situation is looking up. The dollar has taken a complete about-face. It has more buying power in most European countries today than in almost two years.

So, if you've set your heart on climbing the Acropolis this year, or riding a cable car over the Alps, or dipping your toes in the Mediterranean, our dollar's new status abroad is good news.

If you plan carefully, you CAN visit Europe in 1974 without blasting your budget.

AS YOU BROWSE through travel brochures, keep these points in mind.

- Packaged tours are still the best buy. If you're simply not the "group type," look into special-interest packages. Also, be sure to check hiking, biking, camping, farmhouse, country inn and bed-and-breakfast vacations.

- Many national tourist offices of European countries have arranged special offers which provide cut-rate travel, discount shopping, free meals and tours that can save you $100 or more.

- You can also save money and get to know Europe better if you plan longer stays at fewer places.

- Plan vacations in the more inexpensive countries like Turkey, Yugoslavia, Portugal, Spain and Greece. Britain and Ireland can also be considered in this list, according to some travel experts.

- Stay in inexpensive family hotels.

They're rated lower but are clean and comfortable. Remember that countryside inns are cheaper than big city hotels.

- Use the efficient, inexpensive European rail systems whenever possible. Buy special passes that are available.

- Consider the steamships. The two most glamorous ships afloat, the Queen Elizabeth 2 and The France, are offering special rates and promotions this year.

- Many travel experts I've talked with recently are optimistic about European travel for 1974. Some claim press reports about outlandish costs in Europe are highly exaggerated, or apply only to isolated cases.

"Europe won't be cheap," said one tourist official. "But countries are already figuring ways to provide better service and more creative travel packages to offset increased prices."

European tourism has come a long way since the day when only the very wealthy could consider a vacation abroad. From the posh "grand tour" of 40 and 50 years ago — featuring the most elegant accommodations money could buy — travel to Europe moved to inexpensive motorcoach tours, cut-rate student travel, and other forms of budget jet-setting. Two weeks in Europe became as cheap as a week in Las Vegas or Miami Beach. Sometimes cheaper.

NOW THE PICTURE is changing again. Americans wishing to see Europe at bargain prices in this inflationary era will have to learn new travel patterns.

I'm reminded of a Parisian friend of ours, who remarked last year, "You Americans must learn to travel through Europe as we Europeans do. It costs less — and you see more."

Try it. My guess is that you may like it.

Travel briefs

Greyhound tour set for Playboy Club

Greyhound Tour of the Month is offering a ski holiday at the Playboy Club, Lake Geneva, Wis., Feb. 22.

The tour will depart from the Chicago Greyhound Terminal, at 6 p.m., arriving in Lake Geneva around 8 p.m.

Besides unlimited skiing, the tour includes round trip transportation, two nights deluxe accommodations, use of a Playboy key, full use of facilities, and other extras.

Cost of the tour (double occupancy) is $76.50.

For more information or reservations, contact Greyhound Travel Bureau, 173 N. Clark St., phone 346-6540.

"SEE YOURSELF SKI"

The Devil's Head ski school, Merrimac, Wis., has a "See Yourself Ski" videotape replay system for the skiing public on weekends.

In addition to televised ski lessons, the ski school is now operating a television camera at the base of the No. 3 chairlift. A skier who wants to know how great his form really is, just waves at the camera from the top of the run, turns on his best ski style and forks out $2 at the base of the slopes to see how it all came out. The ski film is instantly replayed and the Devil's Head ski school instructors managing the TV booth give an appraisal, plus a few ski tips to the televised skier.

The "See Yourself Ski" program will operate during daylight hours on Saturday and Sunday throughout the season.

NEW AIR-SEA PACKAGE

Greek Line has announced new seven-day Caribbean air/sea packages from Chicago now through March 11.

Prices from Chicago, including round trip Eastern Airlines economy group air fare, range from $319 to $459 per person (double occupancy) for a four-night cruise combined with a three-night stay in San Juan's Regency Hotel.

A week-long cruise is priced from $416 to $676 per person.

Information and reservations may be made through Greek Line, Dept. P.P., 32 Pearl St., New York 10004, or through Northwest suburban travel agents.

"A NIGHT IN THE TROPICS"

Forget the snow and cold and spend a tropical evening tonight, beginning at 7:30, at Mt. Prospect Vacations, 11 W. Prospect Ave., Mt. Prospect.

Films on Hawaii and South America will be shown, along with a packing demonstration and tips on travel to tropical areas.

Luxembourg.

ICELANDIC ALSO has one-week rail packages for single passengers at $370 including round-trip jet and unlimited first-class rail travel for a week. Two and three-week rail tours cost $380 per person, double, or $383 for singles, including round-trip jet, one night and breakfast at a first-class hotel in Luxembourg, and a choice of 625 miles of first-class rail travel or 1,000 miles, second class.

Similar bargains are available on Icelandic's two-week "Ski the Alps" packages which start at $417 per person, double, from Chicago.

Information and folders about winter fares and tours are available from travel agents or from Icelandic's office at 18 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, 60603.

Kay McNellis promises refreshments and door prizes.

RIDE 'EM COWBOY!

This year's big Phoenix Rodeo of Rodeos will be March 13 through 17, with top hands from all over the country competing in bronc busting, roping, steer riding and other back-breaking contests.

Information may be obtained by writing to Vacation Advisor, Phoenix Jaycees, 4133 N. 7th St., Phoenix, Ariz.

LAKE DELTON SNOW-A-REE

Midnight cookouts, dancing to the "Elusive Sounds," trail rides and even an auction — all designed for snowmobile fans — will be featured at the annual Lake Delton Snow-A-Ree, Feb. 1, 2 and 3.

Sponsored by the Lake Delton Lions Club, the Snow-A-Ree is open to the public, with tickets available for the Friday night dinner dance, cookout, etc., with headquarters at the Dellview Resort.

A new event this winter is a public snowmobile auction at 2 p.m. Saturday, where dozens of snowmobiles will be for sale.

The Wisconsin Dells - Lake Delton area features more than 80 miles of marked and maintained snowmobile trails which cruise over Lake Delton, travel beside a sandstone outcroppings, and wind through canyons in this unglaciated region of Wisconsin.

For more information on the Lake Delton Snow-A-Ree, or snowmobiling at the Dells, write to the Wisconsin Dells Regional Chamber of Commerce, Box 175, Wisconsin Dells, Wis. Rental snowmobiles are available.

Round-trip to Europe offered for only $310

A round-trip excursion fare of $310 from Chicago to Luxembourg in the heart of Europe has been announced by Icelandic Airlines effective now through March 31.

This excursion fare is applicable for individual passengers staying overseas from 22 to 45 days.

An even lower fare of $300 round trip, plus the cost of land arrangements, is offered on group inclusive tours (GIT) of one, two and three weeks.

During winter months, two scheduled jet flights weekly, on Tuesdays and Thursdays, will be offered direct from Chicago to Luxembourg with a stopover of an hour in Iceland and stopover privileges available there.

Other winter fares and savings via Icelandic have been announced as follows.

Normal fares, for stays of 46 days to a year, will be $458 round trip from Chicago to Luxembourg through May 31, plus $60 for peak season return flights from July through September. Savings in this category via Icelandic, according to Loughery, will be at least $164.

ICELANDIC ALSO will offer an exclusive "one to 21-day" excursion fare of $438 round-trip from Chicago to Luxembourg, offering savings of $184 for stays of less than 14 days and savings of $132 for stays of 14 to 21 days.

A group inclusive tour (GIT) fare has been set at $300 round trip for tours of from one to three weeks, plus prepaid land arrangements of at least $45 for one week or $70 for two or three weeks.

In this category individual passengers are formed into small groups by the airline or by travel agents.

Tours based on this formula start as low as $350 per person, double, for one-week car packages which include round-trip jet from Chicago to Luxembourg and a rental car with an unlimited mileage allowance.

Two and three-week car tours cost $380 and $400, respectively, per person, double, including round-trip jet, car with a 625-mile allowance, and one night and breakfast at a first-class hotel in Luxembourg.

ICELANDIC ALSO has one-week rail packages for single passengers at $370 including round-trip jet and unlimited first-class rail travel for a week. Two and three-week rail tours cost $380 per person, double, or $383 for singles, including round-trip jet, one night and breakfast at a first-class hotel in Luxembourg, and a choice of 625 miles of first-class rail travel or 1,000 miles, second class.

Similar bargains are available on Icelandic's two-week "Ski the Alps" packages which start at $417 per person, double, from Chicago.

Information and folders about winter fares and tours are available from travel agents or from Icelandic's office at 18 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, 60603.

HOLLYWOOD — Television executives who pay close attention to the ratings list of video's most popular series should learn one major lesson, and it is this:

Forget all the trends at any given time, and just concentrate on coming up with an individual, well-crafted show.

The ratings indicate overwhelmingly that hot trends and imitations of commercial hits are not the significant audience factors that one might suspect them of being. Audiences are more discerning than some television executives think.

Consider the wide variety of network video hits:

Atop the list recently is "The Waltons," which went against just about every old-fashioned television theory for creating a commercial smash. It is about poor people, it is set in the 1930s Depression, it has no sex-appeal star and its stories are, for video, "soft."

Then there is television's top comedy hit, "All in the Family." It could hardly be more different than "The Waltons." It is set in the modern era, it is raucous and blunt, and it takes place in a big city, whereas "The Waltons" has a rural locale.

ANOTHER INDIVIDUAL hit is the Walt Disney series, which is unlike almost anything else among video's top-rated shows. It is traditional in its show business approach, and is a potpourri of nature programs, animated hours, movies and adventure stories.

"Maude" is about a divorcee who has remarried. The networks used to consider the subject of divorce about as attractive as a plague. Furthermore, the central figure in this comedy series is aggressive and sometimes overbearing — hardly the old-style television approach for making a woman character endearing to the mass audience.

"Adam-12" is a traditional police series with almost no embroidery to it, and it just keeps rolling along. THERE ARE almost no westerns left

by Rick DuBrow

among network series, and yet "Gunsmoke" is as popular as ever — because it is as good as ever.

The Lucille Ball Show is another weekly entry that seems able to run from here to eternity, because it knows exactly how to put itself across. Yet some years back, when NBC-TV tried to imitate this CBS-TV hit with a Debbie Reynolds situation comedy, only Lucy was left when the dust had cleared.

Mary Tyler Moore's weekly comedy is another sharply crafted show that displays CBS-TV's know-how in turning out frivolous, amiable and harmless time-killers. But when NBC-TV tried to imitate this Show recently with a Diana Rigg situation comedy, that too failed.

IF THERE is one real rule to start with in trying to create a hit television series, it is this: There are no rules.

Network programming executives, who are usually unqualified for the show business demands of their jobs, cannot escape this fact. They face the reality that they must survive on their own judgment. That is why most of them don't last very long.

Park official: 'foundation favors our offer'

by LYNN ASINOF

No decision was reached yesterday by the Calvert Foundation on the sale of the Childerly retreat house property, 506 McHenry Rd., to either the Wheeling Park District or the Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital.

Park board members, however, reported a favorable reception by the Calvert Foundation when it considered their offer of $250,000 for the ten-acre site.

According to Park Comr. Lorraine Lark, the Calvert trustees apparently have not decided the legal question of whether the Childerly property can be sold.

The deed establishing Childerly defines its purpose narrowly for the use of University of Chicago students, alumni, and faculty. If the Calvert Foundation ceases to exist or function, Childerly properties revert to the Archbishop of Chicago. There is no provision in the deed for the sale of the property.

THE PARK BOARD members said their seven-minute presentation yesterday to the Calvert Foundation was favorably received, despite a substantially higher offer of $445,000 from the Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital.

The park commissioners said the strong point of their offer was the fact that Childerly would be able to continue as a retreat house under park ownership. The park district has agreed to allow retreats to be scheduled in the buildings on a priority basis.

"The comments made by the trustees were that they would rather sell to the park district which would perpetuate the use of Childerly as set forth by Mrs. Lillie in her will," Mrs. Lark said.

In appealing to the Wheeling village board for a park site designation, Mrs. Lark said the designation was needed in case the hospital bought the property and did not get state approval. She said in this case the property might be used for condominiums or apartments.

As of the Herald's deadline last night, the village trustees had not voted whether to grant the park district's requested official map designation.

THE DESIGNATION, if granted, would give the park district one year from the time development plans are approved to purchase the property.

"Our asking you to give us an official designation is like asking you to give us and the community a one-year option to purchase Childerly," Mrs. Lark said.

She said if the designation is not granted, the park district will have to begin condemnation procedures immediately because of the importance of the time element.

In a lengthy and emotional presentation, Mrs. Lark argued for the preservation of the Childerly property and the historic buildings located on it. "We know the buildings cannot stand and have a hospital there too," she said.

The park district plans to use the land as an outdoor education center, a summer day camp and a place for community meetings.

Trustee William Hein was most active in questioning the need for a designation. He noted that the park district might have to condemn the property even if the designation is approved. Hein further outlined the need for a local hospital by citing the number of times the village ambulance could not be received at area hospitals.

Wheeling police lieutenant gets 1-day suspension

Wheeling police Lt. Ronald G. Nelson has been suspended for one day by Chief Peter Guttilla.

The suspension came after a Herald disclosure that Nelson had been stopped twice by Buffalo Grove police for alleged drunk driving.

Trustees, parks to consider donation of Levitt building

by JOE FRANZ

The Buffalo Grove Village Board and park district plan to meet next month to consider the proposed donation by Levitt and Sons Inc. of its Strathmore sales office.

Several months ago, Levitt officials said the firm was willing to donate the building to the village after the model homes on Strathmore Court are sold. Village officials have indicated the building probably will be turned over to the park district after the donation is made.

The district wants the office for use as a museum on the Raupp Memorial site in Lake County. The Raupp Memorial Museum would be operated by the park district and Buffalo Grove Historical Society.

Robert Craig, vice president of Levitt's midwest region said yesterday his firm offered to donate the sales office, but never received a formal response from the village. Village Pres. Gary Armstrong, however, has been in contact with Levitt officials and has indicated the village is interested in obtaining the office.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said yesterday the village and park district probably will consider the donation at a board workshop Feb. 25. If the board has a heavy work load, he said the workshop could be delayed somewhat.

SINCE THE DONATION is being made to the village, a formal transfer must be approved by the board before the building is given to the park district.

Craig said Levitt is still using the office and will continue to do so until all of its models are sold. The office also is being used for a temporary sales center for Levitt's Strathmore Grove subdivision. Craig said Levitt is planning to build a new office in the subdivision.

Larson said the park district is the organization to receive the old sales office because it has a need for it and the money to pay to move it to the Raupp Memorial site. The Buffalo Grove Community Center also is interested in obtaining the sales office.

PARK DIRECTOR STAN Crosland said yesterday the park district is interested in putting a room addition on the sales office after it is moved to the Raupp site. The room could be used for park activities and community meetings.

Park Comr. William Kiddie said last week the added room probably would make it possible to use the building for a community center as well as a museum.

Park district architect Roland Schapanski has estimated it will cost $28,000 to relocate the Levitt sales office on the Raupp Memorial site. The estimate includes $10,000 to $15,000 for moving, $8,000 for a foundation, $3,000 to connect utilities and $2,000 for site improvements.

WHILE THE MOVING costs may seem high, Schapanski said a building comparable to Levitt's probably would cost between $60,000 and $65,000 if it were to be newly constructed.

Crosland said the park district has the money to pay for relocating the sales office. Some money, he said, was earmarked for the Raupp site in the 1971 park district referendum.

The sales office is currently near Arlington Heights and Dundee roads and would have to be moved about a mile to the Raupp site on Denham Lane. The building is one-story and covers about 23,000 square feet.

The five-acre site is part of the Raupp farm, one of the village's oldest landmarks. It was donated to the village under the condition it would be made into a memorial.

ABOUT 21 MONTHS ago, the park district was in the process of renovating the farm house when it was destroyed by arsonists. After the fire, the park district prepared a plan for a new structure, but the village board said it would be too costly.

Crosland said Levitt's offer will solve the park district's plight over a building for the site. He said the sales office is attractive and will be ideal for use as a museum.

The Buffalo Grove Historical society, which was recently formed, hopes to open the museum to the public by the end of this year. The society is seeking members and donations of articles that are of historic significance to Buffalo Grove.

TORCH helps rekindle fire in cold heart

by JILL BETTNER

Communication sometimes breaks down between a married couple. Conversations are replaced with charges and counter-charges and life becomes a strained contest between two persons, full of bickering, frustration and unhappiness.

This kind of situation calls for the professional help of a marriage counselor, but getting in to see one isn't always easy. Marriage problems are all too common, and many clinics are overburdened with cases, forcing them to place clients on a waiting list.

Unable to get the help they need immediately, some couples may give up hope of reconciliation and go their separate ways. Others may not be able to afford the rates charged by area clinics and make the same decision.

The TORCH Community Mental Health Clinic, operated by a volunteer staff of professional counselors, social workers and psychologists, offers an alternative to such couples.

Manned by a volunteer staff of 13 professional counselors, social workers and psychologists, the TORCH clinic has no waiting list and fees are determined by ability to pay.

"WE DON'T believe in having a waiting list," said Robert Sorensen, one of the co-directors of the clinic. "That was one of the reasons why we established the clinic. Also, we never turn anyone down for financial reasons."

Fees charged by the clinic average about $10 per hour, Sorensen said, but the staff sees some clients for as little as $2 or $3 per hour.

Besides marriage counseling, the clinic offers a wide variety of other counseling services including therapy for children and adults, diagnostic testing for school problems and personnel evaluations, aid for school drop-outs, family counseling, vocational testing and guidance and community mental health education.

The TORCH clinic was established in 1967 with the aid of a three-year federal grant administered by School Dist. 21. Since the federal funds ran out, the clinic has operated on client fees, and support from local community organizations.

About half the referrals to the clinic are made by the staff of Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau in Wheeling. The other 50 per cent come from former clients.

"I'D SAY 85 per cent of the people we see are perfectly normal, not mentally ill, but who just need clarification of situations they're in or of issues within themselves," said Barry Brown, the other co-director of the clinic. Brown is also a counselor at Wheeling High School.

Instead of one central office, the clinic operates in rooms at the high school and Omni-House from 6 to 10 Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

Sorensen said there are no plans to establish a permanent TORCH clinic facility.

"If we set up a permanent facility, we just couldn't perform the same services for the fees we're charging now," he said. "We believe in spending money on services instead of facilities."

Appointments at the clinic may be arranged by calling Sorensen, principal of Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove, during the day at 541-1260, or at Wheeling High School Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 537-6500.

Gas pumps near 'empty'

Northwest suburban service stations shutting at mid-day

by KURT BAER

Gasoline dealers throughout the Northwest suburbs are running on empty.

Sales at the pump are being limited to the early morning hours as dealers find they must shut down by mid-day to stretch their end of the month reserves.

In Washington, federal energy czar William E. Simon said Monday he hopes gasoline production can be stepped up soon to stave off rationing this spring.

And in Chicago, U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., called for a rollback in crude oil prices and new price controls on the U.S. oil industry.

Meanwhile, hundreds of service station

operators stiffened their own rationing controls to avert a total area-wide shutdown.

SEVERAL MOTORISTS told The Herald they could not find any stations in Arlington Heights selling gas Monday afternoon. Some station managers say they already have received part of their February allocation but would continue to limit sales to prevent a run on their pumps.

Most dealers said they hope their self-imposed rationing will head off earlier predictions of massive station closings by the end of the week.

A spot check of stations Monday turned up a recurrent refrain of long lines, short hours and near non-existent supplies.

"People are lined up here like it's going out of style, or like I'm giving it away," said an attendant at Carl's Mobil Service, Mount Prospect.

And at the Shell station at River Road and Euclid Avenue, manager Clair Ruggles said he was saving gas for his regular customers, "people who have been with us for years. We have to take care of our own."

RUGGLES SAID Shell has given him 90 days notice after which the company plans to terminate his lease — unless he buys the station for $150,000. He added that he could make the purchase if he could buy gas. "But they (Shell) won't sell you any," he said.

A survey of seven stations in Rolling Meadows showed that all pumps were locked after morning except, in a few cases, for the evening rush hours.

Bill Hunter, owner of Southland Shell, said there were 12 to 15 cars waiting at his pumps when he opened for business Monday morning.

"Everyone's going to be riding their bikes this weekend," said Bill Miska, owner of Rolling Meadows Shell. "I don't think anyone has gas." His station is already out of gasoline and will receive only 8,000 gallons of its February allocation on Thursday.

State police had to break up lines at the Standard station, Wilke and Algonquin roads, early Monday. "It was unreal," reported an attendant.

Four service stations in Palatine pumped their day's quota in two or three hours yesterday morning.

Robert Franz, owner of Bob's Union 76 at 5 W. Palatine Rd., said his daily quota of 12,000 gallons usually lasts for five or six hours. It was gone in just over two hours Monday.

IN ELK GROVE Village, a line of cars a half-mile long went away empty from Grove Cito when the station shut its pumps at 3:45 p.m. The manager said his station will remain closed until delivery of his February allocation, and he had no idea when that might be.

Illinois Bell blamed for alarm delay

by JILL BETTNER

Tempron Inc., which is installing a $85,000 surveillance system in School Dist. 21, cites problems with Illinois Bell Telephone lines as the reason for being four months past the contract deadline.

The Dist. 21 school board last week passed a resolution giving Tempron Inc. until Feb. 15 to install the system. If it is not operational by that date, the board warned it would terminate the contract and take other steps to complete the work.

If the surveillance system is not working by the new deadline, the board also will invoke the performance bond posted by Tempron. The bonding company would then seek another company to finish the job.

The Herald yesterday incorrectly reported that the Tempron firm must complete the work by Feb. 1.

J. C. LEE, president of Tempron, yesterday said that malfunctioning telephone lines have caused the delay in installing the system. He said the lines, installed in August, stopped working in November. They were repaired two weeks ago, he said, but began malfunctioning again last Friday.

According to Lee, Tempron did not have enough time to check out the system before it began malfunctioning again. He said it takes approximately (Continued on page 5)

Coroner's jury rules fatal shot self-inflicted

A Cook County Coroner's Jury ruled yesterday that the Jan. 10 shooting death of a 30-year-old Buffalo Grove man was by a self-inflicted gunshot wound. The jury, however, did not say whether the shooting was accidental or suicide.

The man, Charles C. Bashford, of 849 W. Miller Ln., Buffalo Grove, was found slumped over the steering wheel of his snow-covered car in the village hall parking lot, 50 Raupp Blvd. He had been shot once in the right temple.

Police found a .22-caliber automatic pistol in his right hand. Authorities said Bashford apparently had been despondent because of a recent divorce.

Police said Bashford may have been dead for almost a day before his body was discovered by a public works employee. The coroner's office, however, was unable to pinpoint the exact time of death because the body had been in the cold auto for too long.

Bashford was employed in the personnel department at Baxter Laboratories.

one week per school to check out the system and there are 17 schools plus the Dist. 21 administration building included in it.

Eugene Wagner, Illinois Bell communications consultant, said he knew of difficulties with equipment supplied by both the telephone company and Temptron. However, he said, to his knowledge the telephone lines had been working since Dec. 6. Wagner admitted that there could be a new malfunction of which he was not aware.

LEE IS ASKING the school board to extend the new Feb. 15 completion deadline by three days to make up for the time he said has been lost due to the malfunctioning telephone lines.

Supt. Kenneth Gill said he would turn the request over to the school board for consideration at its Feb. 14 meeting.

Expressing his feeling about the situation, Gill said, "We're very conscious of trouble with the phone lines, but we were under contract for the system to be completed in September and we're way past that deadline. We recognize there were difficulties, but we also recognize Temptron's obligation to being this thing to a conclusion according to the terms of the contract."

General Caucus meets tonight

There will be a meeting of the School Dist. 21 General Caucus at 8 p.m. today at the district administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The caucus interviews and endorses candidates in local school elections.

Representatives of all nonpolitical groups in the district are invited to participate. For more information, call Ralph Camp at 394-5887 or Mrs. Frank Sacco at 537-9453.

The meeting was incorrectly reported as being scheduled for last night by The Herald.

Federal grant approved for library headquarters

Plans for the North Suburban Library System's (NSLS) new headquarters in Wheeling are moving ahead now that a federal grant for the project has been approved.

Robert McClarren, system director, said the $200,000 grant had been held up when President Nixon impounded funds allocated under the federal library services and construction act program.

"There was a lot of delay because there were some board members who perhaps felt that the building should be of much less size because the funds were not available," McClarren said. "The long, protracted problems of financing did interfere with the dispatch of the construction project."

THE DIRECTOR said the library system is now having bid specifications for its new library printed, with bids to be opened in about 45 days. McClarren said the administration released the impounded funds in December, with the library district receiving approval of its grant request shortly thereafter.

The new headquarters, to be located just east of the Wheeling Post office on Dundee Road, will serve as the administrative center for the system. It will include 20,000 square feet of meeting rooms, office space, storage and work space.

McClarren did not know when construction of the new building would begin. He said these estimates will be available as soon as the bids for the project are opened.

The new library system center received rapid approval of its grant request after the impounded funds were released, according to McClarren. "We had first priority in the state," he said.

The library system is currently headquartered in leased offices in Morton Grove. McClarren said the library system chose the Dundee Road location because it was in the geographical center of the 31 public library district.

"IT'S THE DEAD center. It is the center of the system area," McClarren said. "If you draw a line from Evanston to Fox Lake, half the libraries lie to the right of that line and half to the left."

He said the same is true if the line is drawn between Park Ridge and Libertyville. According to McClarren, these two lines intersect at Pal-Waukee Airport.

The two-acre Wheeling site was chosen after the library system looked at more than 40 sites in Arlington Heights, Wheeling, Northbrook, Deerfield and Glenview.

McClarren said the Dundee Road location was most desirable because it is on a major road and is located within a municipality that can provide business resources and police and fire protection.

Since the new building will not provide services directly to the public, McClarren said traffic from the headquarters will not be a problem. The system provides each of its 31 member public libraries with access to books, films, periodicals, facilities and services not available from local resources.

Lions Club bowling event set Feb. 9

The Buffalo Grove Lions Club's fifth annual Scotch Doubles Bowling Party will be at Striker Lanes Feb. 9.

The bowling party will be divided into two sessions, one at 7 p.m., the other at 9 p.m. The party is open to the public and costs $18 a couple.

In addition to the bowling, a buffet dinner will be served. A color television is among 40 prizes to be awarded.

Proceeds will go toward purchasing glasses for needy children and Buffalo Grove Little League baseball and boy's football. For further information call Tom Malmendi at 541-4073 or Ralph Feltner at 537-2436.

Straw clogs road's sewers

The new Wheeling Road extension was under water for a short time last week-end when straw laid along the roadside washed into the sewer grates.

"That was a minor problem," said Village Mgr. George Passolt. "What happened was the straw they laid along the roadside came off and plugged up the grates. It really was not a flooding problem."

Passolt said that as soon as the straw was removed from the sewer grates, the water on the roadway disappeared.

Two other intersections were under water for a brief time, Passolt said. At Merle Lane and Audry Court, and at Highland Avenue and Wolf Road, the water caused some problems for motorists after heavy rains Saturday morning.

"Neither were enough to put up barricades," Passolt said. "It was so minor."

ACCORDING TO the manager, the biggest problem came from residents who were worried that the Buffalo Creek-Wheeling Drainage Ditch would overflow its banks. "The creek went up quite high, but we were able to keep it from causing any problems," Passolt said.

The manager credited recent flood control programs with helping to prevent flooding problems in the village. "On Wolf Road without them there definitely would have been (some flooding)," he said.

The village rain gauge showed that 1½ inches of rain fell Saturday morning. Passolt said he could not predict whether flooding would result if additional heavy rains fall in the area.

"It depends on how much precipitation and how fast it comes down," the manager said. He noted that the water in the creek dropped 15 to 18 inches yesterday morning.

Passolt said the village did not receive any calls about water in residents' basements, although one or two residents had problems with sanitary sewer back-ups.

500 used golf balls part of burglary loot

Five hundred used golf balls, a fishing rod and reel and an Army duffle bag were stolen recently from a storage locker in a Buffalo Grove home, police said.

Police added that the stolen items, owned by Douglas W. Hill, 655 Grove Dr., were worth about $100. They were stolen sometime between Jan. 13 and Sunday.

Wheeling police lieutenant gets 1-day suspension day by Vern Nystrom, chairman of the Wheeling Police and Fire Commission. He said that Gutilla called for the suspension, apparently after disclosure of the two December incidents.

Meanwhile, The Herald has been unable to learn what action, if any, has been taken against Wheeling police Detective Joseph Earl Suel. Suel was involved in several unusual incidents including a tavern brawl in Rockton, Ill., for which he was found guilty of disorderly conduct.

Police said Nelson was stopped once while driving through Buffalo Grove and was found a second time with his car partially off the road just beyond the village limits. Both times Nelson apparently "had been drinking," Buffalo Grove police said.

NELSON ACKNOWLEDGED both contacts with the Buffalo Grove police, but denied he had been intoxicated on either occasion. Because of the two incidents, Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harry Walsh sent a letter to Nelson, warning that a third incident should never take place.

Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt yesterday refused to confirm or deny the report of Nelson's suspension on the record. He said any disciplinary action taken by the police chief is an "internal matter" and should not be aired publicly.

"I don't have the time today," Passolt said when asked about the suspension. "And I don't know of anyone else who does. There's very little I will do to help you on this."

The Herald's disclosures of the two Nelson incidents is part of a continuing investigation of the policies and actions of the Wheeling Police Department.

Some are still waiting for men who went off to war

by TONI GINETTI

Mrs. Dawn Slice didn't need a special day Sunday to remember the men still listed as missing in action from a war in Southeast Asia which for most Americans ended last year.

Mrs. Slice is the sister of a MIA, Navy Lt. Bruce Fryar. Since December, 1969, when she learned that her brother had been lost in a bombing mission over Laos, Mrs. Slice and her family have been awaiting word on the fate of her brother.

Young Lt. Fryar, then 25, was a Navy pilot on his last mission before a rest and recreation layoff in Japan. He and his navigator, Lt. Nick Brooks, were last seen ejecting from their plane which had been shot down over Laos.

Fryar and Brooks are only two of more than 1,300 Vietnam War veterans still unaccounted for by the United States government. Sunday they were to be remembered on what had been proclaimed Missing In Action Awareness Day by President Nixon.

FAMILIES OF AREA MIAs met in Chicago Sunday for the observance. Mrs. Slice and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll E. Fryar of Rolling Meadows did not attend — but not because they are not concerned.

The family last year undertook a letter-writing campaign urging more than 300 individuals and organizations to write to congressmen and the White House to demand an accounting of the MIAs.

"As far as the senators and congressmen, the most we have ever gotten back is a form letter," Mrs. Slice said. "I feel now that they (the government) could be doing a lot more."

Mrs. Slice, who resides in Hoffman Estates, said the family has heard nothing from the government during the past year on Bruce's fate. His wife Diane, who lives in Virginia with the couple's young daughter, has apparently received no further information either.

"There is a Navy officer who contacts my parents very regularly, but he doesn't know anything more," Mrs. Slice said.

MUCH OF the information on the MIA situation the Fryars receive still comes from Voices in Vital America (VIVA), the organization which produced prisoner of war and MIA bracelets.

Mrs. Slice said, however, the organization is having its problems. "One of the women on the board has decided that there is no hope and is apparently trying to dissolve the group," she said. "But Mr. Brooks (the father of the navigator shot down with Fryar) says it should continue until all the families are answered."

The Fryar family is still hopeful they may yet learn that Bruce is

Showdown could come next month

Zoning unit to review new day care center ordinance

The Des Plaines City Council's controversial day care center ordinance will be reviewed at 8 p.m. today by the Des Plaines Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) and if approved could set a showdown on the measure next month.

The ordinance would require the operators of new day care facilities to seek a special use permit from the zoning board and city council.

If the ordinance is approved by the ZBA and the council, it could pave the way for city approval of Angel Town's Baby Town, 2329 Birch St., Des Plaines.

The facility, the city's only residential day care center, became the target of a law suit last year.

The Baby Town controversy also sparked the year-long review of the city regulations governing the facilities.

While a number of aldermen have opposed the proposal, Ald. Alan Abrams (8th), who heads the council city code and judiciary committee, termed the new ordinance a "reasonable compromise."

THE OPPONENTS have contended that the centers will infringe on the rights of people in residential neighborhoods. A provision which requires a public hearing, will allow objectors to present evidence against granting the special use permission.

The new ordinance would prohibit the establishment of day care centers in apartments or other multiple-family housing.

The ordinance differentiates between day care centers and day care homes. The homes may care for up to eight children and may be established in residential areas without the special use permit. Centers would handle larger numbers of children.

Baby Town, which cares for about 40 infants, will apparently meet all standards set down in the ordinance.

THE NEW ORDINANCE requires day care centers in residential areas to meet the following standards:

- The parcel of land must include a minimum of 500 square feet of lot area per child, a minimum of four linear feet of lot frontage per child, and must meet the lot size and frontage requirements in the zoning district which it is located.

- The center must provide a minimum of 50 square feet of enclosed area per child within the structure.

- There must be a minimum of 150 square feet of outdoor activity space per child that could be expected to be outdoors at any one time.

- The activity area must be fenced.

- Storage facilities for movable outdoor play equipment must be provided.

- No more than two day care centers will be allowed in a square-mile area.

- Hours of operation will be limited to 7 a.m. until 7 p.m.

The centers that are opened in residential areas, must be located in a building that can be converted into a single family home if the center vacates the building.

Additional provisions for safeguarding the safety of youngsters and review of site plans for the day care centers are included in the ordinance.

Suspects in Bollacker murder slated in court

Two men facing murder charges in the shotgun slaying of Richard Bollacker in a Des Plaines forest preserve last June are scheduled to appear today in Cook County Circuit Court in Chicago.

Peter Mukite, 21, and Richard Del Moro, 18, both of Chicago, are under indictment for the murder of Bollacker, 21, whose body was found June 28 near Ballard and Rand roads. Bollacker was living in a West Side Chicago apartment at the time of his death.

A GRAND JURY indicted the pair for murder last August as well as for attempted murder and aggravated battery in the beating of Bollacker's girl friend, Cindy Graf, 16, of Des Plaines, who told police she witnessed the slaying.

The case has not come to trial, due to a series of motions and requests for findings of information, according to Assistant State's Atty. Thomas Fitzgerald. A court appointed psychiatrist also examined the pair and they were later judged mentally competent to stand trial.

Fitzgerald, who is prosecuting the case, declined comment yesterday on whether the two would come to trial today or if the case would be continued.

Mukite, 1823 Haddon, and Del Moro, 4723 Palmer, are being held without bond in Cook County Jail pending the trial.

They were arrested after being named as the gunmen by Miss Graf who told police she was wounded by a shotgun blast and beaten with the weapon when the two apparently ran out of ammunition.

ANOTHER CHICAGO youth, John Murphy, 17, 5514 Augusta Blvd. Chicago, was also taken into custody in connection with the death along with a 17-year old Oak Park girl.

According to reports at the time, Murphy and the girl were in an auto with Bollacker, Miss Graf, and Mukite and Del Moro. They later turned state's witnesses and Murphy was sent to prison for from 4 to 12 years after pleading guilty last August to an attempted murder charge.

The girl also gave state's evidence against Mukite and Del Moro at a hearing in Des Plaines in late August and was turned over to state juvenile authorities on a delinquency petition alleging aggravated battery against Miss Graf.

Police said the slaying may have stemmed from a love triangle involving Bollacker, Miss Graf and a friend of one of the suspects. Mukite and Del Moro were known members of a West Side Chicago street gang.

Basketball contest winners announced

Over 150 boys in fifth and sixth grade competed in the Optimist and Park District's 1st annual "Pass, Dribble and Shoot" basketball program held Jan. 28 at the local junior high schools and Rand Park, making the program a huge success.

Basketballs were awarded to the following boys who placed 1st or second in each age category and location:

Iroquois, first place — fifth grade, Nick Cozzi; second place, Jeff Hanacek. First place — sixth grade, Jim Lindemann; second place, Craig Weber.

Chippewa, first place — fifth grade, Kent Heiden; second place, Jeff Olson.

Rand Park, first place — fifth grade, Kent Heiden; second place George Brabec, and Brad Loeschetter.

Algonquin, first place — fifth grade, Danny Rorer; second place Dan Batka. First place — sixth grade, Steve Heinz; second place, Jay Redmond.

Ribbons were awarded to the runners-up. It is anticipated that this will be an annual affair during the basketball season.

Charge woman wrote bogus check

A Mount Prospect woman has been charged with deceptive practice in connection with a bad check incident at a Des Plaines grocery store.

Janet Spears, 41, of 74 N. Albert was served with a warrant Friday evening by Des Plaines police at her home.

Police charge the woman cashed a bogus check for $84.99 last Sept. 15, at Pesche's Supermarket, 170 River Rd.

The woman was later released on $1,000 bond and is scheduled to appear Feb. 14 in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

The Fryar family is still hopeful they may yet learn that Bruce is alive. "Bruce was shot down over Laos and so far they have not allowed search teams to go into Laos," said Mrs. Slice, whose son, born with a twin sister six weeks after Fryar was shot down, is named for his uncle.

"My sister Marijean said yesterday she heard that ten newsmen who were listed as missing in action have apparently been found alive. They had not been accounted for, but apparently they recorded their voices," she said.

"I'm not bitter," she added of her family's continuing ordeal, "just very disappointed."

Report on tape gap was 'the straw'

Mikva joins move to impeach Nixon

by STEVE BROWN

Former Congressman Abner Mikva has added his name to the growing list of politicians who are calling on the U.S. House of Representatives to impeach President Richard Nixon.

Mikva told The Herald yesterday that the recent report by technical experts on the 18½-minute gap in a critical Watergate tape, which determined the erasure was not accidental, was the final event prompting him to call for impeachment.

"This was too much, it appears the explanation the administration has to offer is some type of mysterious force, it appears there was some destruction of evidence, which is a very serious charge," Mikva said.

Mikva, who is currently challenging U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10, served as a member of the House Judiciary Committee.

Mikva said he had reserved comment on the impeachment question for a time because of his former membership on the committee, which is now reviewing the issue.

"THE PRESIDENCY has to be salvaged and this appears to be the only way to do it," Mikva said.

While he has explained the tape erasure was the straw that broke the camel's back, some liberal observers believe Mikva was under pressure from supporters to call for impeachment.

Mikva had taken a "wait and see" attitude some weeks ago, stating that he wanted to see if the majority of Americans wanted Nixon impeached.

Lynne Heidt, coordinator of the statewide Impeach Nixon Committee Inc. said she was "very pleased and delighted to learn of Mikva's statement." She also indicated Mikva might have bowed to the pressure of supporters on the impeachment issue.

Mikva also explained that he hopes the impeachment investigation and vote does not become a highly partisan matter.

"THIS WOULD BE the worst possible situation, if the Congress were not to remain bi-partisan on the issue," he added.

Mikva said he feels it is too early to tell if the impeachment issue will become a major issue in his campaign against Young. Young has adopted a "put up or shut up" stance on impeachment and indicated he will reserve public comment until the House Judiciary Committee completes its investigation and the matter is brought to the House floor for a vote.

The two are already at odds, however, over how quickly the impeachment investigation should be completed. Young has stated that a March 1 deadline should be imposed so that the Congress can get on to other issues; Mikva has said the committee should act as soon as possible, but that it is too important a matter to set a deadline on the issue.

March of Dimes drive

The Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines and School Dist. 62 are participating in the March of Dimes School Fund Drive. The club's Public Affairs Committee has delivered dime folders to the 10 district grade schools to distribute to all their students.

Birth defects are the nation's second greatest destroyer of life, claiming approximately 500,000 unborn babies and 60,000 children and adults each year. Some 250,000 American babies are born with birth defects every year. Birth defects cause nearly half of all childhood chronic disability.

An estimated 15 million Americans of all ages have one or more birth defects which affect their daily lives.

Court's pregnancy ruling won't affect schools here

A Supreme Court ruling that it is unconstitutional for school boards to set an arbitrary time when women teachers must give up their jobs during pregnancy will not affect school districts in Des Plaines and Elk Grove Village.

None of the three districts — Des Plaines Elementary School Dist. 62, East Maine Elementary School Dist. 63 or Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 — has an arbitrary time set for pregnancy leaves in their policy guidelines. In each case, the individual teacher meets with a district administrator to decide how long they want to continue working.

The districts also allow teachers the option of choosing when they wish to return to work after their child is born as long as they have a doctor's approval.

Robert W. Reinke, Dist. 62 assistant to the superintendent, said the district will probably have no problems with the Supreme Court decision, which was handed down last week in a 7-2 vote.

"WE DON'T HAVE a given time when a teacher has to leave," he said. "As long as they have a statement from a doctor saying they can teach, we let them."

Dist. 63 Assistant Supt. Lenore Page said East Maine deals with teachers "on an individual basis."

"When a teacher wants to begin maternity leave, she requests it. We've followed this policy for several years," she said.

Under the Dist. 63 contract agreement, a teacher may continue to work as long as her doctor approves.

The Supreme Court decision will have "absolutely no bearing whatsoever" on School Dist. 59, according to Al Walthman, assistant superintendent for personnel.

The district changed its maternity policy over 1½ years ago, according to Walthman. "We haven't had any problems and we don't anticipate any," he added.

DIST. 59 has no set date when pregnant teachers must discontinue teaching. A teacher is required to file a doctor's form with Walthman upon confirmation of pregnancy. The report includes a health report, physical limitations, if any, and the estimated date of delivery.

The pregnant teacher meets with Walthman to discuss her leave. Walthman said a teacher could work during her entire pregnancy, if she desired.

The high court's decision came in a ruling involving cases from Ohio and Virginia, where school districts required mandatory maternity leaves at the fourth month of pregnancy.

The majority ruled that setting an arbitrary time for maternity leaves violates due process of law under the 14th amendment.

HIGHJACKERS OUTLAWED. The new state vehicle code has banned cars with highrise rear ends. Cars with more than a three-inch lift or "rake" can no longer be operated on the streets. A hot rodding era passed with the new year.

MARJI BELL, art teacher at Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows, created a steel sculpture of the "Risen Christ" for the school's chapel. Mrs. Bell has designed artwork for several churches.

Woman found dead apparent suicide: police

A Des Plaines woman, the victim of an apparent suicide, was found dead in her auto in the garage next to her home.

She was identified as Diane Leland, 43, of 441 Kathleen Dr. Her body was found by her son, Douglas, 18, Sunday afternoon who discovered her lying face down on the front seat of the auto, according to police reports.

She was dead apparently of carbon monoxide poisoning, police said.

According to reports, the car's engine was not running when the woman's body was found, but police said the keys were in the ignition at the "on" position and the battery was dead.

Her body was taken to Holy Family Hospital, where she was pronounced dead at 2:45 p.m.

The youngster told police he was returning home about 12:30 p.m. but had no housekeys and when no one answered the doorbell, crawled through his bedroom window.

He was checking the house when he walked into the attached garage and noticed the woman in the auto.

Mrs. Leland's daughter Denise, told police her mother was sick and in a depressed state.

Funeral arrangements were being handled through Oehler Funeral Home, Des Plaines.

Opening pushed back three months

Heavy snows have delayed work on Alexian's new wing

by BOB GALLAS

Heavy December snows have caused an estimated three-month construction delay on the new wing at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

The $9-million dollar addition, originally scheduled for completion by June 1 of this year, is not expected to be ready for occupancy now until at least Sept. 1 of this year.

"Bad weather in December prevented roofing from being completed, which caused other delays inside," said Steve Skorz, vice-president of planning at Alexian Brothers.

Skorz said work on the 130,000 square foot addition is "about 60 to 65 per cent complete at the present time." The delay was expected to cause no major problems at the hospital, according to Skorz. "Although we are cramped for space in some departments," he added.

Another problem that hindered construction was the fact that windows ordered for the addition came in the wrong size and had to be sent back. Replacements have been received and are going in. Skorz said he didn't believe the window problem figured in the three-month delay however.

SKORCZ SAID ONE drawback due to the construction delay was that doctors scheduled to move into the addition now won't be on hand until Sept. 1.

Three of the five floors of the addition will be made up of doctor's offices. According to Skorz, about 40 to 60 area physicians are expected to move their practices into Alexian's new facilities.

Construction on the new wing was started in September of 1972. The general contractor on the project is the D. J. Velo Construction Co. of Chicago.

When completed, the new addition will also house greatly expanded emergency room and out-patient facilities. The new emergency room will eventually be five times larger than the present one, which handled over 30,000 patients last year. Outpatient facilities will be up to 17 times greater than present.

The addition will increase Alexian Brothers' bed capacity from 340 to 420. About 35 to 45 per cent of the addition will be used for shelf and storage space, according to Skorz.

The hospital serves Elk Grove Village, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Bensenville, Wood Dale, Itasca, Hanover Park and part of Arlington Heights.

It opened in 1966 under the name St. Alexius. The name was changed in 1971 after its sister facility, Alexian Brothers Hospital and School of Nursing in Chicago had closed in 1968.

BAD WEATHER has pushed back the estimated completion date of the addition to Alexian Brothers Medical Center three months. Work at the Elk Grove Village hospital was to have been completed June 1.

Group wants to plan ahead for low-income housing

"No one likes to talk about low or middle-income housing, but, there is no doubt that it is coming to Elk Grove Village," said Cathy Duoba, member of the local housing commission.

"My concern is now that low-income housing is going to come and I want the village officials in this town to decide that question and plan for it; not be told by the state how it's going to be," she added.

Mrs. Duoba and commission members Marsha Norian and Mel Bytnar are attending a two-day seminar sponsored by the National Committee against Discrimination in Housing, today and Wednesday at the Sheraton Hotel in Chicago.

"My main reason for going is to hear what the experts have to say about funding," said Mrs. Duoba.

"It's been said that our village officials are not willing to even discuss low or middle-income housing. Maybe some of them don't. But, quite a few recognize that it's something we must be knowledgeable about and eventually face," she said.

MRS. DUOBA SAID the board recently approved an approximate expenditure of $100 so the three representatives of the housing commission could attend the seminar. The money covers registration costs.

"Nobody and I mean nobody, knows anything about funding. The whole question of state funding has been so confused that I am looking for clarification during the seminar," Mrs. Duoba said.

Ed Homgren, executive director of the Leadership Council of the Metropolitan Committee, will talk about "Housing Bills in the Congressional Mill" and a HUD representative will discuss the effects of President Nixon's impoundment of housing funds.

Other speakers are Harry Gottlieb and Dale Bertsch, Regional Planning Authority representatives who will give a progress report on the regional allocation plan.

Wednesday's speakers will talk mainly about the effects low or middle-income housing could have on the environment

Area police crack down on 'raked' autos

by JOE SWICKARD

The trodders can start crying in their malts at the local drive-in.

The revised Illinois Vehicle Code, effective Jan. 1, has banned cars with the "raked" front ends and the jacked-up tails.

According to the Illinois Secretary of State's office, cars with modified suspension systems that raise the body more than three inches from its original position, or cars with more than a three-inch difference between the height of the front and rear bumper cannot be legally operated on the roads.

As a result of the new code, those hot cars with the high-rise rearends that look like fuel-injected bloodhounds sniffing the pavement will be confined to garages, custom auto shows or the dragstrip.

Des Plaines police Lt. James Roel said tickets will be issued whenever violations of the new law are found.

HE SAID drivers with raked-up cars and modified bumpers are imposing on other motorists and will be ticketed in accordance with the law.

Lt. William Kohnke of the Elk Grove Village police, said no special enforcement plan is contemplated but men on the force will be keeping an eye out for the modified vehicles.

"Warning tickets will probably be issued first and after that drivers will face a real ticket," said Kohnke.

Lt. Kohnke said "It's a good law that will take unsafe cars off the road. Shifting the center of gravity makes the car more susceptible to roll overs and accidents. It was a costly fad whose popularity seems to be diminishing."

Sgt. Jack Weber of the Arlington Heights police traffic division, said his department was unaware of the new ruling. He said there may be some trouble enforcing the new law until the department receives formal notification.

OTHER POLICE departments said they were holding back until they received notification from the state.

Mount Prospect police said they "know about the law," but no tickets were being issued until they received the revised statutes.

Lt. Thomas Conte of the Wheeling police, said his men were not going to stop the raked cars until they get it in writing from the state.

However, the streetrodders had better steer clear of Buffalo Grove, because po-

Gas pumps near 'empty'

Northwest suburban service stations shutting at mid-day

by KURT BAER

Gasoline dealers throughout the Northwest suburbs are running on empty.

Sales at the pump are being limited to the early morning hours as dealers find they must shut down by mid-day to stretch their end of the month reserves.

In Washington, federal energy czar William E. Simon said Monday he hopes gasoline production can be stepped up soon to stave off rationing this spring.

And in Chicago, U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., called for a rollback in crude oil prices and new price controls on the U.S. oil industry.

Meanwhile, hundreds of service station

operators stiffened their own rationing controls to avert a total area-wide shutdown.

SEVERAL MOTORISTS told The Herald they could not find any stations in Arlington Heights selling gas Monday afternoon. Some station managers say they already have received part of their February allocation but would continue to limit sales to prevent a run on their pumps.

Most dealers said they hope their self-imposed rationing will head off earlier predictions of massive station closings by the end of the week.

A spot check of stations Monday turned up a recurrent refrain of long lines, short hours and near non-existent supplies.

"People are lined up here like it's going out of style, or like I'm giving it away," said an attendant at Carl's Mobil Service, Mount Prospect.

And at the Shell station at River Road and Euclid Avenue, manager Clair Ruggles said he was saving gas for his regular customers, "people who have been with us for years. We have to take care of our own."

RUGGLES SAID Shell has given him 90 days notice after which the company plans to terminate his lease — unless he buys the station for $150,000. He added that he could make the purchase if he could buy gas. "But they (Shell) won't sell you any," he said.

A survey of seven stations in Rolling Meadows showed that all pumps were locked after morning except, in a few cases, for the evening rush hours.

Bill Hunter, owner of Southland Shell, said there were 12 to 15 cars waiting at his pumps when he opened for business Monday morning.

"Everyone's going to be riding their bikes this weekend," said Bill Miska, owner of Rolling Meadows Shell. "I don't think anyone has gas." His station is already out of gasoline and will receive only 8,000 gallons of its February allocation on Thursday.

State police had to break up lines at the Standard station, Wilke and Algonquin roads, early Monday. "It was unreal," reported an attendant.

Four service stations in Palatine pumped their day's quota in two or three hours yesterday morning.

Robert Franz, owner of Bob's Union 76 at 5 W. Palatine Rd., said his daily quota of 12,000 gallons usually lasts for five or six hours. It was gone in just over two hours Monday.

IN ELK GROVE Village, a line of cars a half-mile long went away empty from Grove City when the station shut its pumps at 3:45 p.m. The manager said his station will remain closed until delivery of his February allocation, and he had no idea when that might be.

Some are still waiting for men who went off to war

by TONI GINETTI

Mrs. Dawn Slice didn't need a special day Sunday to remember the men still listed as missing in action from a war in Southeast Asia which for most Americans ended last year.

Mrs. Slice is the sister of a MIA, Navy Lt. Bruce Fryar. Since December, 1969, when she learned that her brother had been lost in a bombing mission over Laos, Mrs. Slice and her family have been awaiting word on the fate of her brother.

Young Lt. Fryar, then 25, was a Navy pilot on his last mission before a rest and recreation layoff in Japan. He and his navigator, Lt. Nick Brooks, were last seen ejecting from their plane which had been shot down over Laos.

Fryar and Brooks are only two of more than 1,300 Vietnam War veterans still unaccounted for by the United States government. Sunday they were to be remembered on what had been proclaimed Missing In Action Awareness Day by President Nixon.

FAMILIES OF AREA MIAs met in Chicago Sunday for the observance. Mrs. Slice and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll E. Fryar of Rolling Meadows did not attend — but not because they are not concerned.

The family last year undertook a letter-writing campaign urging more than 300 individuals and organizations to write to congressmen and the White House to demand an accounting of the MIAs.

"As far as the senators and congressmen, the most we have ever gotten back is a form letter," Mrs. Slice said. "I feel now that they (the government) could be doing a lot more."

Mrs. Slice, who resides in Hoffman Estates, said the family has heard nothing from the government during the past year on Bruce's fate. His wife Diane, who lives in Virginia with the couple's young daughter, has apparently received no further information either.

"There is a Navy officer who contacts my parents very regularly, but he doesn't know anything more," Mrs. Slice said.

MUCH OF the information on the MIA situation the Fryars receive still comes from Voices in Vital America (VIVA), the organization which produced prisoner of war and MIA bracelets.

Mrs. Slice said, however, the organization is having its problems. "One of the women on the board has decided that there is no hope and is apparently trying to dissolve the group," she said. "But Mr. Brooks (the father of the navigator shot down with Fryar) says it should continue until all the families are answered."

The Fryar family is still hopeful they may yet learn that Bruce is alive. "Bruce was shot down over Laos and so far they have not allowed search teams to go into Laos," said Mrs. Slice, whose son, born with a twin sister six weeks after Fryar was shot down, is named for his uncle.

"My sister Marijean said yesterday she heard that ten newsmen who were listed as missing in action have apparently been found alive. They had not been accounted for, but apparently they recorded their voices," she said.

"I'm not bitter," she added of her family's continuing ordeal, "just very disappointed."

Alarm salesmen and local fire officials wait for the flames.

Firemen firebugs

Frame house to be burned today is used for department training

by STIRLING MORITA

Schaumburg firemen are seeing fires from both ends — start and finish.

Small fires have been set by firemen for department drills in a two-story, frame house just east of Schaumburg High School on Schaumburg Road. Demonstrations of a heat and smoke sensory alarm system were given at the structure, which must be razed before construction can begin at the site of the new police station.

Officials of Elk Grove Village, Arlington Heights and Hoffman Estates fire departments watched the alarm demonstrations put on by Diagraph Security Systems, Morton Grove, which deals chiefly in home fire alarms.

SOME FIREFIGHTERS set fire to an old chair and mattresses, and others rushed in to douse the flames with hand-pump extinguishers. Dense smoke made the men's eyes water, and a few coughs were emitted, but the fires were quickly extinguished.

The house is scheduled for burning today.

In between exercises Thursday morning, one truck was called away to check on smoke at a Schaumburg home where a fire had been extinguished earlier that morning.

The firefighters, wearied from the morning's battle with the fire, continued with the day's drill.

A fireman torched papers in an old chair, and little more than a minute later the heat detector sounded a bell. Fifteen seconds later the smoke detector in the hallway sounded its alarm. The heat alarm goes off at 135 degrees, and cannot be set off by a person smoking a cigarette.

Walter Fizdale, treasurer for the alarm company, noted the alarms had sounded while there was very little smoke in the back bedroom area and a person sleeping there would have had no problem finding his way out.

"WE'RE IN THIS business to save lives," said Fizdale. "These alarms are designed to give a person a minimum of four minutes to get out and as much as seven."

The company, which has as its board chairman Chicago's former Chief Fire Marshal Curtis Volkamer, will not sell single units, Fizdale added. The company will only sell an entire system designed to the house, he said.

An average homeowner might spend from $500 to $1,000 for such a system, depending upon the number of rooms in the house and the air draft situation in the structure, Fizdale said.

And a minute and 10 seconds later, the bell.

lice there are aware of the law.

The law is being enforced "whenever we see them," said Sgt. Ronald Gozdecki, of the Buffalo Grove police. Palatine and Rolling Meadows police are aware of the new law. Rolling Meadows policemen each have a copy of the statute and are on the lookout for offenders.

Scully's Kustom Shop of Wheeling does body customizing, but the manager said the raked fronts and jacked backs have fallen from favor.

"You'll see those in 'American Graffiti' when you go to the movie. They're not doing that too much any more. It was a fad and it's pretty much died out. You may see a couple like that once in a while, though," he said.

He said the extreme rake was "impractical."

"It would affect the steering and your visibility was messed up. It also threw your braking system out of line. On a damp day if you had to hit the brakes hard, you'd find your rear end in front of you," he said.

Scully's assessment of the custom-car scene is accurate. The February issue of Hot Rod magazine shows the only cars with the extreme profiles roaring down the dragstrip in the "funny car" class. Those drivers probably figure they would rather take their chances on the strips than battle the commuter's daily double.

Salary negotiations to open next month

Salary negotiations for the 1974-75 school year between High School Dist. 211 teachers and board members will begin next month.

The Dist. 211 Board of Education selected its negotiating team during its board meeting Thursday night. Board member Glenn Hargrave was appointed chairman and spokesman for the team. Anna Countryman will serve on the team and Board Pres. Robert Creek will be an alternate.

Dan O'Brien, president of the Dist. 211 Education Assn., said the faculty negotiating committee has selected Shirley Mertz, teacher at Conant High School, as chairman of the teachers' negotiating team and Jan Crowe, teacher at Fremd High School, as publicity director.

O'Brien said the committee still must appoint a recorder and spokesman for its team. The faculty is considering the appointment of David Tomchek, area representative for the Illinois Education Assn., as its spokesman, he said. The Dist. 211 Education Assn. is affiliated with the IEA.

This year the board and teachers agreed on a 4 per cent increase in the salary schedule, which raised the base pay for beginning teachers from $8,600 to $8,950. The highest pay, for teachers with 16 years' experience, a master's degree and 30 additional hours of college credit was increased from $18,275 to $19,018.

Neither side has prepared a proposal for this year's contract. Their first meeting has tentatively been scheduled for Feb. 15.

Hargrave said he is optimistic about this year's negotiations. "The atmosphere this year has been superb," he said, and the both sides thought this year's contract was a good one.

"Based on last year's negotiations," O'Brien said, "I am optimistic that this year we can get to the main problems and solve them before school is out."

Classroom use for computer?

High School Dist. 211 officials are exploring ways to expand their computer system so it can be used for data processing courses in the district's five high schools.

The district now uses its IBM 1401 computer for administrative work such as budgeting and payroll. This year Dist. 211 has an experimental program in data processing at Conant High School and school officials would like to implement the program in the district's other schools.

Associate Supt. Bruce Altergott told Dist. 211 board members Thursday the district could buy a larger computer and use it for both administration and instruction or it could buy a second small computer system for instructional use only.

Altergott said he will visit other schools to examine their computer systems and will explore the possibilities of a cooperative arrangement with Harper College, High School Dist. 214, or Barrington High School and prepare a recommendation.

Language programs altered

The High School Dist. 211 Board of Education has revised English and foreign language programs in the district's five high schools by breaking some one-year courses into single-semester courses.

Next year the year-long required course in junior English will be replaced by eight one semester specialized courses which will be offered on three student ability levels, accelerated, regular and lower ability. A junior will be able to choose one of these courses each semester. The new courses are American classics, highlights of American literature, views of minorities, challenge of the frontiers, tales of mystery and adventure in fact and fiction, science fiction and fantasy, contemporary American literature and American social conscience.

The third and fourth year foreign language courses will be broken down into semesters. A student will then be able to take just one semester of language instead of an entire year.

The board also approved an experimental foreign language program for Palatine High School next year. Students in their third year of a language will be able to take specialized courses in conversation, novel, short stories, drama, national character and independent study.

and about court cases concerning fair housing.

Mrs. Duoba commended the village boards action in approving funds for commission members to learn more about housing.

"I think this proves they recognize that an informed village and commission is the good way to go," she said.

"THE HOUSING and plan commissions are working now to set up a joint meeting so we can exchange information about the latest Regional Housing Coalition plans," she said. The commissions will meet in February.

"I'd like the commissions working with village officials of Elk Grove to come up with a plan for accepting our share of the responsibility concerning low and middle-income and housing for the elderly," she said.

Mrs. Duoba believes that communities that don't prepare eventually will be given a state command to do so.

"I'd rather see Elk Grove Village put together a plan that is done well than be told to get one ready in 60 days," she said.

Savings bonds, watch taken from local home

The theft of 61 United States Savings Bonds worth $1,625, a gold watch, antique pistol and camera are being investigated by Elk Grove Village police.

Willis Tatge, 47, of 513 Oakton St. told police the items he valued at $1,615 were taken from a chest in his home sometime this month.

Show's over; Ali wins in decision

by JIM COOK
and PAUL LOGAN

Muhammad Ali, looking a little like his old quick self, won a unanimous decision against Joe Frazier in a non-title heavyweight fight last night at New York's Madison Square Garden.

The 32-year-old former champion rallied, starting in the ninth round, for the dramatic come-from-behind victory.

In the ninth, a dancing and smiling Frazier waved to Ali to come on. Ali, fighting for his life, came on! Although bleeding from the nose slightly, he used combinations to beat back Frazier as the crowd chanted "Ali! Ali! Ali!" Neither fighter scored a knockdown.

Ali followed his masterful ninth round with steady improvement showing plenty of speed and dancing ability in the crucial twelfth and final round.

Frazier's confidence came in the sixth, seventh and eighth rounds, when he carried the attack to Ali as well as the talking.

Ali exhibited his famed shuttle in the early rounds and even at the bell after the first two rounds. Frazier, the relentless aggressor throughout the fight, hammered away with body punches at the expense of Ali jabs and combinations to the head.

Ali survived Smoking Joe's haymaker attack by clinching in the corners and along the ropes as referee Tony Perez hesitantly separated the former heavyweight champions.

Arlington Park's Paramount Ballroom was crowded with 3,500 standing-room-only fans long before the fight began.

Arlington Park even went as far as to lock the gates surrounding the hotel.

Just as in 1971, both beautiful people and average joes flocked into the huge hotel complex. The 1,100-car parking lot was filled to capacity an hour before the main event.

Fight fans milled around the lobby after leaving coats piled on chairs. While others formed long lines at the many portable bars.

Several persons seemed anxious to discuss their favorites. Some reactions were:

"I think Clay's got him . . . Ali . . . if he keeps his cool," said Jack Sangunetti, an account executive for a New York advertising agency who is staying over before returning to Tucson, Ariz.

"I'VE BEEN GOING TO fights since he was Clay and beat Liston (Sonny Liston for the title in 1964)," added the lanky well-dressed southerner with long brown cowboy boots.

"I came to the first fight," said Mrs. Barbara Gruetzmacher, of Midlothian, a stockholder with Madison Square Garden. "I like Muhammad Ali . . . only because he's so colorful. I favor him."

"Sure have," said Mike Morgan of Des Plaines, in commenting on if he had ever seen a heavyweight fight. A tall meticulously dressed man, he said he saw the last heavyweight fight between the two at his old home, Los Angeles.

"I like Ali," he said. "I liked him the first time. I think he won it (then)."

Morgan called Ali the people's choice for a champion because "I think he has more class than Frazier. He's a good fighter."

Village reviews storm sewer plan for flood area

The pros and cons of the controversial storm sewer planned to relieve the flood-prone Hellen Road-Cedar Street area of Palatine were rehearsed again last night.

No decision has been reached by the Palatine village board at Herald press time last night.

John Hooper, engineer for the anti-sewer forces; James Muldowney, engineer for the pro-sewer forces, and Walter Hodel, village engineer, all presented reports that concurred that enlargement of the existing storm sewers would have no discernible adverse effect on flooding in the area.

Hooper said he was less than optimistic that the proposed storm sewer would prevent flooding in the area at all. Village President Wendell E. Jones reviewed the history of the project dating back to last July, prior to opening the discussion. Approximately 30 residents were at the meeting to discuss the project.

THE PROPOSED 18-inch storm sewer would replace an existing 15-inch sewer and be installed north on Cedar Street and east on Hellen Road. The estimated cost of the project is $12,000.

Work on the project would start after the village's dredging and widening of Salt Creek has been completed.

Nearly 50 families from the area, mostly on West Hellen Road, have objected to the sewer installation, contending it would aid only two families and would worsen flooding in the rest of the neighborhood.

The storm sewer projects have also been clouded from the start with accusations of a political payoff. Opponents of the project contend the Republican trustees are installing the storm sewer as a political payoff to John V. Serio, 321 S. Cedar St., a Republican campaign worker during last April's election.

The initial go-ahead for the controversial project was given by the board in July with construction slated to begin two months later.

UNDER THREAT of a lawsuit, and in view of a petition from opponents of the project, the board agreed to reconsider its decision to install the storm sewer in August.

The three engineers representing all factions of the controversy were hired in August to study the likely effects of the project on flooding. The cost of the engineer's studies is being financed by the village.

Jones stated at the time he would favor dropping the project if the engineers could not reach a consensus on the likely effects of the storm sewer.

Joint hearing on master plan tonight

A joint public hearing on the updated master plan for Palatine will be held by the Palatine Village Board and Palatine Plan Commission today at 8 p.m. at village hall, 54 S. Brockway St.

The updated master plan covers a 13,500-acre area extending north to Lake Cook Road, east to Wilke Road, south to Algonquin Road and west to Roselle Road.

The village's planning area includes more than 5,000 acres of vacant land, mostly in unincorporated Palatine Township.

Highlights of the master plan include a thoroughfare plan for the planning area. The top priorities of the thoroughfare plan are the intersection of Plum Grove and Palatine Roads, the extension of Rohlwing Road, improvements on Illinois Street and an interchange at Northwest Tollway and Roselle Road, according to Wilton Battles, the planner. There will also be recommendations for changes in traffic patterns and streets in the downtown area.

The construction of five additional fire stations is recommended to cover Palatine's future boundaries.

There has been an unofficial moratorium on many construction projects until the master plan is approved.

Gas pumps near 'empty'

Northwest suburban service stations shutting at mid-day

by KURT BAER

Gasoline dealers throughout the Northwest suburbs are running on empty.

Sales at the pump are being limited to the early morning hours as dealers find they must shut down by mid-day to stretch their end of the month reserves.

In Washington, federal energy czar William E. Simon said Monday he hopes gasoline production can be stepped up soon to stave off rationing this spring.

And in Chicago, U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., called for a rollback in crude oil prices and new price controls on the U.S. oil industry.

Meanwhile, hundreds of service station

operators stiffened their own rationing controls to avert a total area-wide shutdown.

SEVERAL MOTORISTS told The Herald they could not find any stations in Arlington Heights selling gas Monday afternoon. Some station managers say they already have received part of their February allocation but would continue to limit sales to prevent a run on their pumps.

Most dealers said they hope their self-imposed rationing will head off earlier predictions of massive station closings by the end of the week.

A spot check of stations Monday turned up a recurrent refrain of long lines, short hours and near non-existent supplies.

"People are lined up here like it's going out of style, or like I'm giving it away," said an attendant at Carl's Mobil Service, Mount Prospect.

And at the Shell station at River Road and Euclid Avenue, manager Clair Ruggles said he was saving gas for his regular customers, "people who have been with us for years. We have to take care of our own."

RUGGLES SAID Shell has given him 90 days notice after which the company plans to terminate his lease — unless he buys the station for $150,000. He added that he could make the purchase if he could buy gas. "But they (Shell) won't sell you any," he said.

A survey of seven stations in Rolling Meadows showed that all pumps were locked after morning except, in a few cases, for the evening rush hours.

Bill Hunter, owner of Southland Shell, said there were 12 to 15 cars waiting at his pumps when he opened for business Monday morning.

"Everyone's going to be riding their bikes this weekend," said Bill Miska, owner of Rolling Meadows Shell. "I don't think anyone has gas." His station is already out of gasoline and will receive only 8,000 gallons of its February allocation on Thursday.

State police had to break up lines at the Standard station, Wilke and Algonquin roads, early Monday. "It was unreal," reported an attendant.

Four service stations in Palatine pumped their day's quota in two or three hours yesterday morning.

Robert Franz, owner of Bob's Union 76 at 5 W. Palatine Rd., said his daily quota of 12,000 gallons usually lasts for five or six hours. It was gone in just over two hours Monday.

IN ELK GROVE Village, a line of cars a half-mile long went away empty from Grove Cito when the station shut its pumps at 3:45 p.m. The manager said his station will remain closed until delivery of his February allocation, and he had no idea when that might be.

Burglar, caught in act, sprays victim, then flees

Arlington Heights police are searching for a burglar who escaped from an apartment by spraying a disabling chemical in the face of a man who surprised him.

According to reports, a resident of Dana Point Apartments surprised a burglar in the act when he returned home unexpectedly. The burglar then sprayed an unknown chemical in the face of the man and fled.

Police said the victim attempted to pursue the burglar, who ran into the apartment complex parking lot and fled by car.

The burglar was described as being about six feet tall and weighing about 200 pounds. Police said the victim, whose name was not released, said the burglar had short brown hair and was wearing a brown corduroy coat and tan pants.

The burglar is believed to have escaped in a blue and white late model Dodge.

Police said the victim was not seriously injured by the unknown chemical.

Pleasant Hills election

New officers will be elected at the Homeowners Association of Pleasant Hills Area meeting on Thursday at 8 p.m. at the American Legion Hall, 122 W. Palatine Rd.

Nominated are: Art Graf, president; John Parise, vice president and village liaison; Chet Lozowski, treasurer; Kay Burke, secretary; LeRoy Pomphum, water, drainage and sewer; Bill Savage, membership; Milly Warner, publicity; Charlotte Aragnost, social; and Carolyn Gunder, school district and park board liaison.

Information will be provided on the flood prevention plan and master plan for Palatine at the meeting. Annual membership dues of $4 may be paid at the meeting or mailed to Mary Pomphum, 441 S. Hart, Palatine.

Feminique trip set for play Feb. 20

The Palatine Park District's next Feminique trip is scheduled Feb. 20 for the award winning play at the Studebaker Theatre, "That Championship Season," starring Forrest Tucker.

The cost is $14.50 a person which includes transportation, lunch, tax and gratuities. The women will lunch in the Pompeian Room of the Pick Congress Hotel. The coach bus will depart at 11:15 a.m. and return to Community Park at 5:30 p.m.

More information is available at 359-0333.

Meadows family waiting for MIA

The war is over for Americans, but in some homes the wait goes on. One of the more than 1,300 families with relatives missing in action in Southeast Asia is that of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Fryar of Rolling Meadows. Their son, Bruce, a Navy pilot, was shot down over Laos in December 1969. There's been no word for more than four years. The family is still hopeful and a sister, Mrs. Dawn Slice of Hoffman Estates, notes that search parties have not been allowed in Laos. "I'm not bitter," she said, "just very disappointed."

Snow delays Alexian wing

Snow has caused a three-month delay in construction of a new wing at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village. The $9 million addition, which will provide 130,000 square feet of space, is about 60 per cent completed.

Wheeling policeman suspended

A Wheeling policeman has been suspended for a day, apparently as a result of two alleged drunk driving incidents in Buffalo Grove. Lt. Ronald Nelson was stopped twice by Buffalo Grove police in December. Although he wasn't charged, Nelson did get a warning by letter from Buffalo Grove police not to repeat the incidents. The suspension came after The Herald disclosed Nelson's driving problems.

Mikva joins impeachment move

Impeachment wasn't an issue in the 10th District rematch this fall between U.S. Rep. Samuel Young and former congressman Abner Mikva. It wasn't an issue, that is, until Mikva jumped off the fence last weekend and declared that President Nixon must go. "This was too much," he said of the disclosure that the 18½-minute White House tape gap apparently was not an accidental erasure. "It appears the explanation the administration has to offer is some type of mysterious force. It appears there was some destruction of evidence, which is a very serious charge." Said Democrat Mikva: "The Presidency has to be salvaged and this appears to be the only way to do it." Young, a Republican who has supported Nixon, is reserving comment until an impeachment measure comes to the House floor.

State told Maryville site OK

A soil test report saying the Maryville Academy property in Des Plaines is "definitely suitable" for a new River Trails Dist. 28 school has been forwarded to state officials. After an earlier test, the Illinois Capital Development Board ruled the site unacceptable. School district officials are hopeful that the new data will encourage the state board to reverse its earlier decision.

Mrs. Ogilvie still No. 1

Pols, pals keep low license plates

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — A low-numbered license plate? Well, in theory, anyone can get one. In practice, it's difficult — especially for the numbers "1" through "10."

According to a list released yesterday by Secretary of State Michael Howlett, none of the top 10 Illinois license plates changed hands between 1973 and 1974 license years.

That means, basically, that politicians and former politicians kept a firm grip on their prestigious plates.

No. 1, for instance, stayed with Dorothy Ogilvie, wife of former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie. At last report, the state's top nonofficial plate was affixed to a Chevrolet Vega.

MRS. OGILVIE first got the plate in 1972, several years after the Chicago Roman Catholic Archdiocese surrendered it on grounds it was too ostentatious. Then Secretary of State John W. Lewis kept the plate out of circulation until Ogilvie bought a car late in 1971.

No. 2 also belongs to a former governor — Otto Kerner. And yet another former governor's family — that of William Stratton — holds No. 6.

Past secretaries of state also show again on the top 10 list. Mrs. Alta Carpentier, wife of former Secretary Donald Carpentier, holds No. 3 and Margaret Hensey, secretary to former Secretary Paul Powell, has retained her No. 7 plate for another year.

Those assignments place six of the top seven plates in the hands of past officeholders, their families or friends. The other — No. 4 — is held by G. W. Cavanaugh of the Chicago Motor Club.

No. 8 was retained this year by Mary M. Ellis, widow of Oscar Ellis of East Moline. No. 9 was kept by Dr. Preston Bradley, a Chicago minister. And No. 10 went for another year to W. Ogden Vredenburg, a Springfield lumber magnate.

THE STUDY of low-numbered plates, as usual, produced some new connections this year. For example, a formerly obscure Chicago financier renewed his lease on No. 67. He is Anthony G. Angelos, the man Gov. Daniel Walker appointed state insurance director but who withdrew under heavy criticism.

For those well enough connected to get them in the first place, it's easy to hold onto the prestigious plates. State law provides that a person can renew his number indefinitely, provided he applies for it each year before a given deadline.

That provision, however, doesn't stop others from trying. "When someone with a two-digit plate dies, we have calls, letters and telegrams asking for the number before the body is cold," a secretary of state's employee said a few years ago.

And Mrs. Ruth C. Montgomery of Springfield, who has had No. 13 in her family since 1916, says she has been offered "fabulous sums of money for it. How much? Oh, I'd rather not say."

1974 cars easily damaged, tests reveal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Crash tests show that 1974 model cars overall are no more damage-resistant than last year's models, and in some cases are worse, the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety said yesterday.

The institute since 1969 has tested seven U.S. auto models for damage in front, rear and side crashes at various low speeds.

"I regret to have to report today that overall, the progress (of previous years) has been greatly slowed, and for some models, stopped," institute president William Haddon Jr. testified before a House commerce subcommittee.

"Even worse, for others the progress has actually been reversed," he said.

THE POOREST performer in the tests this year was the Plymouth Fury, which sustained $119.75 in damage in the 5 m.p.h. front-into-barrier crash test. The Fury also sustained the greatest damage in the other barrier crash tests.

Cars sustaining the least damage were the AMC Gremlin and the Chevrolet Impala, with no damage at all in either the front or rear crashes at 5 m.p.h.

The other four models tested were the Ford Galaxie, the AMC Ambassador, the Chevrolet Vega, and the Ford Pinto. The Pinto also did relatively well in the barrier crashes.

Haddon said all models except the Fury showed encouraging results in the rear-end barrier crash, perhaps because of "slightly toughened" federal standards.

"But in 10 and 5 m.p.h. front-into-barrier tests, the designs of the 1974 models encouraged damage costing as much to repair, on average, as the comparable 1973 models," he said.

HADDON ALSO said that despite federal standards designed to prevent bumper mismatch in crashes between various makes of autos, "some 1974 model cars are so designed that in our tests their bumpers actually promoted under-ride and override" in the 10 m.p.h. front-into-corner crashes.

The sides of 1974 models are so designed that repair costs in low-speed side crashes reached a "remarkable high" of an average $452.68 for the seven models tested, he said.

The institute was critical of the Transportation Department for its failure to set bumper crash standards for crashes below 20 m.p.h. So far, the institute said, the government has issued only "proposed" standards for 5 m.p.h. crashes.

Haddon said some manufacturers had proved they could produce cars that would resist damage in low-speed crashes, "but others are proving, by their expensive repair bills in the same impact tests, that in all too many cases manufacturers have decided to withhold that protection from their new car buyers."

Crash costs on '74 autos are listed

WASHINGTON — Following are test results on barrier crashes of 1974 model cars by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety:

The four figures following each car represent the respective dollar damage in 5 m.p.h. front-end, 5 m.p.h. rear-end, 10 m.p.h. front and 15 m.p.h. front barrier crashes.

Chevrolet Impala — 0, 0, 289.02, 709.23.

Hospital plans foundation to raise money

The board of directors at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights are planning to establish a hospital foundation for the purpose of raising funds.

The Northwest Community Hospital board will be made up of industrial leaders who will generate funds and direct the use of funds, according to a statement by Harold Dotts, chairman of the board of directors, at the hospital's annual meeting last night.

Dotts said that with constrictions imposed by the government's Cost of Living Council, it is "very difficult" to maintain quality hospitals because of constraints on hospital prices and services.

"Where is that money coming from to provide new and sophisticated equipment and the technological progress in the health care field," said Dotts.

According to the annual report given last night by Malcolm D. MacCoun, president of Northwest Community Hospital, a 40-bed unit is expected to open in April in order to accommodate a projected load increase.

Officials are also planning to move into a new emergency suite. The facility, expected to be completed soon, will shorten the waiting time for emergency and ambulatory patients.

SERVING THIS AREA FOR 17 YEARS

by TONI GINETTI

Mrs. Dawn Slice didn't need a special day Sunday to remember the men still listed as missing in action from a war in Southeast Asia which for most Americans ended last year.

Mrs. Slice is the sister of a MIA, Navy Lt. Bruce Fryar. Since December, 1969, when she learned that her brother had been lost in a bombing mission over Laos, Mrs. Slice and her family have been awaiting word on the fate of her brother.

Young Lt. Fryar, then 25, was a Navy pilot on his last mission before a rest and recreation layoff in Japan. He and his navigator, Lt. Nick Brooks, were last seen ejecting from their plane which had been shot down over Laos.

Fryar and Brooks are only two of more than 1,300 Vietnam War veterans still unaccounted for by the United States government. Sunday they were to be remembered on what had been proclaimed Missing In Action Awareness Day by President Nixon.

FAMILIES OF AREA MIAs met in Chicago Sunday for the observance. Mrs. Slice and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll E. Fryar of Rolling Meadows did not attend — but not because they are not concerned.

The family last year undertook a letter-writing campaign urging more than 300 individuals and organizations to write to congressmen and the White House to demand an accounting of the MIAs.

"As far as the senators and congressmen, the most we have ever gotten back is a form letter," Mrs. Slice said. "I feel now that they (the government) could be doing a lot more."

Mrs. Slice, who resides in Hoffman Estates, said the family has heard nothing from the government during the past year on Bruce's fate. His wife Diane, who lives in Virginia with the couple's young daughter, has apparently received no further information either.

"There is a Navy officer who contacts my parents very regularly, but he doesn't know anything more," Mrs. Slice said.

MUCH OF the information on the MIA situation the Fryars receive still comes from Voices in Vital America (VIVA), the organization which produced prisoner of war and MIA bracelets.

Mrs. Slice said, however, the organization is having its problems. "One of the women on the board has decided that there is no hope and is apparently trying to dissolve the group," she said. "But Mr. Brooks (the father of the navigator shot down with Fryar) says it should continue until all the families are answered."

The Fryar family is still hopeful they may yet learn that Bruce is alive. "Bruce was shot down over Laos and so far they have not allowed search teams to go into Laos," said Mrs. Slice, whose son, born with a twin sister six weeks after Fryar was shot down, is named for his uncle.

"My sister Marijean said yesterday she heard that ten newsmen who were listed as missing in action have apparently been found alive. They had not been accounted for, but apparently they recorded their voices," she said.

"I'm not bitter," she added of her family's continuing ordeal, "just very disappointed."

Parks slate 'Hansel and Gretel' trip

The Palatine Park District is sponsoring a Feb. 23 trip to the performance of Hansel and Gretel at the Mill Run Theater in Niles.

Forty tickets are available and reservations may be made at the administration building in Community Park between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturdays.

The cost is $2.50 per person which includes transportation and admission. More information is available at 359-0333.

Bomb threat closes St. Viator early

Arlington Heights police yesterday received a telephone call informing them of a bomb threat at St. Viator High School, 1213 E. Oakton, Arlington Heights.

The Rev. Patrick Render, head of student personnel, said that police notified school officials of the threat early yesterday afternoon. Police checked but found nothing.

The students were dismissed from their classes for the day.

Heavy snows have delayed work on Alexian's new wing

by BOB GALLAS

Heavy December snows have caused an estimated three-month construction delay on the new wing at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

The $9-million dollar addition, originally scheduled for completion by June 1 of this year, is not expected to be ready for occupancy now until at least Sept. 1 of this year.

"Bad weather in December prevented roofing from being completed, which caused other delays inside," said Steve Skorcz, vice-president of planning at Alexian Brothers.

Skorcz said work on the 130,000 square foot addition is "about 60 to 65 per cent complete at the present time." The delay was expected to cause no major problems at the hospital, according to Skorcz. "Although we are crammed for space in some departments," he added.

Another problem that hindered construction was the fact that windows ordered for the addition came in the wrong size and had to be sent back. Replacements have been received and are going in. Skorcz said he didn't believe the window problem figured in the three-month delay however.

SKORCZ SAID ONE drawback due to the construction delay was that doctors scheduled to move into the addition now won't be on hand until Sept. 1.

Three of the five floors of the addition will be made up of doctor's offices. According to Skorcz, about 40 to 60 area physicians are expected to move their practices into Alexian's new facilities.

Construction on the new wing was started in September of 1972. The general contractor on the project is the D. J. Velo Construction Co. of Chicago.

When completed, the new addition will also house greatly expanded emergency room and out-patient facilities. The new emergency room will eventually be five times larger than the present one, which handled over 30,000 patients last year. Outpatient facilities will be up to 17

Trim class has openings

Palatine Park District's modern trim class still has openings in the 7 p.m. Tuesday classes at Maple Park.

Jan McKenzie, class instructor, introduces, demonstrates and assists women in learning how to exercise properly so they understand what each exercise is for and which muscles to concentrate on. The class stresses dance-rhythm exercises accompanied by music. The class also includes basic diet hints, self image and defining objectives and goals.

Women interested in more information should contact the park office at 359-0333.

The addition will increase Alexian Brothers' bed capacity from 340 to 420. About 35 to 45 per cent of the addition will be used for shelf and storage space, according to Skorcz.

The hospital serves Elk Grove Village, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Bensenville, Wood Dale, Itasca, Hanover Park and part of Arlington Heights.

It opened in 1966 under the name St. Alexius. The name was changed in 1971 after its sister facility, Alexian Brothers Hospital and School of Nursing in Chicago had closed in 1968.

Bonnie Burrow wins dance

Bonnie Burrow of Palatine danced her way to a $500 prize in a recent dance contest in Carbondale, Ill.

Miss Burrow and her partner, Scott Brougham, outdanced 10 other couples in the crowd's opinion to capture the prize.

Miss Burrow plans to donate $25 of her share of the winnings to the Forgotten Children's Fund sponsored by the Chicago radio station WIND.

Miss Burrow is a 1969 graduate of William Fremd High School and currently a student at Southern Illinois University.

Village mails flood bill

Copies of Palatine's recently adopted Flood Plain Ordinance are being sent to other municipalities in the hope they will enact similar legislation to prevent flooding.

Palatine's ordinance prohibits construction and restricts certain land uses within flood plain areas. The ordinance has a transfer system whereby property adjacent to flood plains may be developed with credits for preserving the flood plain.

"We believe the ordinance is one of the first flood plain regulations to take a positive, innovative position toward the use of flood plains. . . It is our hope that other government bodies will enact similar legislation to prevent flooding and encourage better development of areas surrounding flood basins," states the letter.

Cub Pack 182 holds Derby

Cub Scout Pack 182 had its annual Pinewood Derby last week at Palatine Presbyterian Church, with four winners getting awards for having the fastest cars in their dens.

Pack champion Paul Henrichs will represent the pack at the March 8 Signal Hill District runoff in Barrington. Other winners are Eddie Moudry, Chris Benson and Doug Wadsworth. Matt Helander was awarded a trophy for the best-designed car. All cars were constructed by father-and-son teams.

Pancake brunch Sunday

The Palatine Lions Club will serve its annual pancake brunch on Sunday from 8 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at St. Thomas of Villanova parish hall, 1141 E. Anderson Dr.

Tickets for the pancake brunch at $1.25 per person and children five and under are free. Tickets can be purchased from any member of the Lions Club or at the door. Proceeds from the event will be used by the Lions to support and aid blind, deaf and other handicapped.

Chess club being formed

A new chess club is being formed in Palatine for players of all levels of skill. Members will meet a minimum of once a month and will play matches with opponents of similar ability. Teams will be formed to play other clubs from different communities. Interested persons should contact Ray Wright at 359-5281.

Ashley Montagu to speak

"The Natural Superiority of Women" will be the topic of a speech by Ashley Montagu at the North Shore Unitarian Church, 2100 Half Day Rd., Deerfield on Feb. 9 at 8 p.m.

Montagu is an anthropologist and social biologist who recently wrote "Statement on Race."

Tickets for the lecture are $3 for adults and $1.50 for students. They may be obtained by calling 234-2460.

Show's over; Ali wins in decision

by JIM COOK
and PAUL LOGAN

Muhammad Ali, looking a little like his old quick self, won a unanimous decision against Joe Frazier in a non-title heavyweight fight last night at New York's Madison Square Garden.

The 32-year-old former champion rallied, starting in the ninth round, for the dramatic come-from-behind victory.

In the ninth, a dancing and smiling Frazier waved to Ali to come on. Ali, fighting for his life, came on! Although bleeding from the nose slightly, he used combinations to beat back Frazier as the crowd chanted "Ali! Ali! Ali!" Neither fighter scored a knockdown.

Ali followed his masterful ninth round with steady improvement showing plenty of speed and dancing ability in the crucial twelfth and final round.

Frazier's confidence came in the sixth, seventh and eighth rounds, when he carried the attack to Ali as well as the talking.

Ali exhibited his famed shuttle in the early rounds and even at the bell after the first two rounds. Frazier, the relentless aggressor throughout the fight, hammered away with body punches at the expense of Ali jabs and combinations to the head.

Ali survived Smoking Joe's haymaker attack by clinching in the corners and along the ropes as referee Tony Perez hesitantly separated the former heavyweight champions.

Arlington Park's Paramount Ballroom was crowded with 3,500 standing-room-only fans long before the fight began.

Arlington Park even went as far as to lock the gates surrounding the hotel.

Just as in 1971, both beautiful people and average joes flocked into the huge hotel complex. The 1,100-car parking lot was filled to capacity an hour before the main event.

Fight fans milled around the lobby after leaving coats piled on chairs. While others formed long lines at the many portable bars.

Several persons seemed anxious to discuss their favorites. Some reactions were:

"I think Clay's got him . . . Ali . . . if he keeps his cool," said Jack Sangunetti, an account executive for a New York advertising agency who is staying over before returning to Tucson, Ariz.

"I'VE BEEN GOING to fights since he was Clay and beat Liston (Sonny Liston for the title in 1964)," added the lanky well-dressed southerner with long brown cowboy boots.

"I came to the first fight," said Mrs. Barbara Gruetzmaier, of Midlothian, a stockholder with Madison Square Garden. "I like Muhammad Ali . . . only because he's so colorful. I favor him."

"Sure have," said Mike Morgan of Des Plaines, in commenting on if he had ever seen a heavyweight fight. A tall meticulously dressed man, he said he saw the last heavyweight fight between the two at his old home, Los Angeles.

"I like Ali," he said. "I liked him the first time. I think he won it (then)."

Morgan called Ali the people's choice for a champion because "I think he has more class than Frazier. He's a good fighter."

Gas sales being limited, stations running out fast

by KURT BAER

Gasoline dealers throughout the North-west suburbs are running on empty.

Sales at the pump are being limited to the early morning hours as dealers find they must shut down by mid-day to stretch their end of the month reserves.

In Washington, federal energy czar William E. Simon said Monday he hopes gasoline production can be stepped up soon to stave off rationing this spring.

And in Chicago, U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., called for a rollback in crude oil prices and new price controls on the U.S. oil industry.

Meanwhile, hundreds of service station operators stiffened their own rationing controls to avert a total area-wide shut-down.

SEVERAL MOTORISTS told The Herald they could not find any stations in Arlington Heights selling gas Monday afternoon. Some station managers say they already have received part of their February allocation but would continue to limit sales to prevent a run on their pumps.

Most dealers said they hope their self-imposed rationing will head off earlier predictions of massive station closings by the end of the week.

A spot check of stations Monday turned up a recurrent refrain of long lines, short hours and near non-existent supplies.

"People are lined up here like it's going out of style, or like I'm giving it away," said an attendant at Carl's Mobil Service, Mount Prospect.

And at the Shell station at River Road and Euclid Avenue, manager Clair Ruggles said he was saving gas for his regular customers, "people who have been with us for years. We have to take care of our own."

RUGGLES SAID Shell has given him 90 days notice after which the company plans to terminate his lease — unless he buys the station for $150,000. He added that he could make the purchase if he could buy gas. "But they (Shell) won't sell you any," he said.

A survey of seven stations in Rolling Meadows showed that all pumps were locked after morning except, in a few cases, for the evening rush hours.

Bill Hunter, owner of Southland Shell, said there were 12 to 15 cars waiting at his pumps when he opened for business Monday morning.

"Everyone's going to be riding their bikes this weekend," said Bill Miseka, owner of Rolling Meadows Shell. "I don't think anyone has gas." His station is already out of gasoline and will receive only 8,000 gallons of its February allocation on Thursday.

State police had to break up lines at the Standard station, Wilke and Algonquin roads, early Monday. "It was unreal," reported an attendant.

Four service stations in Palatine pumped their day's quota in two or three hours yesterday morning.

Robert Franz, owner of Bob's Union 76 at 5 W. Palatine Rd., said his daily quota of 12,000 gallons usually lasts for five or six hours. It was gone in just over two hours Monday.

IN ELK GROVE Village, a line of cars a half-mile long went away empty from Grove Cito when the station shut its pumps at 3:45 p.m. The manager said his station will remain closed until delivery of his February allocation, and he had no idea when that might be.

Bomb threat closes St. Viator early

Arlington Heights police yesterday received a telephone call informing them of a bomb threat at St. Viator High School, 1213 E. Oakton, Arlington Heights.

The Rev. Patrick Render, head of student personnel, said that police notified school officials of the threat early yesterday afternoon. Police checked but found nothing.

The students were dismissed from their classes for the day.

by TONI GINETTI

Mrs. Dawn Slice didn't need a special day Sunday to remember the men still listed as missing in action from a war in Southeast Asia which for most Americans ended last year.

Mrs. Slice is the sister of a MIA, Navy Lt. Bruce Fryar. Since December, 1969, when she learned that her brother had been lost in a bombing mission over Laos, Mrs. Slice and her family have been awaiting word on the fate of her brother.

Young Lt. Fryar, then 25, was a Navy pilot on his last mission before a rest and recreation layoff in Japan. He and his navigator, Lt. Nick Brooks, were last seen ejecting from their plane which had been shot down over Laos.

Fryar and Brooks are only two of more than 1,300 Vietnam War veterans still unaccounted for by the United States government. Sunday they were to be remembered on what had been proclaimed Missing In Action Awareness Day by President Nixon.

FAMILIES OF AREA MIAs met in Chicago Sunday for the observance. Mrs. Slice and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll E. Fryar of Rolling Meadows did not attend — but not because they are not concerned.

The family last year undertook a letter-writing campaign urging more than 300 individuals and organizations to write to congressmen and the White House to demand an accounting of the MIAs.

"As far as the senators and congressmen, the most we have ever gotten back is a form letter," Mrs. Slice said. "I feel now that they (the government) could be doing a lot more."

Mrs. Slice, who resides in Hoffman Estates, said the family has heard nothing from the government during the past year on Bruce's fate. His wife Diane, who lives in Virginia with the couple's young daughter, has apparently received no further information either.

"There is a Navy officer who contacts my parents very regularly, but he doesn't know anything more," Mrs. Slice said.

MUCH OF the information on the MIA situation the Fryars receive still comes from Voices in Vital America (VIVA), the organization which produced prisoner of war and MIA bracelets.

Mrs. Slice said, however, the organization is having its problems. "One of the women on the board has decided that there is no hope and is apparently trying to dissolve the group," she said. "But Mr. Brooks (the father of the navigator shot down with Fryar) says it should continue until all the families are answered."

The Fryar family is still hopeful they may yet learn that Bruce is alive. "Bruce was shot down over Laos and so far they have not allowed search teams to go into Laos," said Mrs. Slice, whose son, born with a twin sister six weeks after Fryar was shot down, is named for his uncle.

"My sister Marijean said yesterday she heard that ten newsmen who were listed as missing in action have apparently been found alive. They had not been accounted for, but apparently they recorded their voices," she said.

"I'm not bitter," she added of her family's continuing ordeal, "just very disappointed."

Burglar caught in act escapes, sought by police

Arlington Heights police are searching for a burglar who escaped from an apartment by spraying a disabling chemical in the face of a man who surprised him.

According to reports, a resident of Dana Point Apartments surprised a burglar in the act when he returned home unexpectedly. The burglar then sprayed an unknown chemical in the face of the man and fled.

Police said the victim attempted to pursue the burglar, who ran into the apartment complex parking lot and fled by car.

The burglar was described as being about six feet tall and weighing about 200 pounds. Police said the victim, whose name was not released, said the burglar had short brown hair and was wearing a brown corduroy coat and tan pants.

The burglar is believed to have escaped in a blue and white late model Dodge.

Police said the victim was not seriously injured by the unknown chemical.

Mobile voter signup unit at shop center

The Cook County Clerk will have a mobile unit for voter registration at the Palatine Plaza, Northwest Highway and Hicks Road, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Residents who register to vote with the clerk this week-end will be eligible to vote in the March 19 primary election.

Opening pushed back three months

Heavy snows have delayed work on Alexian's new wing

by BOB GALLAS

Heavy December snows have caused an estimated three-month construction delay on the new wing at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

The $9-million dollar addition, originally scheduled for completion by June 1 of this year, is not expected to be ready for occupancy now until at least Sept. 1 of this year.

"Bad weather in December prevented roofing from being completed, which caused other delays inside," said Steve Skorcz, vice-president of planning at Alexian Brothers.

Skorcz said work on the 130,000 square foot addition is "about 60 to 65 per cent complete at the present time." The delay was expected to cause no major problems at the hospital, according to Skorcz. "Although we are crammed for space in some departments," he added.

Another problem that hindered construction was the fact that windows ordered for the addition came in the wrong size and had to be sent back. Replacements have been received and are going in. Skorcz said he didn't believe the window problem figured in the three-month delay however.

SKORCZ SAID ONE drawback due to the construction delay was that doctors scheduled to move into the addition now won't be on hand until Sept. 1.

Three of the five floors of the addition will be made up of doctor's offices. According to Skorcz, about 40 to 60 area physicians are expected to move their practices into Alexian's new facilities.

Construction on the new wing was started in September of 1972. The general contractor on the project is the D. J. Veto Construction Co. of Chicago.

When completed, the new addition will also house greatly expanded emergency room and out-patient facilities. The new emergency room will eventually be five times larger than the present one, which handled over 30,000 patients last year.

Wheeling cop gets suspension

Wheeling police Lt. Ronald G. Nelson has been suspended for one day by Chief Peter Guttilla.

The suspension came after a Herald disclosure that Nelson had been stopped twice by Buffalo Grove police for alleged drunk driving.

The suspension was confirmed yesterday by Vern Nystrom, chairman of the Wheeling Police and Fire Commission. He said that Guttilla called for the suspension, apparently after disclosure of the two December incidents.

Meanwhile, The Herald has been unable to learn what action, if any, has been taken against Wheeling police Detective Joseph Earl Suel. Suel was involved in several unusual incidents including a tavern brawl in Rockton, Ill., for which he was found guilty of disorderly conduct.

Police said Nelson was stopped once while driving through Buffalo Grove and was found a second time with his car partially off the road just beyond the vil-

Hit-run crash driver sought

Rolling Meadows police are seeking information which may help locate the driver of a late-model car that demolished four parked vehicles in the parking lot of the Meadow Trace apartment complex early last week.

Police said the hit-and-run driver struck the vehicles and apparently caused extensive damage to his own car in the wreck. The driver is believed to have been in a 1972 orange-colored Buick Skylark Grand Sport.

Persons with information on the incident should contact the traffic division of the police department.

The incident is one of several hit-and-run property damage cases which the department is attempting to solve, according to Police Chief Lewis Case. The department has cleared up 32 of 85 hit-and-runs involving property damage last year.

Cases are handled by the department's traffic division made up of Supervisor Andrew Herbert, and Patrolmen Terry Severin, Richard Pleitz and Harvey Greenway.

Report on tape gap was 'the straw'

Mikva joins move to impeach Nixon

by STEVE BROWN

Former Congressman Abner Mikva has added his name to the growing list of politicians who are calling on the U.S. House of Representatives to impeach President Richard Nixon.

Mikva told The Herald yesterday that the recent report by technical experts on the 10½-minute gap in a critical Watergate tape, which determined the erasure was not accidental, was the final event prompting him to call for impeachment.

"This was too much, it appears the explanation the administration has to offer is some type of mysterious force, it appears there was some destruction of evidence, which is a very serious charge," Mikva said.

Mikva, who is currently challenging U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-Ill., served as a member of the House Judiciary Committee.

Mikva said he had reserved comment on the impeachment question for a time because of his former membership on the committee, which is now reviewing the issue.

"THE PRESIDENCY has to be salvaged and this appears to be the only way to do it," Mikva said.

While he has explained the tape erasure was the straw that broke the camel's back, some liberal observers believe Mikva was under pressure from supporters to call for impeachment.

Mikva had taken a "wait and see" attitude some weeks ago, stating that he wanted to see if the majority of Americans wanted Nixon impeached.

Lynne Heidt, coordinator of the statewide Impeach Nixon Committee Inc. said she was "very pleased and delighted to learn of Mikva's statement." She also indicated Mikva might have bowed to the pressure of supporters on the impeachment issue.

Mikva also explained that he hopes the impeachment investigation and vote does not become a highly partisan matter.

"THIS WOULD BE the worst possible situation, if the Congress were not to remain bi-partisan on the issue," he added.

Mikva said he feels it is too early to tell if the impeachment issue will become a major issue in his campaign against Young. Young has adopted a "put up or shut up" stance on impeachment and indicated he will reserve public comment until the House Judiciary Committee completes its investigation and the matter is brought to the House floor for a vote.

The two are already at odds, however, over how quickly the impeachment investigation should be completed. Young has stated that a March 1 deadline should be imposed so that the Congress can get on to other issues; Mikva has said the committee should act as soon as possible, but that it is too important a matter to set a deadline on the issue.

Had come close to disbanding

Skating club membership doubles, group now solvent

The once-troubled Rolling Meadows Skating Club has doubled its membership in the last two months and expects an additional influx of members soon.

The skating club last fall had so few members that it was in danger of being disbanded because it could not pay for the cost of needed ice time. The park district was carrying the program at a financial loss, Supt. of Parks and Recreation Steve Person said at the time.

This month, the club has upwards of 30 members and Cindy Sawicke said yesterday that she expects to gain as many as 10 new members during this month's recruitment drive.

The additional membership means the club will have sold out all available practice sessions and be able to pay the going cost for the use of the ice arena.

Mrs. Sawicke is one of the leaders of the 20 parents of skate club members who met with Person last November and charged that the park district policies have whittled their membership down from 54 to 15.

SPECIFICALLY, the parents charged that the cost of ice time per person was too high and that the lack of summer practice sessions drove skaters to other arenas. They also suggested the park district arrange for semi-private skating lessons, since private lessons costing about $7 or $8 per half hour were too high for most individuals.

Since then, changes have been made in the program, though costs for ice skating time has not been changed. Mrs. Sawicke attributed the rise in membership both to the park district changes and a stronger recruitment drive by club members.

Semi-private lessons for approximately three or four skate club members at a time have been arranged through the park district.

Cost for semi-private lessons is $6.27 per 45 minutes or $7 per hour.

IN THE TENTATIVE spring-summer schedule for the ice arena, the skating club has 18 hours scheduled for the use of patch and free style skating practice. After school lets out June 6, an additional 10 hours will be available for the last two weeks of the spring summer sessions.

Presently, only 7 hours per week are scheduled for club members.

Mrs. Sawicke said that since the November meeting, she has personally checked into costs and found that Rolling Meadows ice charges were similar to those of surrounding commercial ice arenas.

Mrs. Sawicke said that the park district had been "very cooperative" and that Person had done "everything humanly possible" to help the club gain in membership. She said the parents group was still concerned about prices, but that things were going very well anyway.

Developer hasn't used zoning limit for home building

Kaufman and Broad Homes Inc., which pleaded no contest to bribing former Hoffman Estates officials for high-density zoning for Barrington Square, has built 808 fewer homes than the zoning allows.

Richard Regan, chairman of the Hoffman Estates Plan Commission, released figures last week provided by officials from the development company, the largest independent home builder in the world, according to the U.S. Attorney's office.

Zoning for the apartment and townhouse-condominium project would have permitted 2,749 units on the 166.8 acres, according to Regan's calculations. The builder constructed 1,941 units, or 70.6 per cent of the maximum that would have been permitted.

The units include 64 studio apartments; 417 one-bedroom apartments; 740 two-bedroom apartments, townhouses and condominiums, and 711 one-bedroom townhouses, apartments and condominiums.

Throughout the village, there are 9,930 units of housing, providing 24,487 bedrooms, according to a survey conducted by Dan Murphy, village building commissioner. Of the housing units, 5,450 are single family homes, and they provide 16,350 bedrooms.

The average village housing unit has 2.47 bedrooms.

Murphy's survey was of units complete or nearly so by Jan. 1, and shows about 94 per cent of them are occupied.

Final sign law hearing tonight

A final public hearing on Schaumburg's revised sign ordinance and the proposed Old Schaumburg Centre historic district will be at 8 p.m. today in the Great Hall conference room, 231 S. Civic Dr.

Both items, scheduled for presentation to the village board early next month, will be reviewed by the village plans commission.

The sign ordinance, in preparation by the commission for the past year, stresses low profile signs and allows businesses time to convert existing signs.

Old Schaumburg Centre, an area approximately one-quarter mile in each direction of the Roselle-Schaumburg road intersection, is being proposed as an area to be developed in line with architecture prevalent in the area in the early part of this century.

The meeting is open to the public.

Swimley sons will remain with friends

Two sons of a 31-year-old Schaumburg woman who is charged with soliciting to murder her husband were ordered yesterday to remain with family friends pending a custody hearing set for 1 p.m. Feb. 20.

Schaumburg police had filed a petition calling for the 9 and 15-year-old sons of Marlene Swimley, 322 N. Meacham Rd., to be taken away from her because of "neglect." Associate Circuit Court Judge James Walton ordered that the boys stay with the family friends in Schaumburg.

Mrs. Swimley and her 13-year-old son were charged with solicitation to commit murder after police uncovered an alleged plot to have Maj. Duane Swimley, 45, of the Illinois Air National Guard killed, authorities said.

Police Chief Martin Conroy said the Swimley home "is not the proper place for the children at this point in time." Conroy added that Swimley, who is in Germany, had been in contact with Schaumburg police Sunday and that he wanted the 9-year-old, his son, to be placed with Swimley's brother, Chet, in O'Fallon, Ill. The other two boys are Swimley's stepsons.

Mrs. Swimley faces preliminary hearing Feb. 28 in Felony Court and is free on $15,000 bond. The 13-year-old son is being detained in the Audy Home pending a hearing this morning at the home.

A spot check of stations Monday turned up a recurrent refrain of long lines, short hours and near non-existent supplies.

"People are lined up here like it's going out of style, or like I'm giving it away," said an attendant at Carl's Mobil Service, Mount Prospect.

And at the Shell station at River Road and Euclid Avenue, manager Clair Ruggles said he was saving gas for his regular customers, "people who have been with us for years. We have to take care of our own."

RUGGLES SAID Shell has given him 90 days notice after which the company plans to terminate his lease — unless he buys the station for $150,000. He added that he could make the purchase if he could buy gas. "But they (Shell) won't sell you any," he said.

A survey of seven stations in Rolling Meadows showed that all pumps were locked after morning except, in a few cases, for the evening rush hours.

Bill Hunter, owner of Southland Shell, said there were 12 to 15 cars waiting at his pumps when he opened for business Monday morning.

"Everyone's going to be riding their bikes this weekend," said Bill Misaka, owner of Rolling Meadows Shell. "I don't think anyone has gas." His station is already out of gasoline and will receive only 8,000 gallons of its February allocation on Thursday.

State police had to break up lines at the Standard station, Wilke and Algonquin roads, early Monday. "It was unreal," reported an attendant.

Four service stations in Palatine pumped their day's quota in two or three hours yesterday morning.

Robert Franz, owner of Bob's Union 76 at 5 W. Palatine Rd., said his daily quota of 12,000 gallons usually lasts for five or six hours. It was gone in just over two hours Monday.

IN ELK GROVE Village, a line of cars a half-mile long went away empty from Grove Cito when the station shut its pumps at 3:45 p.m. The manager said his station will remain closed until delivery of his February allocation, and he had no idea when that might be.

Mikva now calling for Nixon impeachment

by STEVE BROWN

Former Congressman Abner Mikva has added his name to the growing list of politicians who are calling on the U.S. House of Representatives to impeach President Richard Nixon.

Mikva told The Herald yesterday that the recent report by technical experts on the 18½-minute gap in a critical Watergate tape, which determined the erasure was not accidental, was the final event prompting him to call for impeachment.

"This was too much, it appears the explanation the administration has to offer is some type of mysterious force, it appears there was some destruction of evidence, which is a very serious charge," Mikva said.

Mikva, who is currently challenging U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-Ill., served as a member of the House Judiciary Committee.

Mikva said he had reserved comment on the impeachment question for a time because of his former membership on the committee, which is now reviewing the issue.

"THE PRESIDENCY has to be salvaged and this appears to be the only way to do it," Mikva said.

While he has explained the tape erasure was the straw that broke the camel's back, some liberal observers believe Mikva was under pressure from supporters to call for impeachment.

Mikva had taken a "wait and see" attitude some weeks ago, stating that he wanted to see if the majority of Americans wanted Nixon impeached.

Lynne Heidt, coordinator of the statewide Impeach Nixon Committee Inc. said she was "very pleased and delighted to learn of Mikva's statement." She also indicated Mikva might have bowed to the pressure of supporters on the impeachment issue.

Mikva also explained that he hopes the impeachment investigation and vote does not become a highly partisan matter.

"THIS WOULD BE the worst possible situation, if the Congress were not to remain bi-partisan on the issue," he added.

Mikva said he feels it is too early to tell if the impeachment issue will become a major issue in his campaign against Young. Young has adopted a "put up or shut up" stance on impeachment and indicated he will reserve public comment until the House Judiciary Committee completes its investigation and the matter is brought to the House floor for a vote.

The two are already at odds, however, over how quickly the impeachment investigation should be completed. Young has stated that a March 1 deadline should be imposed so that the Congress can get on to other issues; Mikva has said the committee should act as soon as possible, but that it is too important a matter to set a deadline on the issue.

Some are still waiting for men who went off to war

by TONI GINETTI

Mrs. Dawn Slice didn't need a special day Sunday to remember the men still listed as missing in action from a war in Southeast Asia which for most Americans ended last year.

Mrs. Slice is the sister of a MIA, Navy Lt. Bruce Fryar. Since December, 1969, when she learned that her brother had been lost in a bombing mission over Laos, Mrs. Slice and her family have been awaiting word on the fate of her brother.

Young Lt. Fryar, then 25, was a Navy pilot on his last mission before a rest and recreation layoff in Japan. He and his navigator, Lt. Nick Brooks, were last seen ejecting from their plane which had been shot down over Laos.

Fryar and Brooks are only two of more than 1,300 Vietnam War veterans still unaccounted for by the United States government. Sunday they were to be remembered on what had been proclaimed Missing In Action Awareness Day by President Nixon.

FAMILIES OF AREA MIAs met in Chicago Sunday for the observance. Mrs. Slice and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll E. Fryar of Rolling Meadows did not attend — but not because they are not concerned.

The family last year undertook a letter-writing campaign urging more than 300 individuals and organizations to write to congressmen and the White House to demand an accounting of the MIAs.

"As far as the senators and congressmen, the most we have ever gotten back is a form letter," Mrs. Slice said. "I feel now that they (the government) could be doing a lot more."

Mrs. Slice, who resides in Hoffman Estates, said the family has heard nothing from the government during the past year on Bruce's fate. His wife Diane, who lives in Virginia with the couple's young daughter, has apparently received no further information either.

"There is a Navy officer who contacts my parents very regularly, but he doesn't know anything more," Mrs. Slice said.

MUCH OF the information on the MIA situation the Fryars receive still comes from Voices in Vital America (VIVA), the organization which produced prisoner of war and MIA bracelets.

Mrs. Slice said, however, the organization is having its problems. "One of the women on the board has decided that there is no hope and is apparently trying to dissolve the group," she said. "But Mr. Brooks (the father of the navigator shot down with Fryar) says it should continue until all the families are answered."

The Fryar family is still hopeful they may yet learn that Bruce is

alive. "Bruce was shot down over Laos and so far they have not allowed search teams to go into Laos," said Mrs. Slice, whose son, born with a twin sister six weeks after Fryar was shot down, is named for his uncle.

"My sister Marijean said yesterday she heard that ten newsmen who were listed as missing in action have apparently been found alive. They had not been accounted for, but apparently they recorded their voices," she said.

"I'm not bitter," she added of her family's continuing ordeal, "just very disappointed."

Watch for news of a petition for annexation and multiple zoning of a 54-acre parcel of land at Freeman and Palatine roads submitted to Hoffman Estates officials recently.

Development of the land, owned since 1946 by Anton and Elizabeth Cipri of Palatine, is being planned by Realco Corp. The property adjoins the proposed Westbury development, once planned as Howie-in-the-Hills. Zoning board hearings should be scheduled soon.

A SPOT OF WOODED Schaumburg Road land near the Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center North site, once occupied by Barney's Tap, appears to have some nostalgic value for old-timers in Schaumburg Township.

As the story goes, the old tavern which was torn down several years ago, was before Barney's time, owned by a man named Herman, who ran an exclusive sipping and singing club there frequented by wealthy men who came from the city to enjoy a respite from the hustle-bustle.

The place was called Herman-in-the-Woods — which seems reminiscent, in name only, of Howie-in-the-Hills.

A FOLLOW-UP OF Schaumburg Park and Recreation Director Paul Derda's Jan. 13 outdoor Super Bowl Party indicates a post-party football game occurred.

Playing in three feet of snow, Park Pres. Bob Bock knocked Recreation Director Vince Merenda into none other than Comr. Joe Roberts, who ended up with a cracked rib from the contact.

Awards were presented to the local players last week with Bock receiving a certificate for outstanding viciousness, signed by Dick Butkus and Ed O'Bradovich of the Chicago Bears. He also won a forearm shiver pad.

Roberts was presented with a certificate for outstanding pain received, plus an umpire's chest protector.

All players were given super crunch candy bars.

SCHAUMBURG UNITED PARTY Women's Auxiliary members were delighted when a 9 pound Golden Retriever pup visited a recent meeting. The spunky, lovable pup is expected to return to SUPWA Feb. 9 to screen the crowd for prospective parents.

SUZANNE POPP, AN unsuccessful independent candidate for village trustee in '73, plans to submit a resume to the committee responsible for selecting a replacement for Denis Ledgerwood, who resigned from the village board and moved from Schaumburg this month.

HOFFMAN ESTATES JAYCEES will host a Regional Transit Authority debate at their Feb. 6 meeting at Ground Round Restaurant where Rep. Donald L. Totten (R-Hoffman Estates) will speak against the issue. Jack Pahl, of the RTA citizens committee, will talk in favor of the proposal.

AND JAYCEES SUPERSTAR Pete Smith will be featured in TV public service announcements sponsored by Gov. Dan Walker's Committee on the Employment of the Handicapped, being released this week.

Films were made at Hoffman Estates High School and show the ramp and elevators used by wheelchair bound students. The ads will be used statewide during '74.

CHRISANNE BLANKENSHIP of Schaumburg and Joanie Regan of Hoffman Estates are in line for birthday greetings this week.

Heavy snows have delayed Alexian wing construction

by BOB GALLAS

Heavy December snows have caused an estimated three-month construction delay on the new wing at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

The $9-million dollar addition, originally scheduled for completion by June 1 of this year, is not expected to be ready for occupancy now until at least Sept. 1 of this year.

"Bad weather in December prevented roofing from being completed, which caused other delays inside," said Steve Skorz, vice-president of planning at Alexian Brothers.

Skorz said work on the 130,000 square foot addition is "about 60 to 65 per cent complete at the present time." The delay was expected to cause no major problems at the hospital, according to Skorz.

"Although we are cramped for space in some departments," he added. Another problem that hindered construction was the fact that windows ordered for the addition came in the wrong size and had to be sent back. Replacements have been received and are going in. Skorz said he didn't believe the window problem figured in the three-month delay however.

SKORCZ SAID ONE drawback due to the construction delay was that doctors scheduled to move into the addition now won't be on hand until Sept. 1.

Three of the five floors of the addition will be made up of doctor's offices. According to Skorz, about 40 to 60 area physicians are expected to move their practices into Alexian's new facilities.

Construction on the new wing was started in September of 1972. The general contractor on the project is the D. J. Velo Construction Co. of Chicago.

When completed, the new addition will also house greatly expanded emergency room and out-patient facilities. The new emergency room will eventually be five times larger than the present one, which handled over 30,000 patients last year. Outpatient facilities will be up to 17 times greater than present.

The addition will increase Alexian Brothers' bed capacity from 340 to 420. About 35 to 45 per cent of the addition will be used for shelf and storage space, according to Skorz.

The hospital serves Elk Grove Village, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Bensenville, Wood Dale, Itasca, Hanover Park and part of Arlington Heights.

It opened in 1966 under the name St. Alexius. The name was changed in 1971 after its sister facility, Alexian Brothers Hospital and School of Nursing in Chicago had closed in 1968.

Alarm salesmen and local fire officials wait for the flames.

Firemen firebugs

Frame house to be burned today is used for department training

by STIRLING MORITA

Schaumburg firemen are seeing fires from both ends — start and finish.

Small fires have been set by firemen for department drills in a two-story, frame house just east of Schaumburg High School on Schaumburg Road. Demonstrations of a heat and smoke sensory alarm system were given at the structure, which must be razed before construction can begin at the site of the new police station.

Officials of Elk Grove Village, Arlington Heights and Hoffman Estates fire departments watched the alarm demonstrations put on by Dictograph Security Systems, Morton Grove, which deals chiefly in home fire alarms.

SOME FIREFIGHTERS set fire to an old chair and mattresses, and others rushed in to douse the flames with hand-pump extinguishers. Dense smoke made the men's eyes water, and a few coughs were emitted, but the fires were quickly extinguished.

The house is scheduled for burning today.

In between exercises Thursday morning, one truck was called away to check on smoke at a Schaumburg home where a fire had been extinguished earlier that morning.

The firefighters, wearied from the morning's battle with the fire, continued with the day's drill.

A fireman torched papers in an old chair, and little more than a minute later the heat detector sounded a bell. Fifteen seconds later the smoke detector in the hallway sounded its alarm. The heat alarm goes off at 135 degrees, and cannot be set off by a person smoking a cigaret.

Walter Firdale, treasurer for the alarm company, noted the alarms had sounded while there was very little smoke in the back bedroom area and a person sleeping there would have had no problem finding his way out.

"WE'RE IN THIS business to save lives," said Firdale. "These alarms are designed to give a person a minimum of four minutes to get out and as much as seven."

The company, which has as its board chairman Chicago's former Chief Fire Marshal Curtis Volkamer, will not sell single units, Firdale added. The company will only sell an entire system designed to the house, he said.

An average homeowner might spend from $500 to $1,000 for such a system, depending upon the number of rooms in the house and the air draft situation in the structure, Firdale said.

The Dictograph company has reportedly installed 20,000 fire alarm systems in 15 years.

Firdale was quick to point out that the system includes warning lights and buzzers. If something goes wrong with the wiring, the owner will know of any defects, he said.

FIRDALE ADMITTED his company wants to make money, but added it is providing a safety service to the public.

Dale Volkamer, another company official, pointed out the need to get builders in new areas such as Schaumburg to include fire alarms as possible options for new house owners. He added the public's attitude of indifference toward the alarms should be changed.

Fire Chief Lloyd Abrahamsen said several area homebuilders had been invited to view the demonstrations, but apparently none decided to come.

And a minute and 10 seconds later, the bell.

Evening voter registration

Special evening hours for voter registration for the March 19 primary election will begin Jan. 30 in Hoffman Estates.

Village offices at 1200 N. Gannon Drive will be open from 7 to 8:30 p.m. each Wednesday through the Feb. 1 close of registration, announced Village Clerk Helen Wozniak.

Mrs. Wozniak noted that special appointments can be made for persons unable to come in during regular hours as well as arrangements for registration of disabled persons in their homes.

Registration will be taken at the village hall from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturdays.

Further information or special arrangements may be made by calling Mrs. Wozniak at 882-9100.

Show's over; Ali wins in decision

by JIM COOK
and PAUL LOGAN

Muhammad Ali, looking a little like his old quick self, won a unanimous decision against Joe Frazier in a non-title heavyweight fight last night at New York's Madison Square Garden.

The 32-year-old former champion rallied, starting in the ninth round, for the dramatic come-from-behind victory.

In the ninth, a dancing and smiling Frazier waved to Ali to come on. Ali, fighting for his life, came on! Although bleeding from the nose slightly, he used combinations to beat back Frazier as the crowd chanted "Ali! Ali! Ali!" Neither fighter scored a knockdown.

Ali followed his masterful ninth round with steady improvement showing plenty of speed and dancing ability in the crucial twelfth and final round.

Frazier's confidence came in the sixth, seventh and eighth rounds, when he carried the attack to Ali as well as the talking.

Ali exhibited his famed shuttle in the early rounds and even at the bell after the first two rounds. Frazier, the relentless aggressor throughout the fight, hammered away with body punches at the expense of Ali jabs and combinations to the head.

Ali survived Smoking Joe's haymaker attack by clinching in the corners and along the ropes as referee Tony Perez hesitantly separated the former heavyweight champions.

Arlington Park's Paramount Ballroom was crowded with 3,500 standing-room-only fans long before the fight began.

Arlington Park even went as far as to lock the gates surrounding the hotel.

Just as in 1971, both beautiful people and average joes flocked into the huge hotel complex. The 1,100-car parking lot was filled to capacity an hour before the main event.

Fight fans milled around the lobby after leaving coats piled on chairs. While others formed long lines at the many portable bars.

Several persons seemed anxious to discuss their favorites. Some reactions were:

"I think Clay's got him . . . Ali . . . if he keeps his cool," said Jack Sangunetti, an account executive for a New York advertising agency who is staying over before returning to Tucson, Ariz.

"I'VE BEEN GOING to fights since he was Clay and beat Liston (Sonny Liston for the title in 1964)," added the lanky well-dressed southerner with long brown cowboy boots.

"I came to the first fight," said Mrs. Barbara Gruetzmacher, of Midlothian, a stockholder with Madison Square Garden. "I like Muhammad Ali . . . only because he's so colorful. I favor him."

"Sure have," said Mike Morgan of Des Plaines, in commenting on if he had ever seen a heavyweight fight. A tall meticulously dressed man, he said he saw the last heavyweight fight between the two at his old home, Los Angeles.

"I like Ali," he said. "I liked him the first time. I think he won it (then)."

Morgan called Ali the people's choice for a champion because "I think he has more class than Frazier. He's a good fighter."

People near Rob Roy aren't happy—11,000 neighbors?

by MARCIA KRAMER

"Awful." "Terrible." "I hate it." That's how people who live within a three-iron shot of the Rob Roy Golf Course feel about plans to replace its rolling greens with 12-story towers.

"We could have bought into an apartment building and had people up and down and around us, if that's what we wanted," fumed one Mount Prospect resident who lives in a $50,000 house across the street from the course.

She and other residents on all four sides of the property, questioned at random yesterday by The Herald were adamant in liking Rob Roy just the way it is.

"I'm for progress," said Mrs. John Vieau, of 1216 Crabtree Ln., Mount Prospect. "I don't want country living; I want someone on either side of me. But," she said, jerking her head in the direction of the golf course just north of her home, "I think that's a step back. The money-makers are going to make money." To homeowners like herself, "It's like a slap in the face — noise, pollution, trash, animals, traffic . . ."

IF THE DEVELOPERS of the golf course have their way, it will house close to 11,000 persons within 15 years.

Kenroy Inc., Skokie, has submitted plans to the Village of Mount Prospect asking to build 4,500 apartment and condominium units on the 180-acre course and 20-acre adjoining driving range, which lies east of Wheeling Road between Camp McDonald Road and Euclid Avenue. The property is currently unincorporated and zoned for single-family use.

Village officials' initial reaction to the proposed project was negative, but not as vehemently as the residents who can see the golf course from their bedroom windows.

"I wouldn't mind moving," Mrs. Vieau said flatly. She and her husband and five kids moved to Mount Prospect seven months ago from a half-acre lot in Medinah, near Itasca. The real estate agent told them playground equipment may be installed on a corner of the golf course near their house. Instead, they learn to their dismay, the course may soon be covered with buildings ranging from one and two stories to six and twelve. "I wouldn't mind moving," Mrs. Vieau repeated. "It's that big an issue. It's going to be different; it's not going to be the same."

NUMEROUS OTHER neighbors also have begun giving thought to packing (Continued on Page 5)

CANDLELIGHT MARKS the end of high school for early graduating students from Forest View High School. About 40 students took part in the cere-

Groups joining to fight Rob Roy plan

by MARCIA KRAMER

A movement is afoot to organize opposition to plans to develop the Rob Roy Golf Course north of Mount Prospect.

The Northwest Suburban Council of Associations, which encompasses eight homeowners' groups in the Mount Prospect area, last night called upon residents to attend the next public meeting on the plans. There are 3,000 households in the northeast section of town near the golf course, who would be affected by the plans by Kenroy, Inc., Skokie, to build 4,500 apartment and condominium units on the course.

Marie L. Caylor, a chairman of the organization, said the Feb. 21 hearing before the zoning board of appeals is "a very important time for us to have a good turnout if we want to oppose this."

The council did officially take a stand last night on the Rob Roy project, but Mrs. Caylor and the four homeowners' groups represented made clear they prefer that the golf course remain open space.

"THE WHOLE COMMUNITY is getting really sick and tired of these complexes going up," said William Masloske of the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. "Pretty soon there won't be any open area at all."

Both Prospect Heights and Mount

Prospect border the unincorporated golf course property, which is east of Wheeling Road between Camp McDonald Road and Euclid Avenue.

Main concerns voiced last night were the density of the project and the effect it would have on school and park district facilities; the traffic problems it would create and the flood potential it would pose.

Kenroy is proposing the 4,500 units be built over a 15-year period, with a projected population of 10,922. The 22.56-unit-per-acre density would be just under the village's 23-unit-per-acre maximum.

FIGURES PROVIDED by the developer predict a traffic flow of 1,710 outbound vehicles in the peak morning rush hour and 1,670 inbound vehicles in the peak evening hour, with 62 per cent of the traffic on Euclid.

Kenroy engineers estimate that 4.4 acres of the 200-acre tract is in the flood plain and said development would provide 17 acres of retention.

Gas pumps near 'empty'

Northwest suburban service stations shutting at mid-day

by KURT BAER

Gasoline dealers throughout the Northwest suburbs are running on empty.

Sales at the pump are being limited to the early morning hours as dealers find they must shut down by mid-day to stretch their end of the month reserves.

In Washington, federal energy czar William E. Simon said Monday he hopes gasoline production can be stepped up soon to stave off rationing this spring.

And in Chicago, U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., called for a rollback in crude oil prices and new price controls on the U.S. oil industry.

Meanwhile, hundreds of service station

operators stiffened their own rationing controls to avert a total area-wide shutdown.

SEVERAL MOTORISTS told The Herald they could not find any stations in Arlington Heights selling gas Monday afternoon. Some station managers say they already have received part of their February allocation but would continue to limit sales to prevent a run on their pumps.

Most dealers said they hope their self-imposed rationing will head off earlier predictions of massive station closings by the end of the week.

A spot check of stations Monday turned up a recurrent refrain of long lines, short hours and near non-existent supplies.

"People are lined up here like it's going out of style, or like I'm giving it away," said an attendant at Carl's Mobil Service, Mount Prospect.

And at the Shell station at River Road and Euclid Avenue, manager Clair Ruggles said he was saving gas for his regular customers, "people who have been with us for years. We have to take care of our own."

RUGGLES SAID Shell has given him 90 days notice after which the company plans to terminate his lease — unless he buys the station for $150,000. He added that he could make the purchase if he could buy gas. "But they (Shell) won't sell you any," he said.

A survey of seven stations in Rolling Meadows showed that all pumps were locked after morning except, in a few cases, for the evening rush hours.

Bill Hunter, owner of Southland Shell, said there were 12 to 15 cars waiting at his pumps when he opened for business Monday morning.

"Everyone's going to be riding their bikes this weekend," said Bill Miska, owner of Rolling Meadows Shell. "I don't think anyone has gas." His station is already out of gasoline and will receive only 3,000 gallons of its February allocation on Thursday.

State police had to break up lines at the Standard station, Wilke and Algonquin roads, early Monday. "It was unreal," reported an attendant.

Four service stations in Palatine pumped their day's quota in two or three hours yesterday morning.

Robert Franz, owner of Bob's Union 76 at 5 W. Palatine Rd., said his daily quota of 12,000 gallons usually lasts for five or six hours. It was gone in just over two hours Monday.

IN ELK GROVE Village, a line of cars a half-mile long went away empty from Grove Cito when the station shut its pumps at 3:45 p.m. The manager said his station will remain closed until delivery of his February allocation, and he had no idea when that might be.

Village policemen still want meeting with Eppley

Mount Prospect policemen will pursue an attempt to meet with Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley to discuss problems within the police department. Eppley last week all but ruled out any meeting with the policemen.

"A meeting would be to everyone's advantage," said Patrolman Warren Fischer, president of the Mount Prospect chapter of the Combined Counties Police Association (CCPA). He said the meeting would be helpful particularly if Eppley is unaware of problems in the police department, as he has stated.

Fischer said a Sunday night meeting of Mount Prospect CCPA members resulted in the men fully supporting the actions taken so far by Fischer and other chapter leaders. He said the men would like to meet with Eppley and a letter will be sent asking for a meeting.

Eppley reaffirmed yesterday that he would not meet with the dissident policemen because such a meeting "would be completely out of place. They have made no effort to go through the established grievance procedure."

The policemen charge that the grievance procedure has broken down. "We can't get a grievance past the chief (Police Chief Bert Giddens)," Fischer said yesterday. "We have had several grievances that have not gone up as they should."

The grievances Fischer referred to did not include the current one, namely alleged discrimination by Giddens against members of the CCPA. Fischer's reply to why that grievance had not been advanced through channels was that it would be futile.

"There is a Navy officer who contacts my parents very regularly, but he doesn't know anything more," Mrs. Slice said.

MUCH OF the information on the MIA situation the Fryars receive still comes from Voices in Vital America (VIVA), the organization which produced prisoner of war and MIA bracelets.

Mrs. Slice said, however, the organization is having its problems. "One of the women on the board has decided that there is no hope and is apparently trying to dissolve the group," she said. "But Mr. Brooks (the father of the navigator shot down with Fryar) says it should continue until all the families are answered."

The Fryar family is still hopeful they may yet learn that Bruce is alive. "Bruce was shot down over Laos and so far they have not allowed search teams to go into Laos," said Mrs. Slice, whose son, born with a twin sister six weeks after Fryar was shot down, is named for his uncle.

"My sister Marijean said yesterday she heard that ten newsmen who were listed as missing in action have apparently been found alive. They had not been accounted for, but apparently they recorded their voices," she said.

"I'm not bitter," she added of her family's continuing ordeal, "just very disappointed."

It's going to be some kind of celebration at St. Raymond's Catholic Church, 300 S. Elmhurst, next month. To mark the church's 25th anniversary, and to raise funds for church and school expenses, the parish is staging the biggest and most ambitious event in its history. It's set for Feb. 22 and 23 and March 1 and 2.

Called "Jubilee," it will consist of five continuous variety shows held in classrooms, one "big show" in the auditorium, a casino, two restaurants and a number of concessions.

The five classroom shows — each with a different theme, appropriate costumes, music, dance and comedy material — are "The Speakeasy," "Barbary Coast," "Stage Door Canteen," "Knight's Inn" and "62nd City." These shows will be about a half-hour long and will be repeated every hour each evening.

The auditorium show, "The Winter Garden," will run for 90 minutes and will be presented four times each night. One admission price of $5 entitles each guest to attend all attractions. Alcoholic beverages will be served — so no one under 19 years of age may attend. The two restaurants to be set up are a Jewish Deli and a German Beer Garden. There'll even be entertainment at these.

There are hundreds of people working on "Jubilee." General chairpersons are Bob and Marge Rogers and Tom and Maddie Weber. Bill and Joan Gordon are serving as Entertainment Chairperson and Loretta Revers is Secretary.

Coordinating chairmen, or chairpersons, are Don and Terri Crews (treasurers), Jim and Pat Smith (rooms coordinators), Bob and Pat Mitch and Don and Virginia Hurley (refreshments), and Dee Corr (personnel coordinator).

Also, Pat and Pat Conran (procurement), Guy and Carol Marsh (publicity), and Tom and Jane Gelinas and Larry and Peg Kurka (support group coordinators).

Sounds like it'll be quite an event. Get a gang together and go! For ticket information, call 392-9447.

Rob Roy project hit by residents

their bags. "We moved here (just west of the golf course) because we wanted some big trees to look at," said a Prospect Heights housewife, "not a 12-story thing-amajig sitting in the middle of the golf course."

Sue Hampton, who lives just east of Rob Roy at 104 Alton Rd., Prospect Heights, protested: "If they could push the townhouses into the middle of the property and leave the perimeter green for golfing or whatever, at least we wouldn't feel that people could peer out of their second-story windows right on top of us."

As the plans are currently drawn, one- and two-story townhouses would border the golf course, with 36 four-story and 14 six-story buildings on an inner ring. Continuing the pyramid effect, five 12-story towers would be clustered in the center of the huge tract.

Objections of the nearby residents to the project are based mainly on increased traffic, worsened flooding, and burgeoning population.

MANY FEEL THERE is little they can do to prevent development of the golf course. "I'm against it all right," said Mrs. George Arquette, whose house at Camp McDonald Road and Elaine Circle in Prospect Heights, faces the fifth hole. "Not that it does any good," said Mrs. John Mueller, 200 Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights. "What can you do?"

Many residents of the area say they're willing to put up money, if need be, for Mount Prospect to buy the property in order to keep it green. But at the same time, they acknowledge that "people who live more than two blocks from here probably wouldn't care," so a referendum to raise the funds would not be likely to pass.

Village officials have looked into federal and state sources of funds, with no success, but have not ruled out holding a local referendum.

Mrs. Hampton said she understood Kenroy's desire to build on the property. "You can't keep land open like this," she said, "it's too expensive. But," she added, "it's a shame they're trying to pack so many people in there — they've overdone it with the density — and they have so little regard for the people who live closest."

Police wrapup

3 youths charged in laundry break-in

A 17-year-old Arlington Heights youth and two juveniles have been charged with burglary by Mount Prospect police after an early Sunday break-in at Suds Your Duds Laundromat, 613 N. Main St. Two of the three boys were also charged with last Tuesday's burglary at the Mount Prospect VFW Hall, 401 N. Main St.

Kenneth Catenacci, 1723 N. Dale Ave., Arlington Heights, was charged with two counts of burglary and is to appear Wednesday in Mount Prospect branch of Cook County Circuit Court. Police said they have verbal admissions to both burglaries from Catenacci.

Also charged with the laundromat burglary, in which a small amount of cash was taken from some coin machines, were an Arlington Heights boy and a Mount Prospect boy, both 15. In addition, the Mount Prospect boy was charged with burglary of the VFW. In the VFW break-in, cash and 11 rifles were stolen. The rifles were later recovered in an Arlington Heights field.

Both juveniles are scheduled to go before juvenile court — one today and one in about two weeks.

Police said the arrests followed an investigation of a suspicious person report at the rear of the Judith Ann Drive apartments. Part of the money taken from the laundromat, $8.34, was recovered in a nearby field.

He was really just hungry...

A second burglary over the weekend had the victim facing the burglar and feeding him.

Anthony J. Kulak, 806 E. Central Rd., Mount Prospect, told police he was awakened by a noise about 2:45 a.m. Sunday. Leaving his bedroom and turning on the hall lights, Kulak saw a man at the top of the stairs with his shoes off, police said.

The burglar took a karate stance, told Kulak he would not hurt him if he cooperated and then forced Kulak into the bedroom. When asked for money, Kulak told the burglar he had none. The burglar then asked for food and Kulak led him to the kitchen where the burglar ate a sandwich and a glass of milk.

In talking with the burglar, who was about 21, Kulak learned the man was from Skokie but "lived in the streets." Kulak said he believed the man had been drinking and police later found two empty beer cans in Kulak's back yard.

Shortly after his meal, the burglar left, leaving Kulak unharmed. It is unknown what, if anything, the burglar took, although he did break a statue inside the house.

Kulak told police the burglar was about five-foot-eight-inches tall, 140 pounds, with dark eyes, medium complexion and dark curly and short hair. The burglar wore a black knit turtleneck sweater and faded flared pants. He had buckskin gloves and a leather thong attached to his pants.

Burglars hit two homes

Two other burglaries were reported to Mount Prospect police over the weekend.

In the first, a neighbor told police she saw two boys, about 15 years old, breaking basement windows at the Richard Howe residence, 3 N. William St. It is unknown what, if anything, was taken from the home. The incident occurred at 2 p.m. Friday.

The second burglary occurred at 301 N. Pine St., at the David Monroe residence. Police said sometime between midnight and 10:30 a.m. Sunday, burglars entered the home through a basement window and ransacked the whole house.

Although police said they were unsure what was stolen, they did find a glove and man's watch in the backyard.

$20,600 in stocks stolen

Some time since October, $20,600 worth of stocks was stolen from the Bernadine Mellock residence, 313 S. George St., Mount Prospect police said. The theft was discovered Friday. The stocks consisted of 515 shares in Baxter Laboratories, Morton Grove.

Knives stolen at Randhurst

Thieves took four or five knives from a display case at Garfield's Gifts in the Randhurst Shopping Center, 909 N. Elmhurst Rd., Mount Prospect. Police said the knives and a mustache razor were taken sometime between 9:30 p.m. Wednesday and 9:30 p.m. Friday.

Camaro stolen...again

A 1973 Camaro, worth $3,000, was stolen for the second time Saturday from the 1st National Bank of Mount Prospect at the Randhurst Shopping Center.

The car was stolen between 9:30 a.m. and noon, police said. It had been stolen from the same location Jan. 21, but was recovered two days later by Buffalo Grove Police. The car had been repossessed by the bank.

Dog tag deadline Friday

Thursday is the final day 1974 Mount Prospect dog licenses will be available for $3. Each dog in the village is required to wear a tag, which is available in the clerk's office and the finance department, both in the village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy. Proof of a rabies shot must be provided. The cost rises to $5 per tag on Friday.

New Chamber president

George Lindholm, manager of the Basin Clothing Co. at the Randhurst Shopping Center, will be sworn in Wednesday night as president of the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce. The annual installation dinner will be at the Camelot Restaurant, Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street. Other officers to be installed include Bill Radtke and Bob Bush, vice presidents; and Thomas Purcell, treasurer.

Susan Bejcek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bejcek, 106 N. Elm St., Mount Prospect, recently was initiated into Alpha Omicron Pi social sorority at Western Illinois University, Macomb, where she is a sophomore majoring in Spanish.

Friday is deadline day for voting registration

Friday is the final day new or unregistered residents can sign up locally to vote in the March 19 primary election.

Voter registration will be conducted at the Mount Prospect Village Hall, Elk Grove and Wheeling township halls through Friday. After Friday, potential voters will have to go to the Cook County clerk's office in the County Building in Chicago to register. Registration there will continue through Feb. 18.

In order to vote, a resident must be at least 18 years of age and a resident or his voting district for at least 30 days prior to the election. Naturalized citizens should provide citizenship papers.

Here's a rundown on the registration offices:

• Mount Prospect Village Hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy., will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Registration is limited to residents of the village.

• Elk Grove Township Hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, will be open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily except Wednesday, when it will be open from 9 a.m. to noon. Registration is open to any resident of the township — south of Central Road — regardless of whether the resident lives in a municipality.

• Wheeling Township Hall, 1818 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, will be open from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily. Registration is open to any resident of the township — north of Central Road — regardless of whether the resident lives in a municipality.

• County Building, 118 N. Clark St., Room 402, Chicago, will be open for registration from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily and from 9 a.m. to noon Saturdays through Feb. 18. Any resident of Cook County can register there.

The March 19 primary will include the hotly contested race for the Democratic nomination for Cook County assessor, and the referendum on whether to create a Regional Transportation Authority for the six-county Chicagoland area.

Parks, builder agree on land purchase

A tentative agreement has been reached between the River Trails Park District and Kenroy Inc. of Skokie on the park district's purchase of the south 18 acres of the Rob Roy Driving Range.

Because of the tentative agreement, a continuance was granted Friday by Cook County Circuit Court Judge Arthur L. Dunne in the park district's condemnation suit. The new court date is Friday. The park district wants to buy the property, which is adjacent to Woodland Trails Park, for park-recreational purposes.

Park district officials were cautious when asked if they thought the tentative agreement would result in the sale of the property. Park Director Marvin Weiss said the agreement had to be put into writing and approved by the park board before it would become final. He said a check would have to be made with the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, as the district has a grant pending.

Reportedly, both sides have agreed on a price for the property which lies east of the Rob Roy Golf Course on the north side of Euclid Avenue.

In July 1972 the park district had agreed with Kenroy to buy the driving range property for $680,000 but that agreement was negated by Kenroy officials after Mount Prospect officials refused to rezone the north half of the driving range for apartments.

Show's over; Ali wins in decision

and PAUL LOGAN

Muhammad Ali, looking a little like his old quick self, won a unanimous decision against Joe Frazier in a non-title heavyweight fight last night at New York's Madison Square Garden.

The 32-year-old former champion rallied, starting in the ninth round, for the dramatic come-from-behind victory.

In the ninth, a dancing and smiling Frazier waved to Ali to come on. Ali, fighting for his life, came on! Although bleeding from the nose slightly, he used combinations to beat back Frazier as the crowd chanted "Ali! Ali! Ali!" Neither fighter scored a knockdown.

Ali followed his masterful ninth round with steady improvement showing plenty of speed and dancing ability in the crucial twelfth and final round.

Frazier's confidence came in the sixth, seventh and eighth rounds, when he carried the attack to Ali as well as the talking.

Ali exhibited his famed shuttle in the early rounds and even at the bell after the first two rounds. Frazier, the relentless aggressor throughout the fight, hammered away with body punches at the expense of Ali jabs and combinations to the head.

Ali survived Smoking Joe's haymaker attack by clinching in the corners and along the ropes as referee Tony Perez hesitantly separated the former heavyweight champions.

Arlington Park's Paramount Ballroom was crowded with 3,500 standing-room-only fans long before the fight began.

Arlington Park even went as far as to lock the gates surrounding the hotel.

Just as in 1971, both beautiful people and average joes flocked into the huge hotel complex. The 1,100-car parking lot was filled to capacity an hour before the main event.

Fight fans milled around the lobby after leaving coats piled on chairs. While others formed long lines at the many portable bars.

Several persons seemed anxious to discuss their favorites. Some reactions were:

"I think Clay's got him . . . Ali . . . if he keeps his cool," said Jack Sangunett, an account executive for a New York advertising agency who is staying over before returning to Tucson, Ariz.

"I'VE BEEN GOING to fights since he was Clay and beat Liston (Sonny Liston for the title in 1964)," added the lanky well-dressed southerner with long brown cowboy boots.

"I came to the first fight," said Mrs. Barbara Gruetzmacher, of Midlothian, a stockholder with Madison Square Garden. "I like Muhammad Ali . . . only because he's so colorful. I favor him."

"Sure have," said Mike Morgan of Des Plaines, in commenting on if he had ever seen a heavyweight fight. A tall meticulously dressed man, he said he saw the last heavyweight fight between the two at his old home, Los Angeles.

"I like Ali," he said. "I liked him the first time. I think he won it (then)."

Morgan called Ali the people's choice for a champion because "I think he has more class than Frazier. He's a good fighter."

Youth council seeks director of human services

The Arlington Heights Youth Council is advising the village board to create a position within the village government for a director of human services.

According to the cover letter of the council's budget request, in which the recommendation was made, the director would provide a "focal point" and "pull together the variety of human services offered in our community."

The proposed director is needed, according to the budget request, because the village board has not formulated a clear policy of youth services and there is "no one advocate" for such services within the village administration.

Tom Martin, youth council chairman, said a director would also coordinate other human service of the village. The director, he said, would oversee the village's efforts in the housing commission, senior citizens council and volunteer bureau, as well as the youth council.

The youth council budget said the director should be someone trained in social services. The budget also suggested a $18,000 a year salary.

Martin said the salary was "just a ball park figure." He added the salary is in keeping with professional wage scales.

"WE DON'T REALLY make recommendations to the village board. We were set up as an advisory council. All we're doing is advising the board," said Martin.

Other budget requests from the council total $84,800. The money would go to fund youth service and treatment facilities either in Arlington Heights, or facilities that draw clients from the village.

The largest request was for $36,300 for Outreach workers from the Bridge, Inc. Presently, the Bridge in Palatine has two youth workers stationed at "The Basement," a teen drop-in center in the basement of the Olympic Park field house.

Uplift, a counseling treatment program for juveniles is budgeted $24,000. The funds would go toward salaries, training and utilities. Many of Uplift's cases are from the Arlington Heights Police Department juvenile bureau.

REFUNDING of the Council in Parks program was placed at $14,000. The program placed trained counselors in major parks to combat drug abuse and vandalism, last summer.

Another $5,000 is requested for the Ecology Corps. This program hires teenagers for clean-up and planting crews for parks in the summer.

The request by the youth council is in anticipation of upcoming budget hearings by members of the village board. After the hearings, the board will adopt those items it believes are needed. The entire village budget last year was $11.8 million.

CANDLELIGHT MARKS the end of high school for early graduating students from Forest View High School. About 40 students took part in the ceremony. The students gathered enough credits to complete the traditional four year program before June. The candles will help light the new graduates' way in life.

General Caucus meets tonight

There will be a meeting of the School Dist. 21 General Caucus at 8 p.m. today at the district administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The caucus interviews and endorses candidates in local school elections. Representatives of all nonpolitical groups in the district are invited to participate. For more information, call Ralph Camp at 394-5887 or Mrs. Frank Sacco at 537-8453.

The meeting was incorrectly reported as being scheduled for last night by The Herald.

Volunteer Services Bureau

'Our goal is to bring people together to help each other'

by BETTY LEE

The office of the Volunteer Services Bureau at 301 W. South St., Arlington Heights, is filled with stacks of paperwork, accounting books and the never-ending ringing of telephones.

Five years ago it was a one-man operation. The bureau was formed when representatives of community service and social organizations in the village got together and pooled the names of residents who were willing to do volunteer work. It was to be, and remains today, a nonprofit clearing house for placing volunteers to agencies needing them.

The volunteers are from all walks of life. Some teach children how to knit, cook or play guitar, make presentations about their jobs as engineers, writers or doctors, or about their hobbies. They may help teachers on a busy day at school or on a field trip. They go to the hospitals, provide transportation to the elderly and make recordings to the blind.

"OUR BASIC GOAL is to bring people together and let them help each other," said James Hall, president of the bureau.

Now with more than 700 names of volunteers on file, the bureau has grown more complicated with increased operations throughout the northwest portion of Cook County.

"We had no budget, no structure to work with and in March, 1973, the problems came to a head," said Hall. "We were scared to death."

A consultant from Honeywell Inc., Arlington Heights, stepped into the picture just in time, he said. David Borck offered to help reorganize the Volunteer Services Bureau, suggesting changes to the basic structure of the organization.

"We were in serious trouble," said Hall. "We began to lose track of our volunteers."

Borck first suggested that there be no more than 15 and no less than 10 persons

Gas pumps near 'empty'

Northwest suburban service stations shutting at mid-day

by KURT BAER

Gasoline dealers throughout the Northwest suburbs are running on empty.

Sales at the pump are being limited to the early morning hours as dealers find they must shut down by mid-day to stretch their end of the month reserves.

In Washington, federal energy czar William E. Simon said Monday he hopes gasoline production can be stepped up soon to stave off rationing this spring.

And in Chicago, U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., called for a rollback in crude oil prices and new price controls on the U.S. oil industry.

Meanwhile, hundreds of service station

operators stiffened their own rationing controls to avert a total area-wide shutdown.

SEVERAL MOTORISTS told The Herald they could not find any stations in Arlington Heights selling gas Monday afternoon. Some station managers say they already have received part of their February allocation but would continue to limit sales to prevent a run on their pumps.

Most dealers said they hope their self-imposed rationing will head off earlier predictions of massive station closings by the end of the week.

A spot check of stations Monday turned up a recurrent refrain of long lines, short hours and near non-existent supplies.

"People are lined up here like it's going out of style, or like I'm giving it away," said an attendant at Carl's Mobil Service, Mount Prospect.

And at the Shell station at River Road and Euclid Avenue, manager Clair Ruggles said he was saving gas for his regular customers, "people who have been with us for years. We have to take care of our own."

RUGGLES SAID Shell has given him 90 days notice after which the company plans to terminate his lease — unless he buys the station for $150,000. He added that he could make the purchase if he could buy gas. "But they (Shell) won't sell you any," he said.

A survey of seven stations in Rolling Meadows showed that all pumps were locked after morning except, in a few cases, for the evening rush hours.

Bill Hunter, owner of Southland Shell, said there were 12 to 15 cars waiting at his pumps when he opened for business Monday morning.

"Everyone's going to be riding their bikes this weekend," said Bill Miska, owner of Rolling Meadows Shell. "I don't think anyone has gas." His station is already out of gasoline and will receive only 8,000 gallons of its February allocation on Thursday.

State police had to break up lines at the Standard station, Wilke and Algonquin roads, early Monday. "It was unreal," reported an attendant.

Four service stations in Palatine pumped their day's quota in two or three hours yesterday morning.

Robert Franz, owner of Bob's Union 76 at 5 W. Palatine Rd., said his daily quota of 12,000 gallons usually lasts for five or six hours. It was gone in just over two hours Monday.

IN ELK GROVE Village, a line of cars a half-mile long went away empty from Grove Cito when the station shut its pumps at 3:45 p.m. The manager said his station will remain closed until delivery of his February allocation, and he had no idea when that might be.

Burglar, caught in act, sprays victim, then flees

Arlington Heights police are searching for a burglar who escaped from an apartment by spraying a disabling chemical in the face of a man who surprised him.

According to reports, a resident of Dana Point Apartments surprised a burglar in the act when he returned home unexpectedly. The burglar then sprayed an unknown chemical in the face of the man and fled.

Police said the victim attempted to pursue the burglar, who ran into the apartment complex parking lot and fled by car.

The burglar was described as being about six feet tall and weighing about 200 pounds. Police said the victim, whose name was not released, said the burglar had short brown hair and was wearing a brown corduroy coat and tan pants.

The burglar is believed to have escaped in a blue and white late model Dodge.

Police said the victim was not seriously injured by the unknown chemical.

The Cubs and their fathers were required to do all the baking, decorating and cleanup.

Antique lamps on exhibit

An exhibit of unusual pre-electric lamps are currently on display at the Country Store of the Arlington Heights Historical Society, 110 W. Fremont.

Featuring whale oil, beauty, glow and cresolene lamps, the exhibit will be shown through February. Miniature maps which date back approximately 100 years ago are also on display.

The exhibit was prepared for the Country Store by Don Swanson of Arlington Heights. Swanson's hobby is collecting kerosene and finger lamps.

Hours of the store are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Radio Bible rally set

A radio rally featuring the staff of WMBI AM-FM radio voices of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, will be held Feb. 3 at the Arlington Heights Evangelical Church, 1331 N. Belmont. The program will begin at 6 p.m.

Robert Neff, station manager and Gary Leonard, assistant manager, will present slides of the station's staff and will read letters from their radio listeners.

Neatniks to give talks

Sixteen members of the Northpoint Neatnik 4-H Club will participate in the 4-H public speaking contest Thursday at Holmes Junior High School, 1900 W. Lonnquist in Mount Prospect. The event begins at 6:30 p.m.

Participants in the contests will be: Cindy Bartelt, Ken Bartelt, Colette Coderre and Kevin Coderre, Marianne Eberhardt, Steven Frevert, Melissa Gaul and Pamela Gaul.

Also Judy Hoeck, James Kindwall, Nancy Kindwall, John Muenning, Karin Muenning, Tina Muenning, Donna Seymour and Lori Waue.

The Neatniks also participated in other projects such as woodworking, photography and cooking.

Village raises ceiling price on non-bid items

The Village of Arlington Heights has raised the ceiling price on the purchases it is allowed to make without taking competitive bids.

By village board action, the limit has been raised from $1,500 to $2,500. The move is in line with maximums allowed by state statutes, according to finance committee chairman, Trustee Frank Palmatier.

Since the dollar has shrunk in value, the change will give the village administration more flexibility in seeking the lowest price in its purchases, Palmatier said.

None of the trustees on the board voted against the change.

Alarm system firm blames phone company for delay

by JILL BETTNER

Temptron Inc., which is installing a $85,000 surveillance system in School Dist. 21, cites problems with Illinois Bell Telephone lines as the reason for being four months past the contract deadline.

The Dist. 21 school board last week passed a resolution giving Temptron Inc. until Feb. 15 to install the system. If it is not operational by that date, the board warned it would terminate the contract and take other steps to complete the work.

If the surveillance system is not working by the new deadline, the board also will invoke the performance bond posted by Temptron. The bonding company would then seek another company to finish the job.

The Herald yesterday incorrectly reported that the Temptron firm must complete the work by Feb. 1.

J. C. LEE, president of Temptron, yesterday said that malfunctioning telephone lines have caused the delay in installing the system. He said the lines, installed in August, stopped working in November. They were repaired two weeks ago, he said, but began malfunctioning again last Friday.

According to Lee, Temptron did not have enough time to check out the system before it began malfunctioning again. He said it takes approximately one week per school to check out the system and there are 17 schools plus the Dist. 21 administration building included in it.

Eugene Wagner, Illinois Bell communications consultant, said he knew of difficulties with equipment supplied by both the telephone company and Temptron. However, he said, to his knowledge the telephone lines had been working since Dec. 6. Wagner admitted that there could be a new malfunction of which he was not aware.

LEE IS ASKING the school board to extend the new Feb. 15 completion deadline by three days to make up for the time he said has been lost due to the malfunctioning telephone lines.

Supt. Kenneth Gill said he would turn the request over to the school board for consideration at its Feb. 14 meeting.

Expressing his feeling about the situation, Gill said, "We're very conscious of trouble with the phone lines, but we were under contract for the system to be completed in September and we're way past that deadline. We recognize there were difficulties, but we also recognize Temptron's obligation to being this thing to a conclusion according to the terms of the contract."

Teachers' group will screen board aspirant

The Arlington Teachers Assn. and its Illinois Political Action Committee for Education (ATA-IPACE) tonight will screen H. Robert Powell, a candidate for the School Dist. 25 election, at Thomas Junior High School, 301 E. Thomas, Arlington Heights.

The interviewing will begin at 7 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Powell, 110 S. Kennicott, Arlington Heights, retired last April after serving two terms on the elementary school board. He was first elected in 1967.

Bomb threat closes St. Viator early

Arlington Heights police yesterday received a telephone call informing them of a bomb threat at St. Viator High School, 1213 E. Oakton, Arlington Heights.

The Rev. Patrick Render, head of student personnel, said that police notified school officials of the threat early yesterday afternoon. Police checked but found nothing.

The students were dismissed from their classes for the day.

on the bureau board of directors for a more efficient administration.

When the bureau first began, there were 30 persons on the board and a paid, executive director working half time.

BORCK REVISED the bureau structure so that each volunteer would go to Jane Rennee Weakley, the current executive director, for placing. Originally, the volunteers approached the 30 board directors.

Gil Hill of Western Electric Co. Inc. juggled the accounting books and put them in order. Hill is also a company representative, like Borck, who sought to volunteer for the bureau. With the aid of the DeSoto Inc. computer, the Volunteer Services Bureau now receives a monthly computer print-out of finance records.

Even though there are only two part-time employees, Mrs. Weakley and her secretary, the computer registers all expenses, from telephone bills to postage.

First Amendment topic of speech

Gene Garman, Midwest regional director of Americans United, will speak on "The Religion Clauses of the First Amendment" at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Dunton Room of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 W. Dunton. A question and answer period will follow.

Americans United is an educational, nonprofit corporation whose concern is to preserve the separation of the church and state based on the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

Some are still waiting for men who went off to war

by TONI GINETTI

Mrs. Dawn Slice didn't need a special day Sunday to remember the men still listed as missing in action from a war in Southeast Asia which for most Americans ended last year.

Mrs. Slice is the sister of a MIA, Navy Lt. Bruce Fryar. Since December, 1969, when she learned that her brother had been lost in a bombing mission over Laos, Mrs. Slice and her family have been awaiting word on the fate of her brother.

Young Lt. Fryar, then 25, was a Navy pilot on his last mission before a rest and recreation layoff in Japan. He and his navigator, Lt. Nick Brooks, were last seen ejecting from their plane which had been shot down over Laos.

Fryar and Brooks are only two of more than 1,300 Vietnam War veterans still unaccounted for by the United States government. Sunday they were to be remembered on what had been proclaimed Missing In Action Awareness Day by President Nixon.

FAMILIES OF AREA MIAs met in Chicago Sunday for the observance. Mrs. Slice and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll E. Fryar of Rolling Meadows did not attend — but not because they are not concerned.

The family last year undertook a letter-writing campaign urging more than 300 individuals and organizations to write to congressmen and the White House to demand an accounting of the MIAs.

"As far as the senators and congressmen, the most we have ever gotten back is a form letter," Mrs. Slice said. "I feel now that they (the government) could be doing a lot more."

Mrs. Slice, who resides in Hoffman Estates, said the family has heard nothing from the government during the past year on Bruce's fate. His wife Diane, who lives in Virginia with the couple's young daughter, has apparently received no further information either.

"There is a Navy officer who contacts my parents very regularly, but he doesn't know anything more," Mrs. Slice said.

MUCH OF the information on the MIA situation the Fryars receive still comes from Voices in Vital America (VIVA), the organization which produced prisoner of war and MIA bracelets.

Mrs. Slice said, however, the organization is having its problems. "One of the women on the board has decided that there is no hope and is apparently trying to dissolve the group," she said. "But Mr. Brooks (the father of the navigator shot down with Fryar) says it should continue until all the families are answered."

The Fryar family is still hopeful they may yet learn that Bruce is

alive. "Bruce was shot down over Laos and so far they have not allowed search teams to go into Laos," said Mrs. Slice, whose son, born with a twin sister six weeks after Fryar was shot down, is named for his uncle.

"My sister Marijean said yesterday she heard that ten newsmen who were listed as missing in action have apparently been found alive. They had not been accounted for, but apparently they recorded their voices," she said.

"I'm not bitter," she added of her family's continuing ordeal, "just very disappointed."
